Weather or not?

Plans for a village weather station are up in the air because of a lack of municipal funds; members of the public relations panel are seeking alternate means to pay for the project

The Buffalo Grove Village Board of Trustees still wants to install a weather station in the village, but doesn't want to use village funds to finance it.
The board approved the weather station project "in principle" Tuesday night, but trustees balked at appropriating funds for the $2,378 undertaking because of the village's fiscal state.
The board directed the village's public relations committee to find an alternate to municipal financing of the weather station.

THE PROJECT CALLS for the purchase of weather information devices in order to publicize the village by providing television and radio whether broadcasters with statistics on weather conditions in Buffalo Grove.
The idea has won favor of trustees, who are hopeful an alternative method of funding is available.
Trustee Clarice Rech suggested a village-wide garage sale as a possible means of raising the money. Trustee Thomas Mahoney said a contribution from the Buffalo Grove Jaycees might be another way to pay for the project.

"This is the sort of thing we could do at another time without thinking about it," said Trustee James Shirley, "but this is not one of those times."
THE APPARATUS consists of weather dials that indicate wind direction and velocity, relative humidity, temperature and barometric pressure.
In a presentation before the board, Irving Capitel, a member of the public relations committee, said the weather station was something the village could "utilize for a good, sound public relations campaign."

Capitel said media weathermen in the Chicago area have indicated interest in the proposal and would report weather conditions in Buffalo Grove on their broadcasts.
The equipment also would be useful to the public works department in gauging potential flooding conditions in the area based on precipitation readings taken from the dials, according to officials.

Village needs 35 more enumerators for special census

The village is still looking for applicants to assist in the special census next month in Buffalo Grove, said Village Clerk Verna Clayton.
To date, only 25 applications have been received from persons interested in doing the door-to-door census work. Thirty-five more are being sought to do the job.
Officials from the U. S. Census Bureau will be in town Oct. 2 to screen applicants and administer a time test with the actual census-taking to begin Oct. 3, Mrs. Clayton said.

WITH 60 CENSUS takers, the entire village could be counted within a week, she said.
Census takers must be at least 18 years old and U. S. citizens. They will be paid 13 cents per name counted. Mrs. Clayton said an average of 200 names can be counted daily by one person. Pay for that number would be $26.
The last census conducted in Buffalo Grove in 1972 showed the village population was 15,653. Village officials anticipate the new census will reflect in excess of 19,100 residents.

Parks to review addition to Raupp

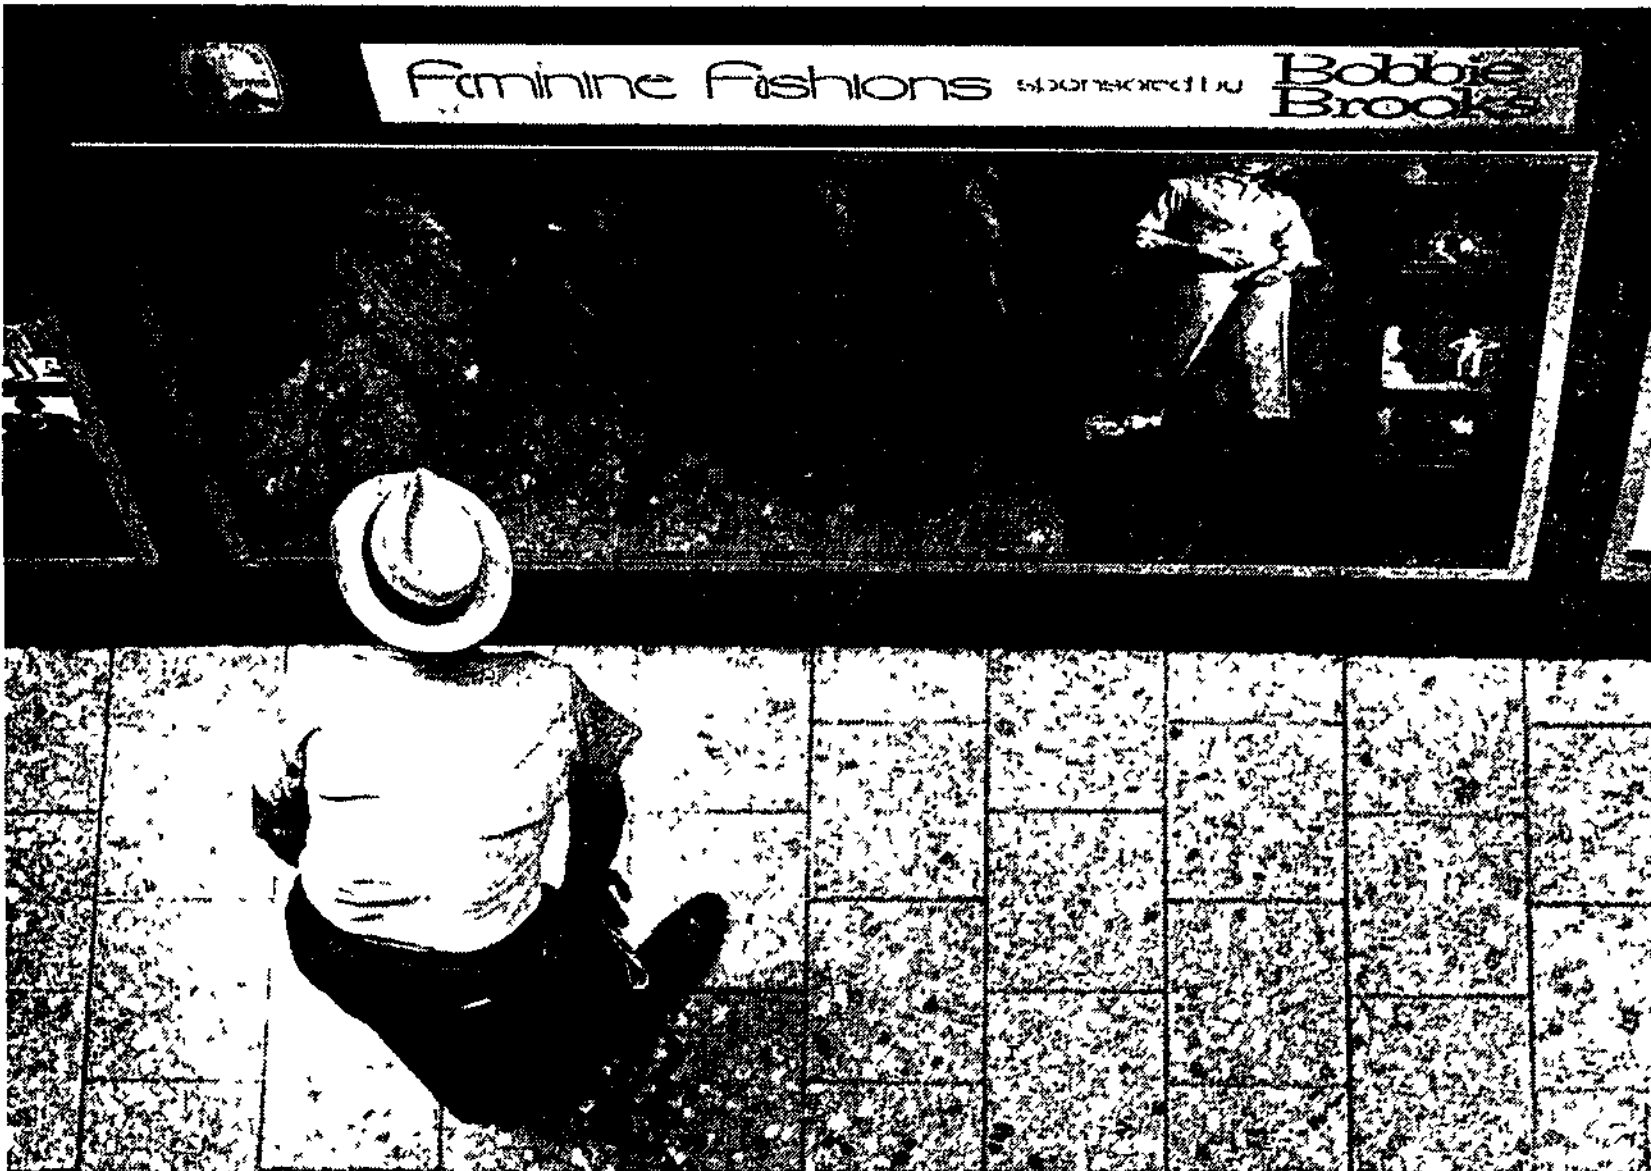

Buffalo Grove park commissioners will review final specifications to the Raupp Memorial addition to the Levitt and Sons Inc., sales office that will be used as a historical museum.
The addition will be used as a community center and meeting room and plans call for the office to be moved to a site on Denham Road in Lake County.
Award of a construction bid for the project is pending by the park board.

High school band in parade Saturday

The Buffalo Grove High School Marching Band will march Saturday in the Mexican-American parade down Chicago's State Street.
The parade will be the first appearance for the 70-piece band outside Buffalo Grove this year.
The parade begins at 1 p.m. and will be broadcast on television station WCIU, Channel 28.

Club plans plays for children

The Buffalo Grove Junior Women's Club will present four live, professional plays this year at Cooper Junior High School.
The club will present "Winnie-the-Pooh," Nov. 2; "Androcles and the Lion," Jan. 18; "Heroes, Villains, and Plots," March 8 and "The Dragon from the North," April 19.
The shows will run between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m.
Children in kindergarten through sixth grade will receive ticket information through their schools.

New disclosures in Wickes case

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Completion of the Wickes, Inc., furniture warehouse in Wheeling was held up more than eight months by demands for a $50,000 zoning payoff, the U. S. Attorney's Office charged Wednesday.
Federal prosecutors also disclosed the identity of the key witness in their case against two county zoning officials accused of extorting the $50,000 from Wickes in December, 1971.

The witness is Willard Brown Jr., a vice president of Arthur Rubloff and Co., the Chicago real estate firm involved in the purchase of Wickes' Wheeling property.
The Herald reported in March that a key government witness identified Nicholas Phillips, one of the two defendants, as the bagman who picked up the $50,000 cash at a North Side Chicago hotel in 1971. Phillips is a county zoning board employee and a cousin of political boss James Stavros, who has pleaded guilty to federal extortion charges in the Wheeling scandal, and is now in prison.
ALSO CHARGED WITH extortion in the Wickes case is Ira Colitz, who resigned from the county zoning board after he and five others were indicted Jan. 31.
In a bill of particulars filed Wednesday in U. S. District Court, the government charged that Colitz was the organizer of the Wickes shakedown scheme.
Colitz, a former state representative, informed Wickes beginning in October, 1971, "that a payoff had to be made in order for Wickes to obtain zoning," the prosecutors charged.
Colitz made "arrangements necessary for the zoning to be approved and for the payoff to be made," according to the bill of particulars, which was filed in response to defense requests for details of the government's case against both men.
The U. S. Attorney's Office also named four other potential witnesses in the case, all of them connected with Wickes. They are Edward Sheldon, a consultant for the firm; Emil Sheldon and John Drumm, both senior vice presidents.
WICKES PLANNED opening of the store, 351 W. Dundee Rd., for Nov. 21, 1971, but demands for the payoff delayed completion until mid-June, 1972.
McNeely, Gordon, Sheldon and Drumm "feared the loss of large sums of money" if zoning for the project were denied, the government said.
McNeely and Gordon approved the payoff and plans for delivering the money were made by Colitz, Sheldon and Brown after "continuous negotiations" (Continued on Page 6)

A forum: Should Harper College's security force bear firearms?

Suburban digest

Making like Evel is an evil stunt

Evel Knievel got $6 million and a bloody nose out of his escapades at the Snake River Canyon in Idaho, but local youngsters attempting mini Knievel-like stunts haven't fared quite as well. In at least one suburb, Mount Prospect, young would-be bicycle daredevils have been served warning by the police chief not to attempt stunts. Chief Ralph J. Doney called the practice of launching bikes on a homemade ramp "hazardous."

Payoff delayed Wickes store

Completion of the Wickes, Inc., furniture warehouse in Wheeling was held up more than eight months by demands for a $30,000 zoning payoff, the U.S. Attorney's Office charged Wednesday. Federal prosecutors also disclosed the identity of the key witness in their extortion case against two county zoning officials. The witness, Willard Brown Jr., a vice president of Arthur Rubloff and Co., has identified Nicholas Phillips, one of the two defendants, as the bagman who picked up $30,000 cash extorted from Wickes in 1971. A trial date will be set Sept. 23 for Phillips and Ira Colitz, former county zoning board member also charged in the case.

Walgreen scraps plans

Plans by Walgreen Co. to build its national headquarters on the former St. Patrick Academy property in Des Plaines have been scrapped. Citing the amount of time needed to build an office complex, officials of the drug store chain instead have opted for the Baxter Laboratory building in Deerfield. Walgreen's had angered neighbors of the 26-acre Des Plaines site by convincing city officials to rezone the property. It's now uncertain whether restrictive covenants placed on the property when it was rezoned will apply after it is sold.

Ex-official pleads innocent

Former Hanover Park Village President Richard H. Baker Wednesday entered a plea of not guilty to a 12-count indictment charging him with extortion and filing false income tax returns. He is accused of accepting $22,500 from developers and liquor license applicants while serving as village president and liquor commissioner from 1959 to 1973. Pretrial motions will be filed Nov. 5.

Chambers plan merger

The Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce and the Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry may merge to form a stronger group with less duplication of efforts. The move is expected by the end of the year.

Reagan hails 'great middle class'

by BOB LAHEY

If you could identify the top 10 towns tailor-made for an election speech by California Gov. Ronald Reagan, conservative hero and champion of the middle class, Cicero would probably be among them.

Reagan, as trim and fit at 63 as he ever appeared on Death Valley Days, visited Cicero Wednesday and was cheered by the people he had come to praise as if he had just KO'd Black Bart.

He called these people "The great cross-section of Americans of every racial and ethnic background; farmers, city folks, shopkeepers and workers — the great unsung heroes who get up every morning, go to work, send their kids to schools, pay their bills, support their church and charity, ask nothing of freedom but freedom itself, and want nothing from government except to be left alone."

The California governor came to Cicero on behalf of Ill. Rep. Henry J. Hyde, who sates Reagan's conservative credo and who is campaigning for Congress against former Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan.

Hyde was cheered by a crowd of approximately 400 voters at an outdoor rally in downtown Cicero when Reagan praised him for his successful effort to restore capital punishment for some offenses in Illinois.

ATTENDING THE rally were a polyglot crowd of mostly working people, whose makeup was reflected in the musical entertainment before Reagan's appearance — selections ranging from "Danny Boy" to "Sorrento" to "Hava Nagila."

They responded enthusiastically when Reagan, without referring to former President Richard M. Nixon, declared that the American middle class in 1972 "overwhelmingly gave a Republican administration a mandate, and that mandate remains intact today."

The 6th Congressional District, where Hyde is seeking to replace retiring U.S. Rep. Harold Collier, gave Nixon 69 per cent of its votes in 1972.

Reagan told the crowd, "The hopes and dreams of the American people are the chief issues of this campaign."

With government taking 45 cents out of each dollar of income, said Reagan, "The good life we have worked so hard for now seems just out of reach."

The growth of government in the name of "a planned Utopia," said the California governor, is due to 40 years of domination by Democratic "social tinkers" in Congress.

REAGAN DERIDED Democratic efforts "to campaign on the single issue of Watergate."

"They don't want even their own candidates to remember that they were overwhelmingly repudiated by the American people after their own convention was high-jacked by the liberals in 1972," he said. "America voted to be conservative, not liberal."

Reagan said that legislative proposals for federal land use regulations, greater consumer protection requirements and national health insurance all represent infringements on the America concept of self-determination.

He urged a balanced budget, a 10 per cent reduction in the federal bureaucracy, a phase-out of foreign aid, welfare reforms (including a demand for work on community projects by welfare recipients, as instituted by him in California, and elimination of many federal regulatory agencies, including the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sen. Mondale, Gov. Carter to stump for Betty Spence

The Congressional campaign of Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove will be boosted in the next week by visits to her district from two rising stars in the Democratic party — Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Minnesota Sen. Walter F. Mondale, widely considered a likely presidential nominee in 1976.

Mrs. Spence is the Democratic candidate against U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

Betty Spence

Mondale will be the featured speaker at a free rally at the Maitre d' Restaurant, Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, Elk Grove Village, from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Carter will be the featured guest at a football outing next Wednesday. Following a box supper at the I.A.M. Hall, 50 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines, Spence supporters will travel by bus to Soldier Field for a game between the Chicago Fire and the Memphis Southmen.

Carter was elected governor of Georgia in 1970, following an unsuccessful bid in 1966. He has been credited with a number of government reforms, passing 85 per cent of the legislation he has proposed in his four years as governor. He is chairman of the Campaign '74 Committee of the Democratic National Party.

Mondale was the youngest attorney general elected in Minnesota history, before being appointed to fill Hubert Humphrey's Senate seat when Humphrey was elected vice president in 1964.

Reelected in 1966 and 1972, he has become known as one of the most effective liberals in the Senate and has led fights against anti-busing legislation and for child care reforms.

Reagan backs Ford pardon for Nixon

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California said Wednesday President Ford's pardon of former President Nixon was "an act of compassion," and he hopes the Watergate affair is finally behind us.

Reagan told a news conference he fully supports Ford's action regarding Nixon. "I support the President. It was an act of compassion. I think justice has been done, and I agree with his belief that this whole thing should be put behind us."

Asked how he thought justice had been served by Ford's action, Reagan replied, "What is the goal of justice? It's punishment that fits the alleged misdeed, and I don't see how anyone can think he (Nixon) should be punished more than he already has been."

Reagan, who is leaving office in January after two terms, sidestepped questions about any future political plans, specifically in 1976. He said he would like to travel around the country speaking out on the issues and campaigning for GOP candidates.

Pressed on the matter of whether he was looking forward to taking part in the race for the Republican presidential nomination of 1976, Reagan said, "We should all hope and pray that the new administration is so successful that there will be no need for speculation in 1976."

He said regarding amnesty for Vietnam War resisters, the policy followed in past American wars of clemency on an individual basis should be instituted. He recommended "alternate forms of retribution other than prison for those breaking the law."

Eastern DC-9 jet crashes in S.C.; 13 survive

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — An Eastern Air Lines DC-9 jet descending through patches of fog on approach to the Charlotte airport Wednesday clipped treetops, plowed into a ravine and exploded, killing 69 of the 82 persons aboard.

Among the 13 survivors was the copilot, James Miller Daniels Jr. 36, of Atlanta and stewardess Judy Colletta Watson, also of Atlanta, who walked away from the crash virtually unscathed.

Those killed included the pilot, James Edward Reeves, 49, another stewardess, Eugenia Alice Kerth, 24, both of Atlanta, and two television news executives. The newsmen were John Merriman, editor for the CBS Evening News, and Wayne Seal, news director of WCIV-TV in Charleston, S.C.

Of the 13 injured, three were reported in critical condition. The flight was Eastern's 212, bound from Charleston, S.C. to Chicago's O'Hare Field, with an intermediate stop at Charlotte.

Filled to near-capacity with 78 passengers and a crew of four, the plane was making a routine radar approach when it suddenly disappeared from the flight controller's radar screen at 6:33 a.m. CDT.

Visibility at the time was officially listed at 1 1/2 miles, with fog patches and a cloud cover at 4,000 feet.

"Weather was not a problem," Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said in Atlanta.

"I'm not going to say it was not a factor, because I don't know."

"Nothing in any conversations with the local controller prior to the mishap . . . indicated any trouble," Barker said.

Robert Burnham, one of the survivors of the crash, recalled from his hospital bed:

"We were coming in and the pilot seemed to pick up power. It was real foggy. I felt one wing tip down, then we hit some trees and I felt heat."

"I must have been thrown out of the plane. I got up, looked around and started running toward the woods."

The big plane came down in an open field about 2 1/2 miles south of the runway, clipping off the treetops, pancaking down near the edge of a ravine, then sliding into the ravine and exploding.

The impact ripped the cockpit away from the plane's main fuselage, and whipped the wreckage around in a swirl of flame.

Mrs. John McDowell, owner of the 300-acre farm where the jet crashed, said she was reading the morning newspaper when she heard an "awful boom."

"I thought at first it was someone dynamiting," she said. "We could not see because of the fog. We didn't know what or where it was until this man pulled up and called the police."

McDowell jumped on his tractor and was among the first persons to arrive at the crash scene, along with Jim Stanley, who lives about 500 yards away.

"I ran down into the woods and saw a tremendous funnel of smoke," said Stanley. "The roar of the fire was tremendous."

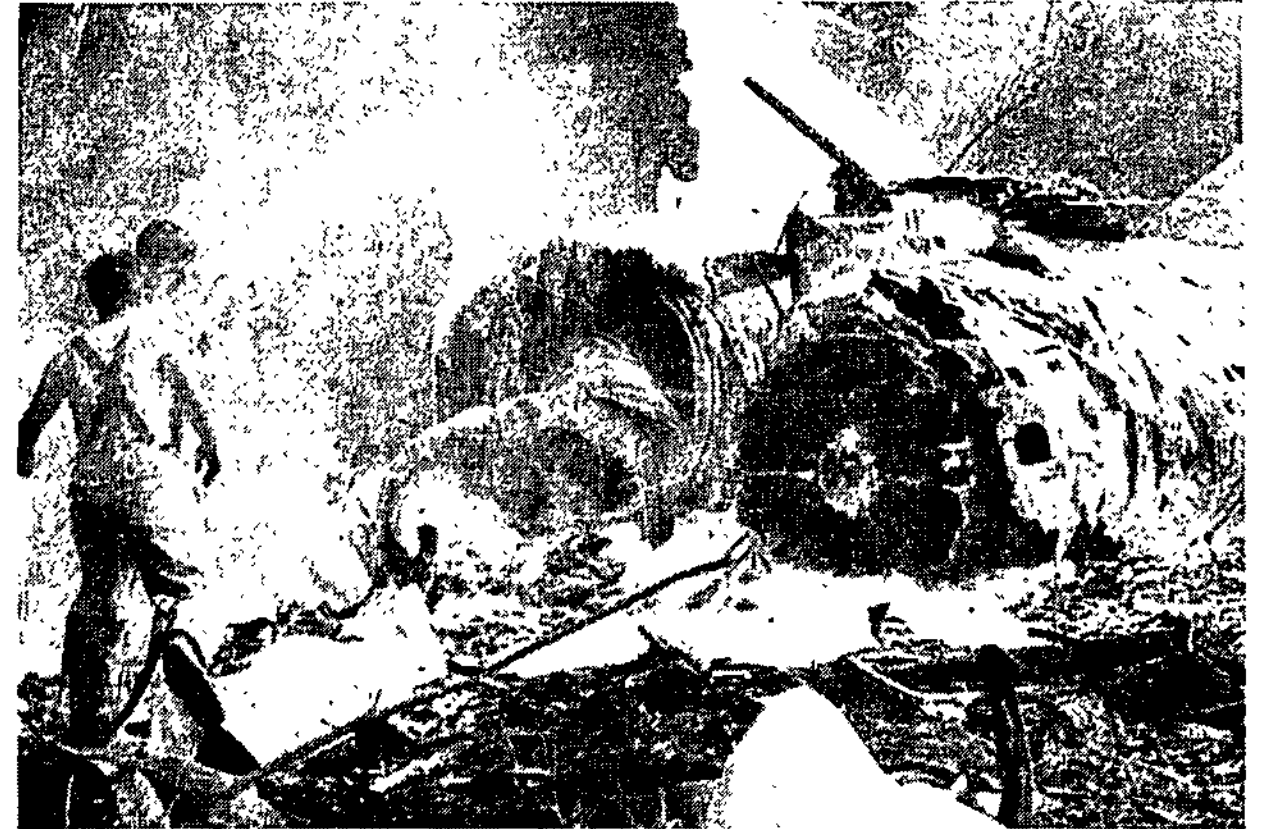

Upon closer inspection, he said "I saw a girl lying beside the fuselage screaming. There wasn't anything we could do for her. I got sick."

McDowell said he heard "a lot of screaming and hollering and then there was a tremendous explosion — and then silence."

The crash occurred about 500 yards off State Rte. 49, a heavily traveled commuter road, at the height of the morning rush hour. Police cars and ambulances battled throughout the morning trying to get back and forth from the crash, which snarled traffic for hours.

The FBI sent its "disaster squad" to help identify victims through their fingerprints, and the National Transportation Board also sent a team of investigators.

FIREMEN IN CHARLOTTE, N.C., play water on the smoldering ruins of an Eastern DC-9 jetliner, and step over shroud-covered bodies of some of the 69 persons killed in the crash. The plane was coming in for a routine landing when it went down and burned. The plane was flight 212 bound for Chicago's O'Hare field.

Commando units seek to quiet rioting

Portugal rushed elite commando combat units into the littered streets of the Mozambique capital of Lourenco Marques yesterday to put down rioting by African mobs angry over an attempted white supremacy rebellion. Hundreds of persons were reported killed in two days of rioting, and hundreds more fled to safety in neighboring South Africa.

Election requirement unconstitutional

U.S. District Court Judge William J. Lynch yesterday ruled that the signature distribution requirement in Illinois is unconstitutional and ordered the Illinois Board of Elections to place candidates of the Communist party of Illinois on the ballot for the Nov. 5 general election. Lynch said the distribution requirement was an arbitrary formula which grants one group greater voting strength than another and discriminates against voters.

2 hostages rescued in Joliet

Police in Joliet yesterday rescued a police captain and a woman clerk after they had been held hostage for nearly two hours by a gunman who was trapped during a robbery at a jewelry store. The gunman was given a car for escape, but police kept in contact with the vehicle throughout the escape attempt. When police stopped the car, Aaron Pinkston, the gunman, was shot five times in the abdomen after he raised an automatic pistol at police.

Petition seeks State Bar probe of Nixon

A petition asking for a continued State Bar investigation into former President Richard Nixon's "fitness" to practice law in California was read yesterday to members of the organization's ruling body. A group of attorneys pushed for the investigation into possible disbarment of Nixon despite his earlier announcement that he intends to resign from the bar.

Ford holds pre-summit economic meeting

President Gerald Ford, vowing he would not fight inflation by letting Americans go jobless, yesterday released federal funds to finance public service jobs in communities hard-hit by unemployment. He then met with two dozen labor leaders, a handful of congressmen and his economic advisers in the second session of pre-summit economic conferences.

Bill would restrict access to tax return

The Treasury Department yesterday proposed legislation to restrict access to individual income tax returns. The bill would remove authority of the President to determine by executive order which agencies or individuals could see tax returns. Meanwhile, it was revealed Congress will return after the November election for only the third time in 20 years in an effort to pass national health insurance and tax revision bills.

From Herald news services

President Ford moved Wednesday to cool some of the furor in the wake of his Nixon pardon, saying in the case of other Watergate principals he will consider individual clemency pleas but did not have in mind blanket pardons for all the defendants.

At the same time, it was made clear that the cover-up trial of six former Nixon aides will go on as scheduled Sept. 30, but with the Nixon pardon to be made an issue.

Ford's formal clarification was issued through deputy press secretary John W. Hushen after the president met for nearly two hours with Republican congressmen. One of them — Rep. John Anderson of Illinois — said there was "no pussy-footing" in the meeting as the congressmen made it clear there was outrage on both sides of the aisle over Tuesday's announcement that "the entire matter of Watergate pardons is under study."

Said Hushen: "There was never any consideration of blanket amnesty or pardons" for the 48 persons so far jailed or indicted on Watergate charges.

One presidential aide, who declined to be identified, said "panic" had set in at the White House when Ford's pardon of the former president for all crimes he may have committed while in office touched off a public outcry. The source said the follow-up comment on studying further pardons "may have been a trial balloon" too hastily floated.

One of the six defendants to go on trail Sept. 30 — former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman — said the "extraordinary event" of Nixon's pardon has only added to the massive publicity in the Watergate case and further threatens prospects for a fair trial.

Haldeman made the charge in filing motions challenging U.S. District Judge John Sirica's plan to sequester jurors throughout the long trial to guard against the influence of publicity.

Haldeman also filed a motion to delay the trial, and it was rejected without opinion by Sirica, who thus indicated he means for the already-postponed trial to get going.

Sirica also rejected without comment a plea from Gordon Strachan that charges against him be dropped because of tainted evidence. He contends he had been granted immunity from prosecution for his testimony before the Watergate grand jury and the Senate Watergate committee and there was no independent evidence on which to prosecute him.

Attorneys for both Haldeman and Strachan indicated they would appeal.

Senate votes permanent 55 speed limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 85-0 Wednesday to make 55 miles per hour the permanent highway speed limit.

In another action, without the force of law, the senators voted 84-21 against the interlock system in cars, which requires that seatbelts be fastened before the car will start.

The package of changes in the federal aid to highways act also included a provision to allow heavier trucks on interstate highways.

Spurred by statistics showing a decline of nearly 6,000 traffic fatalities since the 55 mile-an-hour maximum speed limit was imposed Jan. 2 to save gasoline, the Senate voted to make the limit permanent.

It had been scheduled to expire next June 30. The limit is enforced on the states by threat of withdrawal of federal highway aid.

The Senate Public Works Committee, which wrote the measure, said the 55 m.p.h. limits "have produced the single most effective improvement in highway safety in recent years." It also cited a Gallup Poll of June 29 showing that 72 per cent of the people interviewed favor the lower limit.

An amendment by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., which would have given the states the option to impose 60 m.p.h. limits, was defeated, 63-22.

The vote on the interlock systems came on an amendment by Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., to prohibit the government from requiring the interlock system, buzzers that indicate the belts aren't fastened or any "passive restraint" system other than the bells. That would eliminate airbags.

But Buckley withdrew his amendment after passage when it was noted that a similar bill was being considered in a House-Senate conference.

Utility rate hikes backed by Simon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday "the lights will go out" in homes and factories unless utility companies are allowed to increase rates to consumers.

Richard Morgan, however, a spokesman for the Environmental Action Group, said consumers have "already tightened our belts and we want the power industry to tighten theirs."

Morgan said Simon is using "unfair, improper and illegal" influence to encourage the state officials to grant rate increases to utilities.

Golf hall of fame opens; Ford's great off the tee

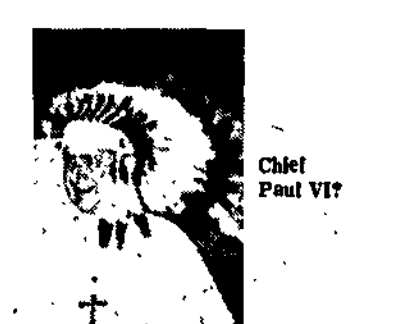

• Was President Ford thinking about the Nixon pardon flap when he addressed the dinner last night marking the opening of the World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, N. C.? Probably, as he observed "understanding and reconciliation" are as important in government as in athletics. It was a pretty good day for Ford, as earlier — in an exhibition with some of the game's greats and hall inductees — he whistled a drive 220 yards straight down the fairway, while Arnold Palmer and Gary Player wound up short and in the rough. But Jack Nicklaus saved the pros' honor, leaving Ford 45 yards behind with his tee shot.

• The end of the long career of Chinese Premier Zhou En-lai seems nearer, as diplomatic sources in London now report the ailing 78-year-old leader will soon retire and turn over the reins to a collective-type leadership that would continue on the same policy course.

Chief Paul VI?

• More misery for Haile Selassie, the one-time Ethiopian strongman emperor and Lion of Judah deprived of almost all his power, by a ruling military junta. Troops arrested his daughter, Princess Tenagnework and accused him of refusing to hand over billions of dollars he allegedly has accumulated in foreign bank accounts.

• There was no mention of the occasion in the Soviet press, but a few visitors did troop by the grave of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow to place bouquets of flowers to mark the third anniversary of his death.

• It was a scene to give one pause over whether Pope Paul VI was running for office. There he was in full American Indian headdress at his weekly general audience. It was his way of saying thanks for the gift from a group of visiting Indians from Gaylord, Mich.

• A Rochester, N. Y., television news announced — Carole Clifford — says she's tired of using female names to denote hurricanes, finds it "Freudian," and henceforth will call them only by male names. For example, Dolly became Donald and Elaine was Edgar. All of which brings to mind the old joke that if we only gave hurricanes men's names, they'd probably all stop at the Virgin Islands.

Harper may reject teacher 'board seat'

by WANDALYN RICE
Two members of a committee of the Harper College Board of Trustees are expected to recommend today formation of a committee to work on board-faculty communications as a replacement for giving a faculty representative an ex-officio seat on the board.

According to college sources, the recommendation will come from board members Judith Troehler and Jessalyn Nicklas, two of the three members of the board committee formed to study the faculty request for a seat on the board. Board member Lawrence Moats, another member of the committee, said Wednesday he would oppose the recommendation.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the college, Algonquin and Golf roads, Palatine.

THE CONTROVERSY, concerning the question of whether the Faculty Senate president should be allowed a nonvoting seat on the board has been a recurring one for several years. The request was renewed by Faculty Senate Pres. Robert Powell this spring.

Powell said the faculty board seat is necessary so the faculty position on various issues facing the board could be heard. He said that his present position sitting near the board table with the college vice presidents does not help communication because in order to participate in discussion he must interrupt board members.

Opponents of the faculty seat have argued that the board has no communications problem with the faculty and also have expressed fears that a nonvoting faculty seat on the board would weaken the board's control of policymaking at the college.

IN JUNE, the Harper board voted 4 to 2 to send Powell on the board in an ex-officio capacity. At that time, a majority of the board members agreed that Powell would be able to participate in board discussions on matters affecting the faculty from his position at the board table.

In July, however, the board accepted by a 5 to 1 vote a recommendation from Mrs. Nicklas that it delay seating Powell at least until September so the matter could be studied further. Mrs. Nicklas, Mrs. Troehler and Moats were appointed to a committee to study the issue. The committee met twice to discuss the issue, but later meetings were canceled.

According to college sources, Mrs. Nicklas and Mrs. Troehler will recommend that, instead of giving Powell a seat on the board, the board form a communications committee which would meet with faculty and other staff groups at the college.

Mrs. Troehler declined Wednesday to confirm the reports. Moats, however, said Mrs. Nicklas and Mrs. Troehler had suggested the communications committee during the group's two meetings. He said at that time, "I made it clear that I was not necessarily opposed to the committee, but that I thought we should seat the faculty member the way we voted to in June."

POWELL SAID Wednesday that the communications committee would be unacceptable to him. "It's just another bureaucracy," he said.

Also, Wednesday, a Harper faculty member and former member of the faculty salary negotiation team said he was disappointed that he had not been notified of meetings of the committee studying the issue so that he could attend.

Michael Bartos, associate professor of English and former member of the Maine Township High School Dist. 207 Board of Education, said he asked Mrs. Troehler in early August if he could be notified of the committee meetings because he is doing a paper on the issue of faculty participation on college boards.

Bartos said he received a letter from Mrs. Troehler dated Aug. 21 which said, "I feel that your particular request would be more appropriate when the committee has progressed further."

ARSON IS SUSPECTED in a fire that destroyed a garage at an abandoned house in Prospect Heights at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Firemen also battled a fire of suspicious origin in the nearby house Monday night. No value was placed on the loss because the buildings, near the northeast corner of Thomas Street and Rand Road, are in the process of being demolished. Arlington Heights firemen assisted.

Housing breakdown shows rental apartments at 35%

by JOE FRANZ

A breakdown of housing in Wheeling shows 35 per cent of the dwelling units in the village are rental apartments.

The breakdown was released this week by Thomas Markus, administrative assistant to Village Mgr. George Passolt. Trustee John Koepen requested a breakdown of rental units about two weeks ago after Markus presented a report showing that 81 per cent of the village's housing consisted of multiple-family units.

According to the report, Wheeling has 7,328 dwelling units, of which 4,502 are multiple-family, including rental apartments, condominiums, townhouses and quadrominiums. There are 2,826 single-family homes which make up about 39 per cent of the total dwelling units.

AT THE TIME the report was released, Markus said the large number of multiple-family units was placing a strain on the village's tax structure and services. Village officials said there are too many multiple-family units and said they will take steps to limit the number built.

Koepen said he was not as concerned about the number of multiple-family units as he was in finding out how many of them were being rented, as opposed to sold. He believes that owner-occupied units are more desirable than those that are rented.

Markus' latest report shows that of the 4,502 multiple-family units in the village, 2,602, or 57 per cent are rental apartments.

Individually-owned units, such as townhouses, condominiums and quadrominiums, number 1,897, or about 43 per cent of the multiple-family units.

WHEELING HAS 820 townhouses, which represents about 18 per cent of the multiple-family units or about 11 per cent of the total dwelling units in the village.

The 543 condominiums make up about 13 per cent of the multiple-family units or about 8 per cent of the total village housing.

Quadrominiums, which number 532, represent about 12 per cent of the multiple-family units or about 7 per cent of the village's housing.

Most of Wheeling's multiple-family development has taken place in the last few years. Recent development trends are in sharp contrast with the village master plan which when adopted in 1965 foresaw the village as primarily a community of single-family homes.

THE PLAN, however, did note the need for some multiple-family housing, which at the time made up only 14 per cent of the total dwelling units in the village. About 87 per cent of the homes were owner-occupied.

The number of single-family homes being built in Wheeling has been steadily decreasing for the last six years, with none constructed in 1973 or 1974.

Although village officials plan to encourage single-family development, Village Pres. Ted Scanlon said there is little they can do if property already is zoned for multiple-family housing.

Officials have blamed skyrocketing construction costs for the recent rise in multiple-family housing.

Lake County college vote opposed by village board

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has decided to oppose the assignment of High School Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County junior college district in the upcoming referendum.

Voters in Dist. 125, which takes in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, will decide in the Sept. 23 election whether or not the high school district will be assigned to the College of Lake County.

Trustees said at Tuesday's village board meeting that students in Dist. 125 should have the right to decide whether they will attend the Lake County school or Harper College in Palatine.

Until now, Dist. 125 was not part of any junior college district and students had the option of attending a junior college of their choice.

The Illinois Community College Board earlier this year assigned Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County. The referendum was scheduled following protests by Buffalo Grove and some district residents.

If 51 per cent of the voters indicate they do not want to be in the College of Lake County District, the high school district once again will not be a part of any junior college district.

Although some residents would like to see Dist. 125 put in the Harper College district, the upcoming referendum will not decide that question.

In the past, Buffalo Grove officials have supported that action, saying that making the village part of just one junior college district would "create unity."

Village board wrapup

Winston Square's 2nd phase OKd

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Tuesday approved final plans for the second phase of the Centex Winston Square development on property east of Welland Road north of the Lake-Cook county line.

The action came after Centex representatives presented a set of revised plans for the 140 housing units to be built as the second part of the development. The 57-acre development ultimately will contain 420 units.

Trustees warned however they would revoke building permits if Centex officials did not heed village recommendations on such matters as flood control and providing adequate drainage.

Forest Preserve plan set

Village trustees approved an agreement with the Lake County Forest Preserve District for maintenance of the Buffalo Creek forest preserve area at the corner of Checker and Arlington Heights roads.

Under the arrangement, Buffalo Grove will maintain a 70-acre retention basin area while the Lake County forest preserves will assume upkeep of the surrounding property.

Currently, the land is privately owned, but should be acquired through eminent domain by the Lake County board.

Trustee Clarice Rech said the planned retention pond will help provide flood control for Buffalo Grove and surrounding communities.

Glendale Rd. parking banned

Parking will be prohibited along the east side of Glendale Road at Bernard Drive. Trustees concurred with a recommendation by the police department to ban parking.

Bugner farm decision delayed

The board deferred action on a resolution opposing a developer's request to rezone the Bugner farm property on Welland Road south of Busch Road in unincorporated Lake County, but asked that the resolution be rewritten before a final vote, probably next week.

Board members are against the rezoning request which would allow the Chesterfield Development Corp., to build 464 townhouses on the site.

Trustees have raised a number of objections to the proposed development based on problems like overcrowding of schools they believe would stem from the development.

The Chesterfield request is pending before the Lake County Board.

Two appointments told

Two local residents were named to serve on the village environmental control commission and the zoning board of appeals.

Laurence Frishman, 432 Springside Ln., was appointed to the environmental group. Frishman succeeds James Behymer who recently resigned from the post.

Herman Heffer, 941 Dunham Ln., was named to the zoning board of appeals.

'Respect Life Week' set

The week of Oct. 7 to 14 will be "Respect Life Week" in Buffalo Grove.

The proclamation, sponsored by various Illinois religious groups asks, "each and every citizen to examine in the privacy of his own conscience what he or she can do to show a deeper respect for life."

Clarice Rech, one of two trustees who voted against the measure, however, said it was not within the jurisdiction of the village board to issue such a proclamation.

Public purchase only way to save open space

Preservation of the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space was the main concern Wednesday night as six area legislators met with Prospect Heights residents.

State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, and State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, disagreed over whether lowering the tax assessment of the golf course, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township, would keep the course open.

Porter said he believed some kind of tax relief "really is not the answer." Even if there were no tax on the golf course, Porter said, the incentive of increased profits through development would be so great it probably could not be resisted.

PUBLIC PURCHASE of threatened open space, such as Rob Roy, is "the only solution," Porter said.

Juckett said he feels a tax incentive would help and he plans to introduce a bill into the Illinois General Assembly under which golf courses would be assessed at their actual use rather than the highest use of the land. He added he felt there would not be "any trouble" in passing such a bill.

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Willmette, said there has been a lack of local action toward purchasing Rob Roy. "Nobody has really done anything in the past year to enable us (the legislators) to help," he said.

Duff suggested that the River Trails and Prospect Heights park districts conduct referenda of about $2 million each, with the funds used to purchase half of the golf course.

KENROY INC., Skokie, has offered to sell the 18-hole course if its petition to rezone the remaining half of the 200-acre site for apartments and condominiums is approved by the Village of Mount Prospect. The village's zoning board of appeals has recommended denial of the request, which is pending before the village board.

Another suggestion, backed by State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, was that the county forest preserve district be urged to purchase the property for the use of all county residents. Forest preserve officials have stated previously that the district would not buy the golf course because it is too small and costly, not adjacent to other forest preserve property and not needed, because the district is building a golf course in Palatine Township.

Francine Stein, a surrogate for absent Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, said the federal government has indicated federal money would be available for a multi-purpose recreational land purchase, such as playground equipment, pools and facilities for senior citizens, but not just for a golf course.

A brief moment of political antagonism arose when Juckett threatened to walk out of the meeting if Miss Stein were permitted to represent Jaffe at the speaker's table. Juckett said only legislators themselves should be at the table. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., which sponsored the meeting, agreed. Miss Stein sat in the audience and Juckett resumed his seat.

Inspections slated at 4 high schools

Four High School Dist. 214 schools will be evaluated by the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools in April, 1975.

Chairmen of the visitation teams from North Central have been announced for Elk Grove, Prospect, Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools.

Schools are evaluated generally every seven years. The most recent visit by the association came in 1968 at Arlington, Elk Grove, Forest View, Wheeling and Prospect high schools.

NICHOLAS MANNOS, Niles West High School principal, will be chairman of the NCA visitation committee at Elk Grove High School. Elk Grove science teacher John Peters will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Len Szudy, assistant superintendent for the West Allis Public Schools in West Allis, Wis., will chair the visitation committee at Forest View High School. Burton Showers, director of student activities, will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Chairman of the Prospect High School visitation committee will be David Cox, principal of New Trier West High School. John Kleinschmidt, social science teacher at Prospect, will chair the steering committee.

GILBERT R. WELDY, Niles North High School principal, will chair the committee visiting Rolling Meadows High School. The schools' social science foreign language division head, Thomas Rife, is chairman of the steering committee.

Along with the 20 to 30 representatives on each visitation team, representatives from the Office of the Superintendent for Public Instruction also will be visiting.

More than 700 colleges and universities and 4,044 secondary schools in 19 states are members of the NCA.

The remaining four Dist. 214 schools, Arlington, Buffalo Grove, Hersey and Wheeling High Schools, will be visited by NCA teams in spring 1976.

Woman, 75, crossing road hit by car

A 75-year-old Wheeling woman was struck by a car Wednesday as she was crossing Old McHenry Road near Whiplash Drive in Wheeling.

Mary Cuklin, of the Adolorata Villa on Old McHenry Road, was admitted to Holy Family Hospital and reported in good condition late Wednesday.

Fire department officials said the woman suffered head wounds in the 9:30 a.m. accident. Wheeling police had no further details late Wednesday.

8-month delay in Wickes extortion

The government statement said "it is unknown what happened to the $50,000 after it was given to Phillips" and that "it is unknown whether either was in a position to control or influence the actions of any government body."

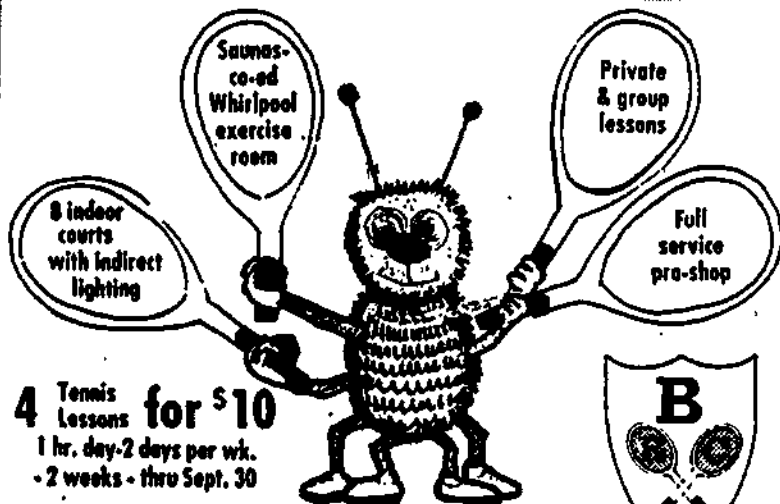

AN I-2 ZONING variation for 32 acres of Wickes land was approved by the Wheeling Village Board Jan. 24, 1972.

A trial date in the Wickes case will be set Sept. 23. Phillips and Collitz have pleaded innocent to the charges against them.

Mount Prospect man could win $300,000

A Mount Prospect man is eligible to win $300,000 in today's Bonanza drawing in the Illinois Lottery.

Richard J. Plocinski, 66 N. Albert St., is one of 29 qualifiers vying for $458,000 in prizes at ceremonies in the Lakehurst Shopping Center, Waukegan. The special drawing will follow the regular weekly drawing at 10:30 a.m.

Gov. Daniel Walker will present the super winner with $20,000, the first of 15 installments to be made every Sept. 12 until 1988. One $50,000 prize will be given, as well as nine $10,000 prizes. The remaining qualifiers will each receive a check for $1,000.

The drawing will be attended by several local dignitaries, including Waukegan Mayor Robert Sabonian, and coincides with Derby Day festivities marking the third anniversary of the shopping center at Ill. Rte. 120 and Waukegan Road.

No extension on tax bill payments

The Cook County Treasurer's office Wednesday denied rumors that the deadline for payment of county property tax bills had been extended.

A 1 per cent penalty per month will be charged on any bill that is not paid in person Monday or before at the County Building in Chicago.

Payments that are mailed in must be postmarked by midnight on Monday to avoid penalty, county officials warn.

By state law tax bills are due Aug. 1, but because of a fight over the state's tax assessment multiplier this year the deadline was extended until Sept. 16.

Christian renewal seminar set

A Christian renewal seminar to help people find "Stability in a Changing World" will be held Sept. 19-21 at the Holiday Inn, Elk Grove Village.

Featured at the seminar from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. each day will be Derek Prince, author, lecturer and Bible teacher; Harry Greenwood, English evangelist, and Andrew Culverwell, composer and singer. The seminar is sponsored by the Maranatha Fellowship, a group of Christian believers who seek to express Christianity as it was experienced in the early days.

Prince, born and educated in Great Britain, has written many books on the Bible. Since World War II, he has devoted his life to the study and teaching of the Bible.

Greenwood, from South Chard, England, has been a pastor, teacher and now an Evangelist. He has traveled throughout the world practicing his ministry.

Culverwell, troubadour from South Card, England, composes and sings songs to the Lord. His records have been played on Chicago area stations.

The seminars are free to the public although donations will be accepted.

Busy month for the Sisterhood

The Sisterhood of the Temple B'nai Jehoshua Elohim, of Glenview, will sponsor the "Cross Town Caper," a treasure hunt, at 8 p.m. Sept. 28.

The hunt will begin at Edens Plaza, Wilmette. All participants will need a flashlight, paper and pencil, a north suburban phone directory, and a large handkerchief.

A late-night supper at an undisclosed location also is included in the admission donation.

For information call Zena Singer, 498-4680, or Roberta Krollick, 498-3128, both of Northbrook.

The Sisterhood also will hold its first general meeting of the 1974-75 season at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 2 at the Temple Hall. Featured speaker will be Rabbi Mark Shapiro.

The Sisterhood plans a trip to the Spertus Museum in place of its November meeting.

12 join St. Viator staff

Ten full-time and two part-time educators joined the staff of St. Viator High School this fall.

Full-time faculty members include Liene Peterson, formerly of the University of Illinois, Circle Campus, who will teach German; Ernest Buchanan, a St. Viator graduate who taught at Barrington Middle School and will teach business and U. S. history; John Voyles, formerly of Detroit, who will teach religion; and Brother Michael Steiber, a biology teacher completing his doctorate degree at the University of Maryland.

First year teachers new to St. Viator include Francis Coady, mathematics; Gerald Kowalczyk, mathematics; Marilyn Pratt, mathematics; Carol Anderson, English; Michael Landauer, English; and Harry Baranowski, social studies. Part-time staff members are Ellen Germanos, world history and typing, and Tony Pelouse, who will direct bands and orchestra.

Dropout rates: a sore subject

One of the least popular subjects with teachers, school principals and other officials in charge of the day-to-day operation of schools is the subject of the school dropout.

Dropouts, however, make fascinating and popular subjects for professors of education and all sorts of other experts who are not involved daily with schools.

The reason the subject is so popular with the academic types is that they find it easy to make the unquestioned assumption that every dropout is the result of the failure of teachers, principals and others who run the schools. And we all know how easy it is to propose solutions to people who run things if we don't have to run them ourselves.

Local school officials don't help the situation much, either, by behaving as though talking about school dropouts is some kind of crime. Gullibly they avoid the subject, or try to ignore it, or otherwise behave as though they are ashamed of themselves.

THESE MUSINGS are prompted by a recent study conducted by Cook County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office on the number of dropouts in suburban high schools. The study found that the average percentage of dropouts for all of suburban Cook County is 3.36 per cent. Here in the Northwest suburbs, the averages for local high school districts ranged from 2.31 to 3.45 per cent.

Those numbers don't look too bad at first, and even second, glance. Even when you realize that the numbers may not be absolutely accurate because of errors in reporting or different ways school districts count different students, they look good.

But the numbers immediately raise two questions. Are the numbers, low as they are, indications that our schools are failing several hundred students every year? And is there anything the schools can do to reduce the number of dropouts?

When we approach these questions, let's remember that 2 and 3 per cent dropout rates are nothing like the 10, 15 and 20 per cent dropout rates reported by some schools in Chicago. The latter rates usually indicate a situation aggravated by economics, social conditions and failures of all kinds in the schools.

BUT THE QUESTION really has to be whether officials in Martwick's office are right when they say the dropout rates in the suburbs show the need for alternative education programs and indicate that the schools aren't doing enough for their students.

Too often, school officials answer that question by being defensive. They may point out that some of the students who drop out of school drop back in after six months or a year. Or they may make lists of how many programs they offer for students. Or they may just look irritated when officials like Martwick make pronouncements about the failures of schools.

In recent years, many people have been so busy proposing reform of school systems that they may have forgotten the simple idea that sometimes students can fail just as schools can fail.

In addition, some school reformers, in their zeal to prevent school dropouts, forget that learning doesn't stop when a student leaves school. In some cases, perhaps especially in our affluent suburbs, a student may learn just as much by not going to school for a year as he would learn in school. Particularly, he may learn that school, for all its faults, is not such a bad place.

It also is true, of course, that every school in the United States needs to change. Students and teachers sometimes get caught up in trivia; rules are sometimes arbitrary and meaningless. Alternatives to ordinary classrooms are important for many students and, slowly in some places and more quickly in others, they are being offered.

WHAT ALL THIS probably means is that local school officials should not be defensive about dropout statistics. Instead, they should look at them for signs of failure in their schools while realizing that every dropout is not necessarily, by definition, a failure on the part of the schools.

Now, as I write that, I can anticipate that someone is going to say I'm encouraging school officials to be complacent.

The only problem with that argument is that sometimes I get the feeling that so many educators are busy being defensive about things like dropout rates that very little change actually is taking place. I'm not proposing complacency, just a little perspective.

Car stalls? Call the feds

An investigation of timing gear failure in automobile engines can be speeded up if motorists will write to the U.S. Dept. of Transportation about such incidents, says the Chicago Motor Club.

Timing gears control spark and valve timing in an engine, and failure can mean stalling in traffic or in a dangerous situation. The motor club said the failure is similar to running out of gas or having ignition failure.

The government is seeking information as a standard to determine if new performance requirements should be imposed on manufacturers of the gears and auto engines. To report an experience with timing gear failure, the National Highway Safety Administration needs: owner's name and address, make, model and serial number of the car; engine and transmission combination (size and type); mileage at time of failure and any safety hazard that resulted from the failure.

Send reports to the Office of Consumer Affairs (N40-41), National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, U.S. Dept. of Transportation, 400 Seventh St., S.W., Washington, D.C., 20590.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

'Aces' liked aces and kings

From 1933 until Oswald Jacoby quit bridge for the duration on Dec. 7, 1941, his team, the Four Aces, dominated bridge. One of their most interesting contributions to bidding was their rule of "The ace and the king."

According to this rule if your partner made a game forcing or other very strong bid and you could take an ace and a king out of your hand and still have your previous bids you should bid a slam. If you held a singleton and could take away a king (or held no singleton, but could take away an ace) you should suggest a slam.

South would have responded one spade without the king of hearts and ace of diamonds. Hence, when North jumped to three spades, South is able to bid a slam in accordance with this rule.

He uses Blackwood because it is just possible that North would have a hand without an ace. North shows up with the two missing aces, but South does not bother with trying for a grand slam because he has nothing above the extra ace and king.

Of course, he might have asked for kings and then settled for six or he might even have bid seven. Shift the king of spades over to East and seven wheels in.

'Project da Vinci' Oct. 12

Scientists in Texas will take to the sky in a helium-filled balloon to study the characteristics of a pocket of air as it moves across the countryside.

Dubbed "Project da Vinci," the Oct. 12 flight is aimed at collecting data on ozone levels, electrical fields, temperature, humidity, gravity waves, particles and sulphur dioxide pollution at altitudes between 4,000 and 14,000 feet above sea level.

Sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission, the National Geographic Society, and the Department of the Army's Atmospheric Sciences Laboratory, the flight will study the levels of air most critical of man's activities. Air at those levels controls how far pollution is carried from its source, where inversions which trap pollution at breathing levels are created and where regional air circulation takes place.

New endangered species list

What do African gorillas, southern bald eagles and blue whales have in common?

They're all on a new endangered species list published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The list, included in a new publication entitled "United States List of Endangered Fauna," includes 169 birds, 164 mammals, 39 fishes, 28 reptiles and 6 amphibians. Copies are available by writing Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Office of Endangered Species, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Air cargo lines boom as O'Hare sets the pace

by STEVE FORSYTH

There are no lights behind the long rows of windows on the fat body of the Boeing 747 jet taxiing to the southeast corner of O'Hare Airport. No anxious faces look out for some sign of welcoming relatives or friends.

The jet is a cargo carrier, operating under the stealth of night without the glamor and bustle of a passenger plane. Nighttime in the cargo terminal section of O'Hare is all business, and hundreds of workers labor in the glare of floodlights as yawning doors swallow a diet of auto parts, import items, race horses, prize breeding bulls, and an alphabet list of freight bound for destinations thousands of miles away.

The air cargo industry, prospering in a world where overnight delivery is a realistic promise, will carry almost anything in the vast holds of its airships. Metal, wood or canvas pods known as igloos slide in and out of the planes in minutes in preparation for long flights. Each igloo is shaped to fit the plane, is lightweight and versatile enough for a variety of contents.

THE INDUSTRY has grown from a "seat of the pants" operation after World War II to a major component of world freight transit, with a 500 per cent growth rate between the United States and Europe in the last 10 years. Now the biggest of the jumbos, the 747, is assuming a prominent role in the business.

Flying Tiger Line, one of the largest cargo carriers in the world, this month put into service two 747s on its Asian flights. The corporation's needs may run to eight or 10 of the jumbos by 1978, each

International trade seminar Sept. 19

A jointly sponsored International Trade Seminar will be held Sept. 19 at the Navarone Restaurant, and Supper Club, 1905 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The luncheon-seminar is sponsored by the Assn. of Industry and Commerce of Elk Grove Village and the Dept. of Business and Economic Development.

Participants will be charged $5 for the day's activities, which will include lunch and several speeches. The program begins at 11:45 a.m. carrying 200,000 pounds of freight. The jets carry as much as two of the "stretch" DC-8s currently in use, and use 32 per cent less fuel, says Tiger Line executive vice president Joseph J. Healy.

O'Hare is to the air freight industry what the throat of an hourglass is to its sand. Flying Tiger and other lines funnel east coast business to Chicago, reroute it to the West Coast or Asia, and vice versa.

At the Flying Tiger terminals, five planes park on the aprons as igloos are shuffled from one to the other and in and out of the terminal itself. A plane can be loaded in an hour and 15 minutes (1½ hours for the 747) by five men, and the Flying Tiger operation is based on that.

NEARLY 2 BILLION pounds of air freight passed through O'Hare Airport in 1973, exceeding all other United States airports. Cargo is a major share of O'Hare's business, although planes such as this new Boeing 747 purchased by Flying Tiger Line are seldom seen because they operate primarily at night. The Flying Tiger 747 can carry 200,000 pounds of freight, equalling two DC-8s. The painted teeth are temporary.

A handful of workers occupy the terminal in daylight, but 56 will be on the job as night becomes morning.

AS THE DECENT traveling hours wane, the passenger jets disappear and the runways become populated with freight planes. Chicago and eastern products begin the journey to California, and plane-loads of such things as fresh strawberries from California are among the inbound traffic.

Some 1.8 billion pounds of air cargo passed through O'Hare in 1973, ranking 8 per cent higher than any other United States airport and representing a 150 per cent increase in the past 10 years.

Very little of that cargo stays at O'Hare more than a few hours, because the job of air freight is to keep the parcels moving. One of the top selling points of air freight is its overnight or one-day service. The same service is expected in the handling of air mail. O'Hare Cargo and passenger carriers transport the output of the largest U. S. Postal Service air mail facility, located on airport grounds.

All scheduled airlines at O'Hare have cargo facilities, and five major freight forwarders such as Flying Tiger have separate buildings in the cargo complex. The cargo business is so big at O'Hare that plans are on the books for a huge "Cargo City" across the airfield from the present site. If growth continues at present rates, much better facilities will be needed. Neal Vincent, general manager-Midwest for Flying Tiger, says his firm has a 25 per cent annual growth rate now. Vincent says air freight is a major factor in the world market. United States producers have been able to expand markets by plane that could never be handled by ship, especially to developing nations that can't afford expensive sea-ports. Vincent said air freight plays a significant role in auto production when manufacturing has to be stepped up quickly. It takes a month to program additional parts for assembly plants if delivery is to be by rail or truck. But air-planes can speed the process because the company can expect next day delivery.

THE VERSATILITY OF air freight has ballooned with the introduction of the 747 and other wide-bodied jets. The Flying Tiger 747s, labeled Freight Masters, are virtually flying warehouses, capable of holding 200 head of cattle, 4,000 50-pound boxes of cut flowers or 91 compact cars.

The cruising speed of 575 miles per hour puts the jumbo jets into Tokyo, Japan, 18 hours after takeoff from New York, including ground time at Chicago and at Anchorage, Alaska.

Flying Tiger acquired its 747s from American Airlines, which had used them for passenger service. While the passenger airlines cut back on the big planes because of fuel prices and supply, Healy says of the cargo business, "Current economic conditions have forced industry to sharpen its inventory control skills and improve its capital turnover, thus increasing the demand for air freight capacity."

Des Plaines mayor named to U.S. Bicentennial panel

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel has been named a vice chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors' Committee on the Bicentennial.

The conference has been working with the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration to help plan a meaningful celebration throughout the nation, said San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, president of the conference.

Behrel said he plans to work closely with David Wolf, chairman of the city's Bicentennial commission to plan events for the event.

"This community will be 141 years old in 1978 and I think we have a history that will mean a lot in terms of the Bicentennial," Behrel said.

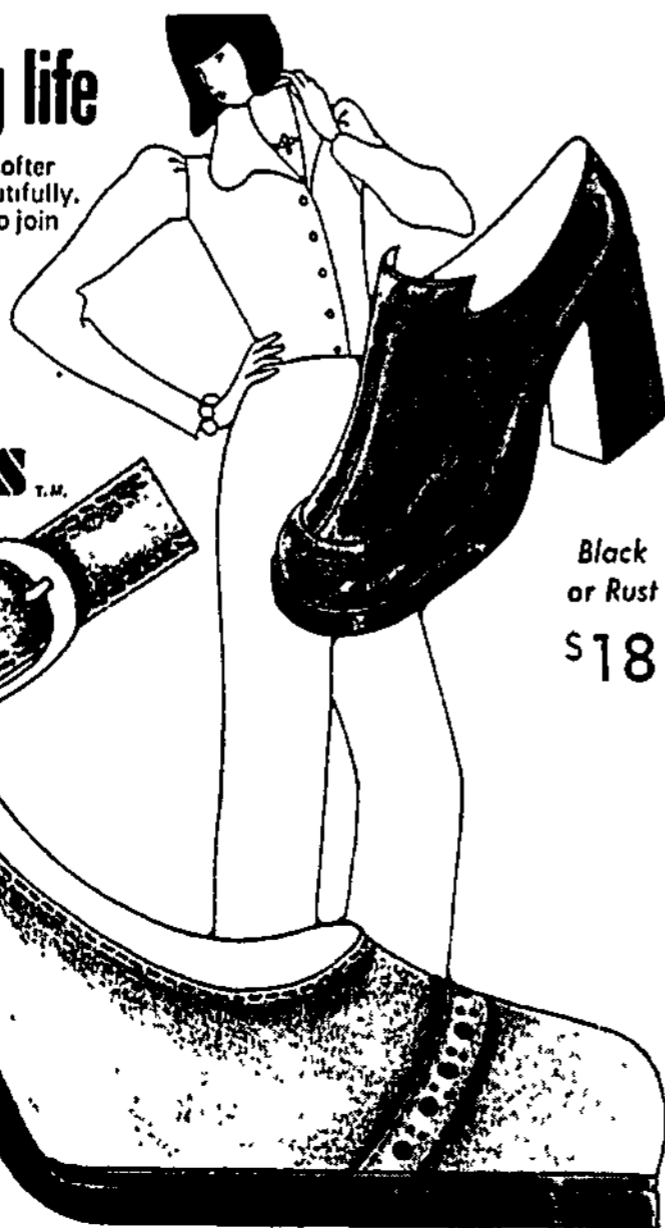

The commission has been working on a number of projects aimed at celebrating the nation's 200th anniversary over the next two years.

The medical answer for 'tennis elbow'

My doctor is an orthopedic surgeon. He told me I have "tennis elbow," technically called tennis elbow. I want to know if he is right. The outer knuckle or knob on my elbow hurts when I grip with my arm completely extended straight.

If I strike this knob against anything it hurts so bad that I almost cry. In a position such as the one I put my arm in to write, my arm goes to sleep. Of course, there are other positions that do the same thing. There is a continuous ache in my elbow joint.

My doctor gives me an injection of corticosteroids about every three months. I'm a pipefitter. He tells me that an operation may not help because manual labor such as my work would probably produce a recurrence.

No doubt your doctor is correct. Tennis elbow can occur whenever the elbow joint is subjected to repeated strain and jarring. With the boom in tennis this condition is being seen with far greater frequency.

Your arm has three main bones: the humerus, between the elbow and the shoulder, and the radius and ulna between the elbow and the hand. The two lower bones are held in place at the elbow hinge joint by a partial capsule of ligaments. These ligaments are attached directly to rough surfaces and knobs on the bones.

THIS JOINT was not made for excessive jarring. As with other joints, if it is used in an unnatural way, it can become injured, setting up an inflammation. A baseball pitcher may develop a "pitcher's elbow" or a ballet dancer damage to her ankles.

The hand can be rotated back and forth by the twisting of the two lower bones. When striking an object, if the elbow joint, bones, and ligaments are not in the right position, it will be more injurious.

You know that if you pick up a club and hold one end while hitting something with the other end you won't feel much of a jar. BUT, hit something about half way along the length of the club and you will feel it.

I suspect your occupation has been a factor in putting a strain on your elbow joint. In the tennis player it is often that backhand. It is important to know if there is any underlying problem that contributes to the disorder. Both gout and arthritis are sometimes a factor. Getting older, apparently with bone changes, is a factor. In fact tennis elbow occurs most often in the older athlete, particularly those who play once a week.

TREATMENT IDEAS vary. Surgery seldom helps. Medicines to relieve pain are often used, that includes cortisone injections, aspirin and other measures. Rest, heat, massage, ultrasound and whirlpool baths are all useful in some cases.

The best approach is to prevent the recurrent injury. Tennis players may rest the arm. Most don't like that solution.

For tennis it is important to learn to do it right. Professionals seldom have this problem, but some do (including both Arthur Ashe and Tony Roche). It often means a poorly controlled backhand.

Exercises to strengthen the forearm muscles, learning the proper grip and hitting the ball correctly remove that abnormal jar to the elbow joint. Then happily, in some instances, the tennis elbow disappears for no good reason but to the satisfaction of everyone involved.

Math students excel

Three Maine North High School mathematicians compiled scores on the 1974 High School Mathematics Contest which placed them eighth in the state of Illinois. The three students are Ed Rother, Norman Maasshoff and Andy Wasynczuk.

Nearly 400 Illinois high schools competed in the test which was sponsored by The Mathematics Assn. of America, the Society of Actuaries, and Mu Theta Alpha. The Maine North mathematics team outscored all other Maine High Schools.

Bob Lahey's column

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

The events which led to the resignation of Gerald F. terHorst as White House press secretary have dealt an early and devastating blow to the credibility of the Ford administration, which started off in such reassuring fashion.

Unfortunately after years of the Lyndon Johnson credibility gap and the Richard Nixon credibility gap, it is necessary to reemphasize the point. It was "the events which led to the resignation" and not the resignation itself which cast doubt on future pronouncements by the White House staff.

Just as Johnson's escalation of the Vietnam war and Nixon's coverup of the Watergate scandal — and not the public reporting of those events — brought down two former presidents, so did the lie told to terHorst bring an abrupt end to the confidence which the press may now place in White House pronouncements.

TerHorst has been circumspect in explaining his resignation. But the circumstances have been explained by the reporter to whom the lie was told through terHorst, but without his knowledge that he was passing on false information.

David Kraslow, Washington bureau chief for Cox Newspapers (publishers of the Atlanta Constitution and other papers in Ohio and Florida) asked terHorst to confirm a report that a White House attorney and Nixon's defense attorney were conferring on the question of a presidential pardon for Nixon.

On assurances of presidential adviser Philip W. Buchen, terHorst told Kraslow that he had the wrong information.

When he learned that he had been the instrument of responding falsely to a legitimate press inquiry, terHorst lost little time in packing up his typewriter and fleeing the White House.

Regardless of the high degree of respect that he earned from those of us who happen to follow the same way of making a living, terHorst performed a public service of some magnitude.

If those who now hold the levers of power in the White House did not learn from the Nixon administration the dangers of practicing deceit on the American public, perhaps they will at least decide that they better not lie to each other.

You just can't be certain that the guy you're talking to doesn't have a spark of honesty in him.

From the enthusiasm with which his colleagues in the Washington press corps had greeted terHorst's White House appointment, I would surmise that none of them were surprised at his reaction to being used as a conduit for a lie to the press, and so to the American people.

Reporters learn early — and usually at the cost of some embarrassment — that a public official who lies to you once will lie to you again. Once a reporter has written a story based on false information from a news source, he is never going to take a chance on that source again — or he will shortly be pursuing a career as a shoe salesman.

The fact that Gerald terHorst, in his first test in the White House, proved that he is a man of integrity does not mean everybody in the press wears a white hat.

It is, however, another piece of evidence that there is a higher incidence of devotion to candor among professional journalists than among politicians, elected and otherwise.

Journalists recognize that all too often publicly agents for public officials are caught in the dilemma between telling what they know and telling what their bosses want them to tell.

Those who fail to solve that dilemma and deliver straight information quickly become identified as "flacks," which is not a term of endearment.

The one thing that has been proven is that Gerald terHorst is no flack, even for the President.

...Nixon faces truth test

by JAMES A. KIDNEY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One day this fall Richard Nixon will probably take the stand in district court to start telling his version of the Watergate coverup, knowing that despite the courtroom dramatics he can face no criminal charges if he tells the truth.

Because he is armed with a full pardon for any possible crimes he may have committed as President against the United States, Nixon cannot incriminate himself by telling the whole truth.

If he lied on the stand, or insisted on the 5th Amendment protection against self-incrimination, the tough-minded presiding judge, John J. Sirica, might hold Nixon in contempt.

The pardon granted Nixon Sunday by President Ford does not free private citizen Nixon of liability for crimes he might commit after leaving office. Therefore, Nixon would be subject to prosecution on a contempt or perjury charge.

The key question now for the defense and prosecution alike in the trial of six men on charges of participating in a cover-up is this: Will a truthful Nixon further implicate the defendants and if so will a jury be sympathetic to six men who might have to pay the legal penalties for acting under the orders of their boss, who will suffer nothing in the eyes of the law.

The consensus among defense lawyers contacted Monday was that the jury will be sympathetic.

"As lay jurors, I think you can't escape the fact that the No. 1 man among the team of top people at the White House got away free. How would you think if you were a juror?" one lawyer said.

If Nixon testified he consciously worked on a cover-up plan and tried to implement it through his key aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, the factual case against those two at least would be stronger.

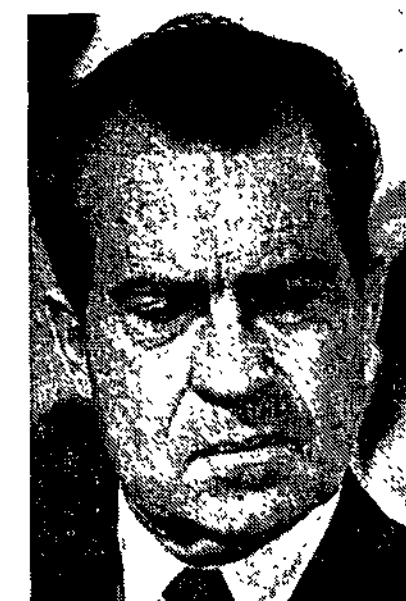

But such testimony would tend to support a defense that all six defendants were acting solely in the belief they were carrying out an important national policy designed by the chief law enforcer in the United States.

Failing that both Sirica and Judge Gerhard Gesell refused to accept such a defense in other Watergate-related trials, the jury might still be lenient if Nixon admits culpability either directly or by reciting his activities since the June, 1972 break-in.

At least one defense lawyer said Monday he thought the pardon would have little effect on a trial expected to last three months. The jurors will be awash with conflicting testimony and may decide the case solely by weighing what they regard as the facts.

None of the defense lawyers contacted expected to request a pardon unless their clients are found guilty.

"My client is innocent and the jury will find him innocent," one attorney said. "I'm not worried about a pardon at all."

She views deaf education

I am the mother of a young deaf adult and I am much interested in everything I read concerning deaf education.

I have made many mistakes concerning the education of my son, but perhaps my biggest mistake was to believe that my son would learn to talk and to lip read and to be part of the hearing world.

I found out the hard way that it is neither the parents nor the teachers who can determine whether the child will be oral or manual; in fact it is entirely up to the child's ability which way to communicate. A deaf child wanting to communicate in his natural way should never be called "lazy."

When — after hard fights from the deaf people themselves and various groups of concerned parents — finally education methods shifted to "total," I was very happy and I envied all the parents of young deaf children, because they now have the opportunity to learn sign language to help their children at home and to gain an insight into the world of the deaf.

I am sure most of us hearing parents have at one time or other experienced a sound failure on the television set, and have we not all lost interest in the program? And have we not found out that everybody is talking way too fast, with some of the actors not moving their mouth when they talk? And are we not all wondering how our deaf children will fare after we are gone? Would we not rather have a happy child in a deaf world, communicating with other deaf people, instead of a child who can say and lip read a few words, but frustrated over misunderstandings in the hearing world and no communication with other deaf?

Who could imagine my surprise at reading about parents who complained about "total communication" and wanting a "dual" method. I always thought "dual" was another word for "two" and "total" was another word for "everything." If I had a young deaf child, I would certainly welcome "total." In "total," a child has a chance to learn the meaning of a word as well as the word itself. The child learns to associate the sign with the word, learns the correct spelling, grammar, position in the construction of a sentence. At a later time, when the child gets old enough to understand his own position in the world, he will determine himself which way is best for him.

Expecting a deaf child to understand spoken English without the help of signing and finger spelling would be the same as to expect a hearing person to be proficient in a foreign language without learning the fundamentals of grammar and vocabulary in that language.

I sincerely hope that all parents of young deaf children will think this thing through and come to the conclusion that "total" is the only way to give their child an equal chance. And after all, to be "equal," isn't that what's it all about?

May I add my reaction to hearing of the incredible condition of a home in a decent neighborhood of Des Plaines?

I can feel only pity for the family who lived at 259-J W. Dover Dr., since normal people could not exist for five years in such unimaginable filth. I have heard that their neighbors tried, in vain, to get some action from our health department. Why were their calls ignored? What excuses do our city officials offer for failing to respond to legitimate complaints of citizens? Perhaps a capable city manager would be the answer to our problem.

At this point, I am embarrassed to sign myself a resident of Des Plaines.

We back Elk Grove furnace action

The Elk Grove Village administration has taken a forthright and necessary to make certain that local residents aren't injured or killed this winter by defective furnaces. This commendable action, spearheaded by some hard-line orders from Village President Charles Zettek, should be a model of municipal decisiveness for other communities to follow.

The problem is that defective furnaces have been installed in many Elk Grove Village homes. The Herald reported the existence of the defective furnaces earlier this year, and officials have been battling among themselves about who's responsible for the problems.

After several months of confusion, the village last week ordered an inspection of the allegedly defective furnaces. If there are furnace code violations, then Centex Homes Corp., the developer of Elk Grove Village, will have to correct the defects and pay for the work out of its own bank account.

What's especially commendable is that Zettek has put the heat on Centex by reminding the company that, if there are building code violations, Centex "will fix them or they will not build another home in Elk Grove Village."

Such a threat is not going to resolve all of the problems which the discovery of the defective furnaces has produced. The village, along with the manufacturer of the furnaces and others, must share the criticism for not moving against these defects at an earlier stage. However, it's never too late to correct a problem, and the village's action against Centex is encouraging, for it means major repair work could start before the furnaces are needed this winter.

It sets a good example for other communities, for it's the kind of decisiveness that just isn't around much any more. Too often community leaders work too closely with developers, and the result is that the public interest is neglected. Zettek's performance took courage, and we commend him.

Police at Harper seek right to bear arms

A young campus police officer working the midnight shift spots an open door at the college library which should be locked. As his job dictates, he stops to check it out. Turning on the light he proceeds down the hall.

Suddenly, out of nowhere comes a blow on the head. If he's lucky, he's knocked unconscious and that's the end of it. If he's not, he might tangle with one or more individuals who may be armed. And, if he's a Harper College police officer, he'll only have a nightstick to defend himself.

One Harper officer who encountered such a situation in the college's library in March of 1970 was lucky. He was knocked unconscious.

FEAR OF SUCH an incident lives on among the Harper officers. They say they no longer believe they can adequately protect themselves or the college community unarmed.

The officers say, that although Harper College is certainly no "jungle," crime statistics at Harper do warrant their being armed. They have presented their case to the Harper administration in a formal grievance, "The Right to Bear Firearms."

The grievance, filed in May by 7 Harper public safety officers, proposed that armed, full-time Harper police officers be armed at all times with .38 caliber pistols inside and outside of campus buildings. The grievance does not ask that cadets enrolled in Harper's law enforcement program be armed.

The officers ask that pistols be worn conspicuously on squad patrol and while directing traffic. They propose wearing firearms conspicuously inside college buildings to avoid disruption of student activities.

THE GRIEVANCE rests in the hands of Harper Pres. Robert Lahti. It was appealed to Lahti after it was denied by William Mann, vice president of business affairs. Lahti has assigned an administrative team to make a study of the ramifications and necessity for firearms.

Mann, who reviews all grievances from the non-teaching staff denied the grievance last month despite a recommendation of approval by Harper's staff grievance committee, it was the first time in Harper's history that a staff grievance was entirely denied.

In a July 9 memo to Lahti, the officers state that although they were each advised of the college's firearm policy before taking the job, "after our training and work experience, it becomes clear that an employee of this college is risking his life in the same manner as any local officer."

Attached to the grievance is a list of more than 40 documented incidents at the school since 1970 which the officers say support the request for firearms. An officer who is the spokesman for the group and has asked to remain anonymous says the officers believe the presence of firearms could be a deterrent to such incidents. "We hope we would never have to bring the guns out of our holsters," he says.

Stories by

AMONG THE INCIDENTS cited by the officers are two cases of students being abducted and taken off campus. One student this summer was reportedly abducted at knife point, while the other in 1973 was reportedly subjected to a homosexual assault after being abducted. A student in the 1973 abduction was arrested by Harper officers after an investigation.

Also documented are 10 reported assaults or batteries against Harper officers in the last four years. Besides the officer who was knocked unconscious in the library in 1970, another officer in 1971 was reportedly attacked during a theft investigation at the college center.

In addition, Harper officers say the campus theft rate has increased 125 per cent over the last year.

Although the Harper officers have the same authority as municipal police, they must rely on the Palatine police, who are armed, to handle any serious offense involving a weapon. It's a slow process, says the spokesman for the Harper officers, because an officer must first radio the college safety office where another radio operator contacts Palatine.

WHEN THE HARPER Board of Trustees, approved police authority for campus officers in 1970 it decided to leave firearm policy to the Harper administration. It has been the administration's unwritten policy since then not to permit campus officers to carry firearms.

"If we're responsible enough to have police authority, we believe we're responsible enough to carry firearms," says the spokesman. "If we're not responsible enough, then we are not responsible enough to arrest and protect. You can't be half a police officer. You can't provide sloppy police protection in good conscience."

Although this is the first time the request for firearms has been filed through formal college grievance procedures, it is not the first time the safety department has requested firearms.

Requests for firearms submitted in 1972 and 1973 by former Harper Chief Joseph Mandarino were denied. In 1972, requests for permission to carry nonlethal weapons such as mace and tear gas were also denied. Permission to carry nightsticks was granted in 1973, but nightsticks are restricted to squad patrol, night patrol and traffic control only. They are not carried in campus buildings during the day.

Because of their previous dealings with the administration on this issue, the spokesman officer says, "Frankly, I don't think we're going to get a fair hearing. Mostly what the administration is afraid of is affecting the college's image, but they won't admit it. The college fosters the idea that when the students come on campus they are not subject to the real world. Just because somebody's going to college doesn't mean they don't commit crimes and are not mentally unbalanced."

IN A MEMO to Harper Police Chief Gordon Wallace July 18, Lahti said the public safety department would have a response from his office no later than Oct. 15, but Lahti said recently the response may be delayed until the end of October or early November.

If Lahti denies the grievance, the officers could appeal the matter to the Harper Board of Trustees. If the matter goes before the board and is denied or unresolved, the officers could file a civil suit and bring the matter to court. The officer spokesman said a civil suit "is a possibility."

Special team studying the issue; Lahti confident right decision will result

The shooting of four students at Kent State University in 1970 is a horror that's still alive in the minds of many Americans, particularly college and university administrators. Harper College administrators say they have pondered that horror often since Harper public safety officers submitted a request for firearms in May.

"After the Kent State thing many institutions reassessed the proposition of arms on campus. Kent State brought a new consciousness on that issue," says Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti. "Armed police on campus is almost a philosophical issue, and that makes it even more complex."

Because the issue of arming campus policemen is so complex, Lahti says the administration "wants to go slow and be judicious" in considering the request.

After the seven full-time members of Harper's public safety department appealed their grievance to Lahti in July, he assigned the matter to an administrative team for study, under the direction of Pat Lewis, director of college relations for the school.

Lahti says the study team will research campus crime incidents, solicit student, faculty and administration opinions and examine campus security departments at other colleges with similar campus environment in Illinois and elsewhere.

"WE'RE NOT GOING to intentionally exclude any potential source of information that could bear directly on making a fair decision," says Lahti. "I feel confident that we'll reach a resolution that will satisfy the academic community and that is what our intent is."

Lahti says he is "entirely neutral" on the firearm issue and that the administrators need to "educate" themselves on the matter before they can reach a decision.

Lahti says he does not want to comment directly on the grievance now because "anything said now might prejudice the case, would not be in the best interest of the campus grievance process and would be premature. We don't want the press to politicize an internal issue."

At a recent meeting with a small group of faculty members, Lahti said he is "neutral" on the issue, but added, "Presently there is no policy to suggest that weapons can be carried on this campus. We'll have to look at this as nonemotionally as possible and agree on a recommendation to the board."

The campus policemen appealed their grievance to Lahti after it was denied by William Mann, vice president of Harper business affairs, who reviews all grievances from non-teaching staff. The grievance proposes the arming of full-time, police academy-trained Harper officers at all times with .38 caliber pistols to be worn conspicuously outside of buildings and concealed inside buildings.

MANN DENIED the grievance in July despite the unanimous recommendation of the Harper staff grievance committee that it be approved. It was the first time Mann denied a staff grievance in its entirety.

Mann says the administration does not "view the individuals of the public safety department" as police officers. They are trained and prepared to move into this role should conditions call for it.

Harper's campus policemen in 1970 were granted the same police authority as city and county police under an Illinois statute adopted in 1969. Since then, it has been the administration's unwritten policy not to permit them to carry guns.

"The whole emphasis here is safety," says Mann. "Our emphasis is prevention of incidents, not pursuit and arrest of criminals. That's why the officers wear blazers and are called a safety department and that's why they have no guns. If anybody can't add that up before they take the job, I would hope we wouldn't hire them."

Mann says apprehension of criminals is "up to the police department of Palatine."

Gordon Wallace, Harper public safety chief, says "Our trust is probably more service-oriented than local police. I think there's probably a different type of incident experience here than in towns around us."

MANN SAYS the most important thing to consider regarding the need for armed campus police is the record of the incidents. "Should the need for additional force such as firearms develop based upon actual experience, I would be the first to recommend that action," he says in his letter of denial to the officers.

Mann also explains that the policy against firearms was never put into writing because that would have prevented the college administration from authorizing firearms for a "short term" emergency situation.

Asked what kinds of incidents at Harper would call for issuing firearms on a short term basis, Mann says, "A major campus disturbance, but I honestly can't think of a reason why that would ever happen now. Several years ago we were living at a different time and it just didn't seem like a formal policy was needed."

Wallace, the man in the middle with obligations to the policemen and the administration, says he does not think it is fair to comment on the grievance at this point.

WALLACE HAS apparently reversed his position regarding the grievance. In May he sent a memo to Robert Hughes, director of Harper's physical plant and the second administrator to review the grievance, which stated, "I cannot in all conscience deny this grievance."

Four days later Wallace sent a second memo to Mann which provides a rationale for denying the grievance. The memo states that it was submitted upon Mann's request.

"Officially I had to deny the grievance because it's a matter of institutional policy," says Wallace. "I think the president's investigation will show whether the present policy should stand or be changed."

In the last paragraph of their grievance the officers state that if permission to carry firearms is, in the end, denied, they would like to be relieved of their police authority and functions and revert back to a security role. Lahti and Mann say reversion to a security department is an alternative that will be considered.

'I'd hate to call a policeman to guard a policeman'

Police chiefs, college security heads split on arms issue

by NANCY NORTH

Local police chiefs and even college security directors are divided on the question of arming Harper College public safety officers. Of five Chicago area community college security directors interviewed, three say they are armed at some time, one says his department is now discussing carrying arms during closing hours and one says his department is not armed.

All state universities in Illinois have armed security officers and other Chicago area schools which have armed security officers include the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, University of Illinois Circle Campus and several Chicago city colleges.

Officers at Triton College in River Grove, Illinois are armed at all times. Triton security Chief George Eckart would not comment on the circumstances under which his department became armed. Eckart says he is "bound up by the rules" and may be called upon to testify in hearings involving the Harper grievance.

POLICE AT COLLEGE of DuPage in Glen Ellyn are not armed at present but the campus police department is now discussing with the college administration the carrying of arms during closing hours. The chief of the College's security department says he would like their officers to be armed for their own protection. He says, because the officers are in uniform, people assume they are armed.

Members of the security department at Prairie State College in Chicago Heights also are armed. The officers there are employed by a private security company with a contract with the college. The college could have contracted for unarmed officers, but requested a contract for armed officers instead. Lt. Robert Colmar of the Prairie State security department says.

Security officers at College of Lake County are not armed full time, but can be when they feel a need, th chief of the college's security department says. The chief cited a recent incident where one of his officers was followed to and from a local bank where he deposited registration money for the college.

"I'd hate to call a policeman to guard a policeman," says the chief. "I think that's ridiculous."

Like campus officers at Harper, Oakton Community College officers have full police powers, but are unarmed. Robert Gihle, chief of Oakton security, says, "The administration and I concur that arms are not necessary in our stage of development."

Gihle says he frowns on carrying arms during school hours because "they're more of a problem than a help." He says he would consider asking to carry arms during closing hours if their crime situation changes when Oakton moves to its permanent campus in Des Plaines. The college is now located on a seven-acre interim campus.

In May seven full-time Harper officers entered a grievance procedure with Harper College administrations in which they asked to be armed at all times with standard police pistols. Presently the officers are allowed to carry nightsticks but not inside campus buildings. The administration is studying the request.

The Harper officers, like most municipal and county police, have completed police basic training courses at state approved police schools, despite the lack of statutory training standards. Their training includes instruction on care and proper use of firearms. Most municipal police departments also require their men to qualify monthly at a practice shooting range, and many also issue written exams.

PALATINE POLICE CHIEF Jerry Bratcher expressed the opinion of many local police chiefs when he says, "I wouldn't quarrel with Harper officers being armed if their standards for firearm training were high enough." By that he says he would hope the Harper officers would set up written exams and monthly shooting qualifications if they begin carrying arms.

Illinois law is specific about the situations for which an officer can use deadly force. Deadly force can be used only when a person who has committed or attempted a felony is trying to escape with use of a deadly weapon or is threatening human life.

Yet, Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case says there is still a high degree of discretion involved in use of a firearm beyond legal specifications. "If you go by a gun alone you're lost," says Case. "A good, quick thinking brain is best."

After hearing a sample of the reported crimes the Harper officers say support their grievance, Case said most were misdemeanors. "You can't use a gun on a misdemeanor," says Case. "In all the incidents related a gun probably wouldn't have been a deterrent."

The Harper officers have said they hope that carrying firearms would have a deterrent effect on crime incidents at Harper.

Case says limiting firearms to nighttime use might be better than carrying them during daylight hours when "There are large concentrations of students on campus. It's better to lose a thief today and catch him another day than to shoot and kill an innocent person."

SHEDDING DIFFERENT light on the issue was Wood Dale Police Chief Joseph Mandarino, former chief of Harper's public safety department. "It's not a matter of crime," says Mandarino. "These men have been given the responsibility and the training. They should be given the proper tools to do their best to protect lives and property. What means does he (a Harper officer) have to stop an individual committing a burglary? The Harper officers are responsible to seven communities to protect that property and, if they have to, effect an arrest."

Mandarino says it is a "cop-out" on the part of the Harper administration to suggest the students might resent it if officers carry guns. "You don't build a wall around Harper and say you won't arrest anyone," he says.

"Not arming them is saying to the students, 'We don't trust these men,'" says Victor Witt, executive secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Police Assn. (IPA). "How can the students respect them?"

"In disarming law enforcement officers, you are deprofessionalizing them," says Witt. "If you want people to respect a law enforcement officer you have to let them be full law enforcement officers."

Witt conceded, however, there may be instances when campus officers should not be armed, such as when they are in classrooms.

WITT SAYS THE IPA will take a stand on arming campus officers anywhere. He says the IPA is prepared to testify in hearings on behalf of the Harper officers, and the IPA legal counsel would represent the officers if necessary.

If the grievance eventually results in hearings before the college board of trustees, representatives from the Illinois Assn. of College and University Security Directors may also testify on behalf of the officers. Kenneth Krakowski, vice president of the association, says he would testify for the officers if he thought their platform "was a proper one."

Krakowski says many colleges and universities in Illinois have armed their police with no problems. Krakowski says most colleges and universities he knows of have more stringent rules on use of firearms than most municipalities.

In their grievance the Harper officers state, "In today's highly mobile and crowded urban setting, colleges are not protected by some invisible barrier which keeps people interested in criminal activity off campus. . . . Campus police officers have to deal with the same type of people that city police encounter."

THE EXTENT to which the officers at Harper College encounter the same kind of criminal activity as local municipal police was a disputed point among the local police chiefs interviewed.

"I doubt very much they experience the same problems as our municipalities, such as going into daily domestic situations where imminent use of a firearm might be a problem," says L. W. Calderwood, Arlington Heights police.

Mandarino says he thinks the Harper officers are exposed to the same problems as local municipalities. He says, although domestic problems between husband and wives, per se do not exist, similar problems between girlfriends and boyfriends do.

"It may be a different set of people, but that doesn't mean they're not going to have violent crimes on campus," says Mandarino.

Sun shocks Chicago Fire with late rally

by MIKE KLEIN

SOLDIER FIELD — Keyed by a fumble recovery from linebacker Chuck Kogut, the Chicago Fire defense stopped Southern California at its goal line early in the fourth period here Wednesday night to retain a 28-15 lead.

The Sun rallied to defeat the Fire, 31-28, on a pass in the closing seconds.

A 21-yard pass from Southern Cal quarterback Tony Adams to wide receiver Terry Lindsey gave the Sun possession at Chicago's one-yard line in that fourth period. Roger Nelsen ran for no gain before Adams swept right and fumbled. The Sun had driven 50 yards.

Leading 21-15 at intermission, coach Jim Spavital's Fire scored the only third period points when Mark Kellar bulled 11 yards, ending a drive that lasted 10 plays and covered 83 yards.

Kellar had three carries for 28 yards on that drive, taking the final handoff from quarterback Virg Carter. It was his second score of the night. Kellar's 108 points leads the WFL individual scoring race.

Southern California took possession to open the third period. Tom Fears' Sun marched from its 41 to Chicago's 21 before Norm Hainlen missed a 39-yard field goal that went wide left.

The Memphis Southmen, who visit here next week, hosted and smashed the previously undefeated Birmingham Americans. Memphis won, 46-7, tightening the WFL Central Division race. In other scores, previously winless Detroit upset Eastern division leading Florida, 15-14, and the Hawaiians beat Houston, 24-17.

The half ended with Chicago's Harry Howard intercepting Tony Adams at the goal line to preserve a 21-15 Fire lead. It was his fifth pass theft. Southern Cal had gotten the ball with nine seconds when Cyril Pinder fumbled after a two-yard pass gain.

It was scoreless after one period, but five touchdowns were on the board at halftime when the Arlingtoners of Arlington Heights entertained the smallest home crowd of six dates.

Poor punting game execution by Southern Cal set up Chicago's first two TDs. A bad snap to Sun kicker Norm Hainlen forced him to scramble on fourth and 21 from his 21. He gained three yards.

Carter connected with James Scott for 23 yards to the Southern Cal one-yard line where Mark Kellar punched it across. That gave the durable Northern Illinois grad 101 points which leads the WFL. The action point try failed.

The Sun went nowhere before Hainlen couldn't handle another high snap and Chicago took over on Southern Cal's 22. Five plays later Carter ran three yards and Chicago led, 14-0.

The Chicago kicker was hurt on the ensuing kickoff and was helped from the field, his right leg limp. The Sun needed just three plays before Adams found Ike Harris wide open on third and one for a 52-yard score. There wasn't a defender within 15 yards.

Walter Rhone returned Marv Roberts' kickoff 15 yards and the Fire had possession at their own 28. It took one play for Carter to find Jack Dolbin on the right sideline. Dolbin, guilty of a key dropped pass plus an offensive interference call in the first period, shook loose of Jim Bowman and covered 72 yards. The Fire followed on its third consecutive action point try but led, 21-8, at 8:11.

HELPING HAND. Glenn Berry of Wheeling prepares to hand off behind the protection of George Raupp (66) while Jack Stanko lead the Forest View charge. Berry and Wildcats finally went the air to strike paydirt but it was to little avail as the Falcons stormed to a 31-7 triumph.

Conquest of Evanston a boost to area football

Lions' significant win sinks oddsmakers

Maybe it's time to call in Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder. Las Vegas' famous oddsmaker might be able to give the Herald sports department some help.

Faced with the toughest 10 opening games within memory, the "Paddock Pigskin Picks" column suffered its greatest, most humiliating weekend. We made 70 predictions; we finished with a disastrous 31-39 record!

And the biggest mistake of all was the St. Viator-Evanston game. Our seven predictions figured out to the most lopsided consensus score of the weekend — Evanston winning 28-9!

According to our calculations, St. Viator's great success against schools of giant schools outside the area was about to end.

Every knows that Evanston is synonymous with winning football. Over the 24 years that Murney Lazier's been its head coach, the Wildcats have rolled up a glittering 119-34-4 record. They always seemed to be in contention for the mythical state title.

St. Viator's football program has also been impressive. A 72-31-4 record since the school began varsity ball. However, the Lions were playing Evanston. And

Paul Logan

Evanston is Evanston, right?

"I didn't want to play as physical a team as Evanston in the opening game," admitted St. Viator head coach Jim Lyne. "But as soon as the game was confirmed (last year), I accepted the challenge."

"It excited the football players when they heard we were going to play Evanston. I don't think they're afraid of anybody."

Still, many schools fear the Wildcats and their statewide reputation. Besides that, it is one of Illinois' largest high schools. With its 4838 enrollment, this Suburban Conference school can draw from approximately 2400 boys.

St. Viator has 1050 boys, only three varsity coaches and no home field. It was the first David vs. Goliath situation of the season, but this time Goliath looked too imposing. The Lions would put up a good fight, but Evanston's powerful team would eventually wear them down.

After St. Viator nearly shut out Evanston, eventually winning 12-6, we realized we had learned our lesson. Giant schools don't scare this team. And it has been that way for three years now, as Lyne was quick to recall:

"I know the last two years we've played and defeated Lane Tech. That's a school of 5000 (5300 to be exact). I don't mean to compare except for the large size."

However, his point is well taken. His Lions defeated two fine Lane teams that came from a student body almost all boys.

Asked the reaction at school, Lyne said that everybody "was pretty excited. It was a big win." But he added that the students began "taking it in stride" soon after the initial reaction.

And why not. St. Viator must quickly forget last Friday with this Friday's equally powerful opponent waiting — Hersey.

It was the feeling of several sports staffers that St. Viator's tremendous win over Evanston showed the rest of the area that Evanston, as well as the other so-called powerhouse schools, can be had. We looked upon the victory as a turning point similar to the showing of Hersey's basketball team last year. Hersey whipped Evanston in the sectional title game and made it downstate.

"I've always believed it," said Joe Gliwa, Hersey's very successful head coach, about being able to compete with the state's best teams. "I think the brand of football played in the Mid-Suburban is as good as any football around. I picked Viator to win or be within a field goal of them."

"I think Murney's admitting that his team was over-rated after the game is sort of copping a plea," continued Gliwa. "He should have admitted it before the game. It sort of takes a little bit of gusto out of the win."

Evanston came into the St. Viator game rated the top team in Chicagoland by one newspaper. And speaking of polls, Gliwa was quick to say that Friday's game with St. Viator "is a critical battle because of the ratings. Recognition for the top-rated team in the area is at stake."

This is what makes prep football so great — it's so unpredictable. Last week we thought it would be Rolling Meadows and Evanston with perfect 1-0 records instead of the reverse. Lyne adds this:

"After all, it's high school football — not the Green Bay Packers. They're just 16,17 and 18-year-old boys."

The Herald prognosticators — keeping that in mind — will try again this week. However, just as last week, this week's non-conference matchups will be tough to tab, too.

We're not alone in that regard. Of the 145 who entered the Herald's "Pick the Winners" football contest, only 54 picked St. Viator. They also realize their mistake, but how about this week choosing between Hersey and St. Viator.

Jimmy "the Greek" might not give any odds. He'd probably say it's just too close to call.

Forest View's golfers triumph by one stroke

by KEITH REINHARD
Golf Editor

Despite a couple of sizzling rounds, Palatine was knocked from the unbeaten Mid-Suburban League golf ranks by a steady shooting Forest View team Wednesday.

The hosting Falcons edged the Pirates 156-157 on their Mount Prospect Country Club course to head up another busy slate of links action. Another MSL bout saw Rolling Meadows trim Elk Grove 169-196 and in non-loop action Conant stopped Niles West 166-169 while Prospect was outlasting Maine West and St. Viator.

Harper was surprised by Elgin, 332-337, in a junior college clash.

Palatine's Scott Grant came up with three birdies while fashioning an even par 35 and teammate Nick Zambale added in a wiffy 36. After that it was Mark Slevers at 40 however and Mike Carroll at 46 while the usually solid Bob Capoun skyrocketed to 47 and saw his score tossed out.

Meanwhile, coach Tim Schaap's View team was headed up by Rick Keyser and Phil Roelofson at 37 while Ron Romack posted a 39 and Mark Thomas a 43. "Conditions weren't really ideal today but we played the ball down and had pretty fair success," the mentor noted.

Rolling Meadows started their league season a day after everyone else but to the cause, could hardly complain about their margin of victory. Scott Burkhardt led the Mustangs with a 40, Dave Munson chipped in a 41, Mike Stroben a 43 and Mike Mills a 45.

For the Grenadiers, still in quest of their first MSL win after three matches, it was Mike Kwon at 46, Mike Branigan and Mike Christiansen at 48 and Tony Saltarski at 54.

A 36 by Craig Ridley sparked Prospect to a 154 total to turn back visiting Maine West at 169 and St. Viator at 161. Scott and Steve Spielman each added a 39 to the Knight cause and Pete Lund had a 40.

The Warriors had a 37 from Scott Kisten, a 39 from Bill Bucher, a 41 from Jim Kossick and a 42 from Mike Hoepfner. For the Lions it was Greg Kay and Tom Hermanson coming in at 39, Mike Fitton adding a 41 and Mike Allare and Tim Brennan posting 42s.

Conant upped their overall mark to 6-1 by easing past hosting Niles. Joe Kuzik carded a 37 and Jim Martin added a 41, Al Astroski a 43 and Rick Fleming a 45.

No one broke 80 at Palatine Hills Wednesday while the Hawks were succumbing to Elgin to see their record even off at 1-1. For hosting Harper it was Rick Reed and Tom McEerney notching 81s, Brian Brown an 86 and Steve Loughman an 89.

In frosh-soph action it was Forest View over Palatine 176-192, Meadows over Elk Grove 181-226, Niles West over Conant 183-205 and Prospect at 164 over Viator at 165 and Maine West at 186.

12 teams open tennis action in Mid-Suburban

All the Mid-Suburban Conference tennis teams will be in action this afternoon but Buffalo Grove as the girls take to the courts.

Defending MSC champion Arlington will entertain Rolling Meadows. Palatine will be at Hersey. Prospect at Wheeling. Forest View at Conant. Fremd at Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove at Schaumburg. Buffalo Grove has a bye.

All the meets will begin at 4:30 p.m. Of these opening meets, the results will not count toward the conference standings for the following schools — Arlington, Elk Grove, Forest View, Fremd and Prospect.

There are three singles and four doubles matches. Each match win is worth one point and a bonus point is earned by the winning team.

Arlington finished the '73 season with a combined (duals and league meet) point total of 82. Prospect was second with 65. The top two were followed by Fremd (49), Palatine (45), Forest View (43), Rolling Meadows (40), Wheeling (37), Hersey (30), Conant (20), Elk Grove (20), Hoffman Estates (15), Schaumburg (13) and Buffalo Grove (7).

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling will host the conference meet the weekend of Oct. 11-12. The district meets will be on Oct. 19 with the state meet, again held at Arlington, on Oct. 25-26.

Archery season begins for Mid-Suburban girls

Two of last year's powers in the Mid-Suburban Conference — Arlington and Prospect — will meet this afternoon in the archery league opener for girls.

Arlington, the conference champion with 199 points out of a possible 207 last year, will be at Prospect, third-place finisher with 115 points.

Also in action will be Palatine at Hersey, Forest View at Conant and Elk Grove at Schaumburg. All meets will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Forest View, which didn't meet Arlington in a dual meet last year, was the conference runner-up with 133 points.

The rest of the teams finished like this in '73 — Palatine in fourth (80), Conant in fifth (74), Schaumburg in sixth (71), Fremd in seventh (70), Hersey in eighth (53), Elk Grove in ninth (37) and Wheeling in 10th (20).

Points are accumulated this way — 10 girls shoot at different distances, first 20 and then 30 yards. Thirty-six arrows are shot at each distance. Each girl can earn two points for her team with the winning team earning a bonus of one point for a possible perfect total of 21.

Striking Lanes hits 2759, wins five in Classic play

by GENE KIRKHAM

Bowling alongside the Paddock Men's League at Beverly Lanes, the Striking Lanes team rolled the high team series for the ladies Classic with games of 942, 921, and 895 for a 2759 and a five point win over Des Plaines Lanes.

Des Plaines Lanes was never out of the match as they rolled 984, 904, and 864 for a 2752 series, winning two points with the first game 984.

All five Striking Lanes bowlers were 500 or better as Betty Brelle had 201 and 575, Alice Schroder had 561, Lu Schoenberger had 556, Judy Brummond had 201 and 547, and Eunice Whitmore had 520.

Bobbe Kostelny led the league and her team with 245, 186, 168 and a 599 series for Des Plaines Lanes. Bonnie Kuhn added 215 and 573, Winnie Lohse had a 214 game and a 555 series, and Ann Neumann had 530.

As in the Paddock men's league five points remained the magic number all the way as no one team jumped off to a big lead.

L - Tran won five of seven from Ten Pin Bowl as they scored 904 and 910 to win the last two games and the series with 2680.

Stjernberg rolls 280 Classic game

by GENE KIRKHAM

Beverly Lanes hosted the Paddock Classic Traveling League on opening night.

Five points was the magic number as no team was able to do better than that.

Teddy's Liquors ran the high team game and team total with 2944 and 1003. Mike Wagner led his newly sponsored team with 236, 209, and 179 for a 624 series as they won five points from Sullivan Pontiac.

Sullivan Pontiac was led by Les Zikes with 595 which included a 212 game. Sullivan won the final by defeating Teddy's 950 to 945 in the final game.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware won five points over Arnie Yusim Chevrolet as Tom Kouras led the league in individual scoring with games of 226, 189 and 234 for a 649 series.

Rich Carpenter added 221, 191, and 197 for a 609 series while Ron Garr rolled 247, 593. Des Plaines Ace Hardware totaled 2014 with 987, 973, and 954. Arnie Yusim won two points with a 999 second game as Carl Mackerer led his team with 174, 225, and 201 for a 600 even series.

Kole Realty won five points as Roy Ischer rolled 225, 186, and 218 for a 629 series. Formco Metal Products garnered two points from Kole with a big 1044 second game which featured Barry Stjernberg's exciting 280 game which with 187 and 177 gave him a 644 series for the night.

Nameless Five won five of seven points from Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows with 909 and 944 while Fair Lanes won the second game. Larry Ambrose rolled 232, 208, and 190 to lead the Nameless Five team with a 630 series.

Seven 600 or better scores gave the Paddock Classic a fine opening night as the league showed its usual strength and consistency.

Tri-City women capture Intersuburban golf title

Tri-City Womens Golf League, playing out of the Mount Prospect Country Club has won the 1974 Intersuburban League Championship.

The Intersuburban League is comprised of 24 teams representing golf clubs in the Northern, Southern, Eastern and Western suburbs outside the Chicago area.

Tri-City's Ann Caldini, Flo Coleman, Madge Donchess, Bonnie Fox, Paula Heinz, Sue Lesh, Irene Pinkos, Ginger Roelofson, Fern Rowe, Nancy Tank and Arline Wohlford won the Western Division championship before capturing the Intersuburban League title in the playoffs.

Playoffs between the division champions, with teams of six, took place Sept. 6 at the Countryside Golf Club, Mund-lein. Mount Prospect players defeated two-time league champions from the McHenry Country Club and other division champions from Village Links, Glen Ellyn and Glenview Park in 4-Ball Match Play. Each player played three distinct matches against respective division opponents.

Tri-City's winning point total was 180 with Paula Heinz of Mount Prospect demolishing her opposition by winning 36½ points out of a possible 54 for championship honors. Teammates Fern Rowe, Tri-City's top average point-getter for the season, Capt. Irene Pinkos, Bonnie Fox, Ann Caldini and Nancy Tank were also equal to the test of the 6,545 yard Countryside Golf Course and the pressure-packed playoffs. Each totalled one half or better of all possible points to help clinch the championship.

Los Angeles' most famous restaurant is now located in Chicago.

You'll find Lawry's The Prime Rib at 100 E. Ontario St. They're serving their famous one and only entree—fantastic prime ribs of beef with all the fixings. Carved to order at your table.

Now you don't have to fly to Los Angeles for "the greatest meal in America."

Loughman fires 69 in Hawk win

Freshman Steve Loughman fired a sub-par 69 and his Harper teammates waltzed to a season opening golf victory over Oakton Monday afternoon.

The Hawks totaled out at 238, outdistancing their hosts by 40 strokes over the par 70 Rob Roy layout. Coming in right behind Loughman was another frosh, Tom McEnerney, at 72.

Rounding out Harper scoring were Nick Reed at 74 and Brian Brown at 80. The Hawks' first home meet is slated for Wednesday afternoon against Elgin.

Ventresca records 66 to take links honors

Bill Ventresca, the head pro at Rolling Green Country Club and a high finisher at the Illinois Open held there earlier this summer, broke into the winner's circle at the Illinois PGA Championship this week.

Standing 5-5 against the 4,850-yard Knollwood Country Club course Tuesday, Ventresca proved little guys had enough to win as he came out of the pack with a six under par 66.

Ventresca caught and passed second round leader Garry Hopkins, of Highland Park, and his 64 hole total of 212 edged the second place Hopkins by three strokes.

Hopkins had seemed well on his way to winning the whole thing as he led the field by three strokes after two rounds. Ventresca's chances for winning seemed even thinner as he was five strokes behind the leader.

The tournament was still within winning distance for several players as late as the 14th hole when Ventresca put on a four hole golf exhibition that swept aside all contenders.

Opening his surge with an eagle two on the 395-yard 15th hole, Ventresca followed with back to back birdies and a par on the final hole.

Ventresca fashioned the birdie with a 90-yard chip shot that fell into the cup on the fly. His birdies on the 16th and 17th came after dropping putts of three and 15 feet.

But Ventresca felt his round was saved by his chip shots.

"I missed five greens today and saved par every time," he said. "I chipped the ball as good as I ever have."

Falcon runners impressive

Forest View's harriers swept a non-conference double dual meet on their home course Tuesday, whipping Crown, 15-30, and Notre Dame, 22-37.

Pacing the Falcons of coach Bill Mohrmann was sophomore Darryl Robinson, who captured his second straight victory this week. Robinson's time was 14:34 over the 2.75-mile course.

Mike Ham of Forest View was second in 15:04 and teammate Tony Hess was fifth. Other Falcons in the top 12 were Steve Schellenberger (6th), Steve Hilliger (8th), Fred Grunewald (9th), Tim Blechl (10th), and Kurt Long (12th).

"I'm really impressed with Ham and Schellenberger," said Mohrmann. "It was their best running of the season."

Mohrmann hasn't been expecting too much from Schellenberger, a sprinter and middle distance runner during the track season. The junior went out for cross country just to keep in shape, but his times have been steadily improving.

At Dundee Tuesday, Schaumbur's harriers made it look easy with a 15-45 victory over the hosting Cardinals. Jim MacNider's runners chewed up the short, 2.1-mile course, taking the first six spots.

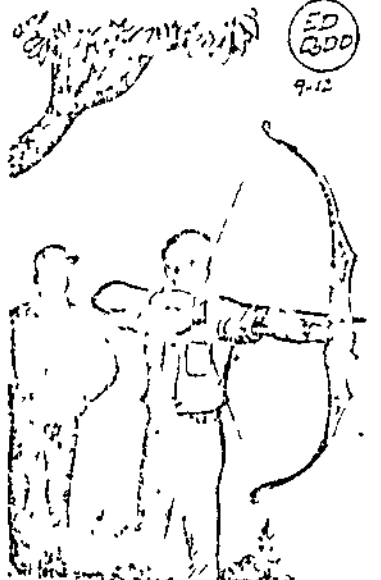

Mike Palmer won the race in 11:07 followed by Mike Hommowum, Bob Solik, Mark Glabinski, Steve Peterson and Tom de St. Aubin.

Buffalo Grove traveled to Melleney and came away with a split, losing 17-12 to the host team but topping Lake Zurich, 15-30, in a shutout.

Randy Lane, third overall, finished the 3 mile course ahead of all his Blon teammates in 17:19. Then came Jeff Schuster (8th), Mark Wilhelm (9th), Steve Wellbank (10th), and Tim Foley (11th).

David Janssen's 'Harry O': pedestrian cops-and-robbers

NEW YORK — Aside from avocados and oranges, tired detectives may be one of the chief commodities of Southern California.

There have been the Sam Spades, the Phillip Marlowes, and only recently Jack Nicholson played J. J. Gittes in the much acclaimed film, "Chinatown."

At their best these fictionalized crime-fighters entertain and evoke the mood and decadence of Southern California. They are the private eyes, the gumshoes, the dicks. All of them are loners — cynics, who like the heroes of Camus continue to live because they have nothing else to do.

They are the existential man of the philosophers.

TONIGHT at 9 p.m. ABC-TV rolls out its version of this genre, "Harry O," starring David Janssen, the old warhorse of "The Fugitive" and "Richard Diamond, Detective."

Harry O — The O is for Orwell — is a private investigator who lives on a medical disability from the San Diego Police Force. He still has a bullet in his back and bolsters his pension by taking freelance cases.

In the premiere episode, titled "Gertrude," a flaky girl sells all her possessions so she can hire Mr. O. to find her lost brother. In the process Harry gets caught in a web of naval intelligence and diamond theft.

Janssen's portrayal of Harry is vaguely reminiscent of the best California detectives because of the props he uses — the loosened tie, the slouchy clothes, the hungry look. He even takes a bus and borrows a beat-up Volkswagen for effect.

Otherwise his performance will not haunt you or make you think about the tragedy of life. It is simply a workmanlike cops-and-robbers portrayal. But it is a cut above Mannix and Cannon.

EARLIER in the evening, ABC dipped into Peter Bogdanovich's "Paper Moon" and turned out a half-hour version about two Depression era con-artists, Moses and Addie Pray, age 11. She says he's her father. He declines the offer.

In the first episode, "Settling," Moses, played by Christopher Connelly, and Addie, played by Jodie Foster, buy a house and try to settle down. She's tired of huckstering across Kansas.

The only problem is that after the couple film-finds enough cash and buys the house from two so-called real estate merchants, the actual owner arrives and kicks them out. It's a Midwestern version of selling the Brooklyn Bridge.

If you are looking for the grace and elegance of Bogdanovich's film, you won't find it, especially in the camera work.

But the TV version is not offensive to the memory of the film. And although this is a season of nostalgia, this show does not make you want to buy a Model-A Ford.

If you are looking to see if Connelly's or Miss Foster's performances rival that of Ryan O'Neal's or his daughter Tatum's, which won an Academy Award, you won't. But as the weeks progress, Miss Foster will overcome her predecessor's memory and begin to create her own version of the character. And Connelly looks enough like Ryan O'Neal to get by.

The famous Indian-head gold series

The "Million-Dollar gold coins" described in last week's article never went into circulation. But the attractive obverse did find its way to the face of the 1907-1933 $10 gold eagle, in two noticeable types.

President Theodore Roosevelt tried desperately to keep the motto "IN GOD WE TRUST" from becoming a part of any coinage issued during his administration, and for awhile he succeeded. But Congress overruled him in 1908 and it was placed on the reverse field in the second year of the minting of the gold eagle.

The Indian-head $10 gold piece was designed by Augustus

by Mort Reed

Saint-Gaudens in response to Roosevelt's plea for a more beautiful gold coinage. It certainly is one of the most attractive pieces of the gold series and it is fast becoming more and more popular with date collectors because with just three exceptions it is fairly easy to complete as a series.

The three exceptions are the 1920-S, 1930-S and 1933. The 1933 is particularly popular because it is the latest date U.S. gold coin that is legal to own. These three dates have a combined value of $28,000 to $30,000 making the series an ideal investor-collector commodity.

THERE ARE A number of coins in the series that are highly underrated. Coins that in full mint state are every bit as rare as any of the aforementioned big three, all of which are almost always found in Uncirculated condition. The 1912-S for example, catalogs at $250 in Uncirculated condition. But in spite of its high mintage record, it is probably the most difficult coin to obtain in a prime condition.

Some of the early "S" mint coins equally difficult to find are the 1908, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916. Two other worthwhile dates are the 1903 with no motto and the 1911-D, two of the smallest issues in the series. They both appear, however, far more often in the better grade than either the 1912-S or 1913-S.

Common date Brilliant Uncirculated Indian-head eagles went up significantly during 1972 and they have been increasing ever since.

Counterfeit eagles are probably the least common of all fake U.S. coins, although some of the scarce dates, particularly the 1915-S and 1916-S have been duplicated.

EISENHOWER SILVER DOLLARS

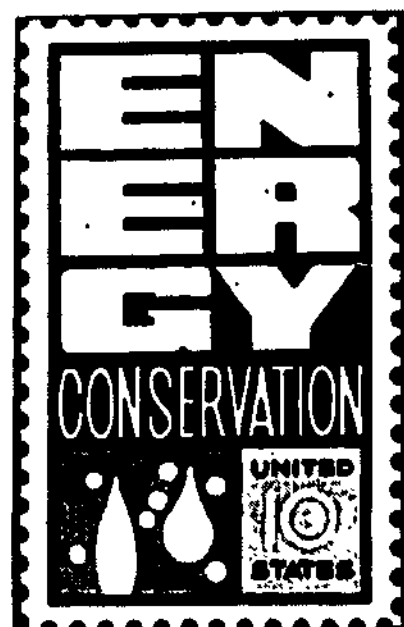

The U.S. Mint still is accepting orders for the Eisenhower Silver dollars at $.35 each. Orders for no more than five should be mailed along with a check or money order to Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint St., San Francisco, Calif. 94175. Order blanks have already been mailed to those persons already on the Mint mailing list.

Once an order has been received by the Mint for the Eisenhower special silver dollars, the sender's name will automatically appear in the permanent mailing list and order blanks will be sent to that address each time a new coin is issued.

Energy theme for 10-cent Sept. 23 release

The U.S. Postal Service focuses attention on energy conservation with the release of a 10-cent commemorative stamp Sept. 23 at Detroit during the World Energy Conference.

An earlier public service stamp, the 10-cent Preserve the Environment, was issued in April at the World's Fair at Spokane, Wash.

The new stamp was designed by Robert W. Bode of Chappaqua, N.Y., who also designed the Johnny Appleseed and Davy Crockett adhesives.

The Energy Conservation Issue features the wording superimposed on bright sunlight with molecules and a drop of oil and a drop of gasoline at the lower left.

The issue will be printed in six colors by a combination of offset and intaglio methods on the Giori press. There are 50 stamps to the pane with one plate number.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to Ener-

Century 21 Peters & Fulk Real Estate

101 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights
259-1500

A blend of the old and the new — that is Peters and Fulk Real Estate. Albert C. Peters, a name associated with real estate in the northwest suburbs for 25 years, and Richard D. Fulk, a name associated with real estate, teaching and athletics, have combined to offer professional real estate service.

For many years Peters taught in the real estate schools which many salesmen in the area attended. Fulk was an instructor and athletic coach in high school Dist. 214. The partnership of these individuals offers personalized and selective real estate service to those that must leave the area and to those coming in.

Peters and Fulk Real Estate is centrally located in the ever-expanding suburbs, minutes from the elite houses or the more modest beginner's homes, and offers a service styled to the needs of their clientele. The sales personnel with Peters and Fulk have had the training of two experienced, proven real estate brokers.

When a family wishes to establish the market value of their home, commercial site or business, the records of Peters and Fulk, which have been maintained along with other marketing analyses, will give them insights into the value of the property under current market conditions. But service does not stop there; each staff member has been trained to look for and to project that distinctive quality which each client has in his home.

Peters and Fulk, a member of MAP Multiple Listing Service, and its predecessor, Peters and Co. (one of the founding members of MAP), were among those real estate brokers who saw the tremendous worth and stability in the northwest suburbs; for the last 25 years, this company has spent thousands of dollars in promoting and marketing clients' homes. One of the firm's tenets is, and always has been, to use the most efficient means available to properly merchandise property listings.

A large part of the company's service to sellers is to qualify the buyers. When a salesperson calls for an appointment, the seller knows the buyer has the ability to purchase the home. The firm assists and handles all types of mortgage financing. They also seek other qualifications; the homes they show are what they think will fit the personality and livability the buyers desire.

To buyers, the firm pledges not to spend time showing homes they have no desire to buy. Sales associates are happy to acquaint clients with the community on their first visit; house hunting can be a chore and the aim of Peters and Fulk is to make it pleasant.

Note the owners, "We are proud of our personnel. They have been in the business for many years and are highly experienced. There is diversity in their background and education, but they share the desire to be in this business and to conduct themselves according to the Golden Rule. Most of the staff are residents of the communities we serve."

The motto followed by Peters and Fulk is "If you like our service, tell your friends; if you don't, tell us."

Investment risks are declining for existing rental properties

If you're an investor with access to cash and looking for a better-than-average opportunity with declining risk, you might want to consider an existing apartment building.

"For the past couple of years investment in existing rental properties would have been falling and with good reason. But the pendulum is swinging in the other direction now, and the income potential of a medium-sized urban apartment building has investors taking another look," notes John W. Baird, president of Baird & Warner, Inc., 119-year-old Chicago area real estate company.

In addition to providing tax-shelter advantages, which has always been one of the chief attractions of real estate, the opportunity for an excellent return on investment is improving dramatically, notes Baird.

"Just several years ago you'd have to expect to spend seven to nine times the annual rental income to purchase an apartment building. But the rental market has been hammered so hard by rising taxes and operating expenses in the last couple of years that apartment houses have slipped from view. Today, you can pick up buildings at more like five times their rent roll or less. If you buy right, you can look forward to an excellent return on top of the tax shelter," said Baird.

Baird believes there are two primary reasons for the improving chances of operating apartment buildings profitably:

Unfettered by rent controls, rental income should start adjusting upward to cope with rising costs and bring profits back into ownership.

Most multi-family construction in the past year or so has been for-purchase condominiums. In addition, the high cost of operating rental buildings that have been fully depreciated by their current owners has led to the conversion of many such buildings to condominiums. The result is a dwindling supply of rental units in a market where there still remains considerable demand.

"Let's face it. For all the advantages that condominiums offer both to developers and buyers, many people — for many legitimate reasons — still want to rent their housing. This should help get rents back to where an investor can look for profits," said Baird.

He pointed out that he was referring to rental properties of about 40 units or slightly larger, not the huge complexes which have come to dominate those few rental developments still being constructed, or the smaller "own and operate" building.

"Huge complexes that offer a good deal more than shelter, including sophisticated recreational amenities, shopping, and often much more, tend to require participation of investment syndicates, rather than individual investments. And the participations in these sophisticated complexes generally have a much higher price tag than the smaller, existing rental properties," said Baird.

In Baird's judgment the emergence of the large rental complexes has increased somewhat the risk for smaller buildings that focus on shelter alone. But the greater the risk the greater the profit potential, he adds.

Baird offers several suggestions to prospective buyers of apartment buildings for investment. Now is the time to start looking and buying. An improvement in the balance sheet together with the rise in the value of in-town real estate is expected to trigger rising demand for older apartment buildings.

Don't leap into the picture by yourself. "Your first step might be to visit with an experienced and reputable real estate broker. He should be able to provide a current and accurate audit of operating expenses for the different properties you might want to consider. He should also allow you to examine leases so that you can assess income projections. Then you should have your attorney or accountant also review the information," Baird advised.

Plan to hire a professional management organization. An apartment building is no place for a novice. It requires constant attention and skill plus experience in such areas as getting and keeping good tenants, maintaining the property, collecting rents, hiring building employees, paying bills, buying supplies and preparing monthly accounting statements. "A professional management organization is often a bulk-purchaser of supplies and services and may also help you cut over-all operating expenses," Baird added.

Professional management in the Chicago area runs from 2 1/2 to 6 per cent of gross income. Baird suggests that before you decide on a management firm get the names of properties it manages. Then ask the owners and tenants how they feel about the manager. "Be sure that you have a precise and detailed written management contract before you seal the deal with a handshake," Baird adds.

Baird said that you should plan to put about 20 per cent down or more in the current tight money market and expect a yield of 6 to 8 per cent on top of tax shelter benefits. "But that yield could improve sharply in the next couple of years. If you acquire the right property in a good location at today's attractively low multiple."

New roof upgrades home

Thinking about selling your house? A new roof could upgrade its appearance and resale value, especially if it offers prospective buyers low maintenance, long-term protection and beauty.

Today's premium quality asphalt shingles provide all three. They require little maintenance, are designed to last up to 25 years and are available in a wide selection of bold, heavy-textured earth-tone colors that create a three-dimensional appearance.

In many cases, asphalt shingles can be installed over the existing roof providing an added saving in time and money in removing the old roofing material.

Once the new roof has been installed, don't neglect it. There are several tips on roof care you should follow until the sale of your home is completed.

Keep gutters, downspouts and roof surfaces clear of fallen leaves, twigs and other debris so that water will drain easily and not back up.

Never allow water from a downspout to pour directly onto the roof below. Keep the downspout connected to the gutter which drains the lower roof.

Keep trees trimmed to prevent scuffing of the roof by branches or damage by falling limbs. Keep climbing roses, ivy or vines trimmed back.

Don't walk on the roof. Not only is it dangerous, it can damage the shingles. When necessary for workmen to go on the roof, make sure they use walk boards, ladders, scaffolding or other suitable devices.

When removing snow or ice from a roof, be careful not to damage the roof with whatever tools are used.

Construction down in July

July, which is traditionally considered a strong month in construction activity, reported a whopping decrease of 67 per cent from the same in 1973, according to the monthly Bell Federal Survey of New Building.

According to that survey the total number of housing units (multi-family and single-family combined) for which permits were issued last month reached 1,790 compared to the 5,435 units reported in July, 1973.

Single family homes declined 56 per cent (2,349 to 1,176) and multiple units decreased 80 per cent (3,086 to 614).

The sharpest decline was noted in the unincorporated areas, in the multi-family category, where 433 were recorded last year and only four in July, 1974. However, there was a bright light, in that the city of Chicago reported an increase from 36 to 112 in multi-family housing activity.

The combined total of permits issued for single family and multi-family housing in the first seven months of 1974 were 55 per cent lower than figures reported for the same period last year, reaching only 12,960 compared to 28,969 in 1973.

Garden party held

At a recent garden party held at Graue Mill Country Condominiums off York Road in Hinsdale, nearly 100 people gathered under a tent for a sidewalk dinner which followed cocktails. Guests toured the project, which currently is under construction. The first phase of the $60 million project is expected to be completed early next year with occupancy expected sometime next spring. Many of the guests were from the financial and real estate communities. Host for the party was Land America Corp., which is developing the Graue Mill project.

Kitchen features change, but never its popularity

Today's gleaming kitchen is one of the most important rooms in a house to Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner.

But, that's nothing new.

"It was the powerhouse of colonial America as well," says Swift & Company, food division of Esmark, Inc., Chicago.

"The earliest dwellings in this country — built by East coast settlers — began with a single room focused around its fireplace and chimney.

"Today's American home is essentially an expansion of that all-purpose room in colonial times — a room which has gradually yielded some of its functions to parlors, bedrooms, dining rooms, attics and basements," the Swift report continues.

Under the spur of growing prosperity and improved technology, the kitchen has emerged bigger and better — with even greater popularity.

Its name — "kitchen" — derives from a Latin root meaning "to cook."

"But, that only gives a hint of its multiple roles throughout the years," Swift's people note.

Two centuries ago, it was the workshop for spinning and weaving, for sewing and quilt-making, dyeing and soap-making — and for general household repairs.

"It was also the children's schoolroom as well as a dining space for all family members. Depending on need and occasion, it served as dispensary, distillery, bedroom and sickroom.

"Its huge fireplace — sometimes having an opening eight to 10 feet wide and a depth of five to six feet — made the kitchen the warmest room in the house — the center for most activities," Swift further comments.

The eighteenth century kitchen "was utilitarian, but not as refined as described by some overzealous historians.

"The ordinary kitchen of that day lacked many accoutrements. Its walls were unpapered and plastered ceilings were non-existent.

"Luxury was certainly not one of its qualities," the Swift group notes.

"Floors went unpainted and such decorative touches as curtains, carpets and chandeliers were seldom if ever seen.

"The 20th century kitchen is a far cry from the like room of yesteryear.

"The one feature that has not changed is its popularity," the Swift report concludes.

Real estate courses set for Arlington Heights

Prospective real estate salesmen in the Chicago area will have a choice of five locations at which to take evening courses in basic real estate transactions during September.

Locally, the course, comprising 10 three-hour sessions, will begin Monday, Sept. 9 at 7 p.m. at Arlington Park Towers, Rt. 53 and Euclid, in Arlington Heights.

The classes are co-sponsored by the Illinois Association of Realtors and Real Estate Education Company of Chicago.

Successful completion of any of the state-approved 30-hour courses will enable students to register by the Oct. 11 deadline to take the state real estate salesmen's license examination in November, according to Richard Herb, vice president of Real Estate Education Company.

Under new Illinois licensing requirements that went into effect last October, candidates for real estate salesmen's licenses must have completed a state-approved 30-hour course in basic real estate transactions prior to registering to take the state exam.

Tuition of $100 includes textbooks and other classroom materials. Further information can be obtained from Real Estate Education Company, 500 N. Dearborn, Chicago.

Chicago area apartment rents up

Chicago area apartment rents are up 5 to 7½ per cent on leases taking effect Oct. 1, 1974. It was reported today by Baird & Warner, Inc., a leading Chicago area real estate company.

The actual increases vary widely, depending on the building, and range from a modest 3 per cent hike on some buildings in Oak Park to a hefty 12 per cent increase on some Evanston properties, according to William D. Sally, Baird & Warner vice president and general manager of its property management division.

"These increases are actual amounts, not predictions, in leases now being signed and returned to us," he said. "The signed leases are coming back much faster than normal, indicating a desire on the part of residents to pin things down now, before they go higher. Already 85 per cent of the leases we sent out in July for October have been signed and returned."

The average increases are 7.62 per cent for the Lake Shore area, stretching from the Gold Coast to Devon Ave.; 6.71 per cent for Rogers Park, Evanston, the North Shore, and northwest suburbs; 5.28 per cent for Oak Park and western suburbs; and 5.66 per cent for Hyde Park, South Shore, Oak Lawn and southwest suburbs.

Sally attributed the increase to all the factors that were responsible for the spring, 1974, rent hikes, including higher costs for fuel, water, electricity, janitorial wages, maintenance, supplies, and other services. The only exception is taxes which have been relatively stable in this period.

As was the case with spring leases, decorating allowances are being cut to a half-month's rent instead of a full month as before. Leases are limited to one year. Condominium riders are now standard, notifying the tenant that the owner has the right to cancel a lease with 60 to 90 days notice.

"Conversion to condominiums and a scarcity of new apartment construction

William J. Dolan

William Dolan forms company

The formation of Dolan & Kelley, Inc., an Oak Brook, Ill., company specializing in the sale, leasing, and financing of investment real estate, as well as land for development, has been announced by William J. Dolan, president, a resident of Arlington Heights.

The company is affiliated with Edward N. Kelley Property Management Consultants, which renders property management and marketing consulting services for developers, investors, corporations, and lenders.

Dolan was formerly financial vice president of Palm & Sutherland, Inc., one of the largest development and brokerage firms in Chicago. He was also employed for six years by Baird & Warner, Inc., as a sales-broker in the industrial-commercial division and as a mortgage loan officer.

Dolan is a member of the Illinois Real Estate Board, as well as the Board's Commercial Investment Division, and is a life member of the Board's Million Dollar Club. He is also a member of the Chicago Real Estate Board and the Mortgage Bankers Association.

A marketing major at Loyola University of Chicago, Dolan has completed the Mortgage Bankers Association's advanced income property seminar in cooperation with Michigan State University.

Dolan, his wife, and five children live in Arlington Heights where he is a director of the Heritage Park Homeowners Association.

Chicago firm signs lease

Podolsky and Associates, Chicago based industrial realtors, recently announced the signing of leases with De Havilland Canada, Inc. in their multi-tenancy facility at the corner of Allan and Pearl Streets, Rosemont.

Steven Podolsky, vice president, further announced the expansion of Central Packaging Company, Inc. for an additional 5,000 square feet, also in this building. Mr. Podolsky, sole broker in the De Havilland transaction, stated that the Central Packaging brokers were Ron Goldsmith, of Podolsky and Associates, representing the Lessor and Jim Milten, of A. Jules Milten & Company, representing Lessee.

Mr. Podolsky further said, "We are pleased to say that the activity in the O'Hare area is still very strong, as evidenced by our leasing out all of the space in Rosemont. In fact, our 10,500 square feet and 12,000 square foot units at the O'Hare International Industrial Plaza, Schiller Park, are currently all the available space in the immediate O'Hare vicinity east of the airport."

Widdicombe wins national election

Robert K. Widdicombe, Jr., executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC), has been elected president of the Executive Officers Council of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB). The election took place this week at the Silver Anniversary Seminar of the Executive Officers Council held in Arlington, Texas.

Robert K. Widdicombe

The Council is composed of 300 executive officers of the local and state associations throughout the country and affords them a forum within which to share ideas and help the overall administration of Home Builders Associations throughout the system in behalf of the industry.

Albert Kaufman, HBAGC President, in making the announcement, expressed pride over our local Executive Officer having received distinction, and added that this is an additional opportunity for us to further the interests of the Chicago region in the homebuilding industry.

Widdicombe has been active in the trade association field for eight years. He has served as the executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland (HBAC) for the past seven years and more recently of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago.

In the building field, Bob Widdicombe has been an executive in a homebuilding firm, an electrical contractor, has done home remodeling and has worked in both new and used home sales.

He holds an MBA from the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, and was a member of the Air Force for over 20 years, retiring as a regular officer from the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

New offices give privacy

Acres & Homes Real Estate, Inc. has moved to new, larger quarters at 235 West Colfax, Palatine, to accommodate expansion into the sale of residential real estate. A design feature of the new office is the privacy afforded to clients in the use of conference rooms.

This firm has been confining its activities to sales of farm and vacant property. Gordon Peterson, president of Acres & Homes Real Estate, Inc. emphasizes that activity in farm sales will not be lessened but rather increased as the firm is a charter member of the Illinois Farm & Land Multiple Listing.

Peterson said that the Acres & Homes firm has engaged the services of Executive Consulting Services, Inc. of Detroit to assist in the selection and training of sales personnel.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES?

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of 1/2 percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1,000 on a 25-year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

WORRIED ABOUT "TIGHT MONEY"?

"Tight money" comes and goes. Its most serious offense is when it prevents people from making investments which will benefit them, both now and in the future. The people who did not let the "tight money" talk of 1959 or of 1966 get in the way of their home-buying decision are in the "driver's seat" today. Money is available for good mortgages, and the person who invests in a home today is the person who will enjoy all the benefits of living in a home of his own as well as seeing his investment increase in value. NOW is a good time to buy!

THINK THE COST OF EXISTING HOMES WILL GO DOWN?

Forget it! The law of supply and demand will never be repealed, particularly insofar as existing homes are concerned. Fewer homes are being built today because of the increased cost of building, yet the number of families in the home-buying market is rapidly increasing. As the World War II "babies" continue to marry and have families of their own, the demand for homes will multiply. The present supply of established homes available to you will diminish quicker than you might expect. NOW is a good time to buy!

AREN'T CONVINCED OF THE ADVANTAGES OF HOME OWNERSHIP?

Consider these points. You provide a more stable environment for your family. You insure yourself of the greatest possible hedge against inflation. You get the tax advantages of deducting the interest you pay on your loan and your property taxes. You are building equity in property as opposed to collecting worthless rent receipts. You become a part of your own community, enjoying a status and a sense of fulfillment which is impossible to measure in material terms. You gain more through home ownership than through any other purchase you can ever make. NOW is a good time to buy!

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH FINANCING!

York custom designs plant to fit product

"After we designed the product, we designed a plant to manufacture it," said James R. Pollock, Chicago branch manager, York Division of Borg-Warner Corporation, 470 Wrightwood Ave., Elmhurst, Ill.

The plant is York's new $15-million production facility in Madisonville, Ky. And while almost all of York's residential heating and cooling line will be manufactured there, the plant was built around the new Champion IV central residential air conditioning system.

Because the plant was "custom made" to produce the new unit, "we were able to line-tune every function, from receiving to shipping, to produce a quality product with the least steps in the shortest time possible," said Pollock.

"The design of the new unit, coupled with the efficiency of the plant, enables us to manufacture our new outdoor condensing section in only three quarters of the time it took to produce our former unit," explained Pollock.

One of the new operations helping to expedite production is the computerized storage and retrieval system used in the 3/4-acre parts warehouse.

The programmed system operates on a demand forecast. The stacker-crane automatically retrieves parts up and down the three-story high rows of bins and deposits them at the needed points along the production line. This prevents assembly slowdown while waiting for parts to be delivered.

Another improvement is the environmental control system. For employee comfort and efficiency, almost the entire 8-acre plant is air conditioned from the administrative office to the production line. York Sunline rooftop units are used.

Other changes from the traditional include the painting operation. York elected to use the electro-deposition method of painting the unit's panels rather than spraying them. With this method, a negatively charged metal panel is dipped into positively charged paint. The paint is uniformly attracted to the entire surface area of the panel, no matter how small or hidden.

Also, the paint used has no toxic vapors, reducing the fire and health hazards.

A departure from conventional plant design is the size of the warehouse. It's not big, at least in proportion to the plant's production capacity. Because of the speed with which units can be assembled, orders can be filled quickly without maintaining a large inventory. Consequently, the warehouse is meant to be a holding area rather than a storage room.

Full production at Madisonville began in the third quarter of this year due to the efforts of what became known as York headquarters as the "Madisonville Group." Personnel from all departments at York — purchasing, manufacturing, engineering, personnel — were pulled together far in advance of the groundbreaking to guarantee a successful operation. The greater part of this group was then transferred to the Madisonville plant to execute the prior planning.

The transfer of almost all residential products from the division's main plant in York, Pa. to Madisonville will enable York to satisfy the growing production requirements for large air conditioning and refrigeration equipment at the York plant, according to Pollock. The new plant is expected to eventually employ 500 production workers.

The plant, built on a 125-acre site, was constructed by Daniel Construction Company of Kentucky at Lexington, a division of Daniel International Corporation. Design and engineering services were provided by Lockwood-Gree Company, Spartanburg, S.C.

Location most important decision when choosing your new home

When looking for a home, start by deciding the "where" of it, says a Chicago suburban real estate executive, and then tackle the "what, when and how much" question.

Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, a 20 office real estate firm with offices in the West, Northwest, North and North shore suburbs, points out that "far too many home purchasers begin by specifying the physical characteristics, availability and price of their dream home and compromise on its location, much to their later chagrin."

"There is no denying," Caruso adds, "the temptation is great when a well-equipped home in nice condition, is available right now at an attractive price; but if it isn't in the right location for you in terms of conveniences, amenities and future marketability, it has built in ghosts which will come back to haunt today's happy home hunter."

Location, says Caruso, can't be corrected if it wasn't right in the first place. "On the other hand," he points out, "the expense of making alterations, additions and improvements which might seem high at the time of purchase is diluted over years of use, and frequently sold at a profit to the next homeowner. Poor location tends to get worse instead of better, and it isn't likely to be any more attractive to others than to those presently stuck with it."

"Similarly," Caruso adds, "immediate possession is only an immediate benefit, and a few extra days, weeks or even months of waiting for the right location will soon be forgotten if the ultimate choice is right."

As to cost, Caruso counsels that, "Except for prices which are outrageously beyond present or immediate future market value, it makes sense to pay whatever you have to pay for a home in the right location for you and your family. A few hundred dollars 'saved' by moving miles further than you desire, will be eclipsed by the additional cost of driving to work, ferrying the kids to music lessons and other inconveniences."

"Almost everything else undesirable in a home except location can be cured or mitigated by time, patience, ingenuity or money. But if the location is wrong at the onset, it will tend to become even more so as time goes on," concludes Caruso.

Drawing pays off, van for Air Rite

Air Rite Heating & Cooling Company located in Crestwood, Lisle and Arlington Heights, Illinois, has won a 1974 Ford Service Van from Dunham-Bush, a leading manufacturer of home heating and cooling products. The truck was awarded to Air Rite at Electric Supply Corporation, Franklin Park, the Chicago and distributor for Space-Pak and other Dunham-Bush products.

Air Rite won the truck in a drawing which was open to air conditioning and heating dealers across the country who purchased a pre-season package of Dunham-Bush products.

Lake Barrington shore seen from afloat

Lake Barrington Associates have added another dimension to their prestigious Lake Barrington Shores community. Visitors and future residents can now tour the property on a recently purchased Float Boat. The boat took its maiden voyage this week with developer Ken James. His passengers included Jorgen Hubschman, Mayor of the Village of Lake Barrington; Eric Zimmerman, Environmental Testing Laboratories; and Nick Gowe, Scientific Aquatic Weed Control. The latter two men are serving as ecological consultants to the development.

The 24-foot pontoon-type boat can accommodate up to 15 people and is equipped with a sun roof. Tours along the shoreline of the 100-acre mile-long lake take approximately 20 minutes, affording another vantage point from which to view the luxury Country Homes and Manor Houses.

The boat will leave the dock every half hour from 12 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays (weather permitting). Tours also may be arranged during the week by appointment. Visitors may sign up for a tour in the sales information center.

As part of the marina, a new dock and boathouse, which will have a sun deck on the roof, are under construction. In addition to the marina, an adjacent sand beach will be built. In the future, the boat will present an ideal setting for residents to entertain their guests on the lake.

The boating facilities will be just part of the diverse recreational amenities being provided for residents and their guests on the 510-acre property. The recreation core will include tennis courts, swimming pools, and an elaborate clubhouse, all under construction and scheduled to open early next summer. Also, a private 18-hole golf course is planned. The original Bartlett home will be remodeled to serve as the clubhouse.

When completed, the recreation-oriented community will comprise 1350 one, two and three-bedroom residences, placed around the lake in extensively landscaped clusters at a density of 2.7 homes per acre. Structures will cover less than 15 per cent of the property while most of the wooded areas will be preserved, including the 35-acre forest preserve. Prices of the homes begin at $52,400.

Seven furnished model homes are on display. They are open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on weekends from 12 p.m. until 8 p.m. The models are located on Route 59 just north of Miller Road in the Village of Lake Barrington.

Lake Barrington Associates is a partnership of James Building Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of James Investment Corporation, and Amoco Realty Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Bernice Seaverns appointment made

The appointment of Bernice Seaverns as the manager of the new Libertyville office of Homefinders Realtors has been announced by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm.

Opened earlier this month, the Libertyville office, located at Route 176 and Fourth, is the eleventh office to be opened by Homefinders, and the fourth new sales office to be opened this year.

Ms. Seaverns has been in the real estate field for five years, and joined Homefinders last March. She has managed a real estate office previously, and for several months has been working out of the Buffalo Grove office of Homefinders.

Born in Lake County, Bernice Seaverns attended Lake Forest College and studied painting at the Art Institute of Chicago. She belongs to several art leagues and has exhibited her work at exhibits sponsored by the Suburban Fine Arts League.

In addition to art classes, Bernice has enrolled at several real estate schools, and studied commercial investment through the National Association of Real Estate Boards. She resides in Libertyville, and pursues painting, golf, tennis and skiing as her hobbies.

In addition to Libertyville, Homefinders maintains sales offices in McHenry, Antioch, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

ATRIUM'S $750,000 recreation center, including club, left, and heated swimming pool, has been in use for a year by residents of townhomes, background. With the coming of autumn, swimming activity will move to a second pool provided inside the Atrium Club. First 60 condominium apartment units, in a six-story building, are nearing completion, as the planned community passed the $4-million mark in sales.

Atrium's sales pass $4 million

Sales at Atrium, luxury planned community of townhomes and condominium apartments, have passed the $4-million mark, according to William H. Crane, vice president-marketing of The Simon/R-G Group, Inc., developer.

Atrium occupies a 27½-acre site north of Roosevelt Road between York Road and Route 83, in west-suburban Elmhurst.

Eighty-four of an eventual 200 two-story brick townhomes have been built and occupied, or are nearing completion. The first of four planned six-story, 60-unit condominium apartment buildings also is nearing completion, with initial resident move-ins scheduled for early September, Crane said.

Also completed, and in use by residents for the past year, is Atrium's $750,000 club and recreation complex, with indoor and outdoor heated swimming pools, tennis courts, exercise room, saunas and other indoor facilities. Completed portions of the development have been heavily landscaped with mature shade trees, shrubs and lawns.

"More than 70 townhomes and condominium apartment homes have been sold and occupied or are under contract," Crane reported.

Three and four-bedroom solid masonry townhomes with full basements, arranged in clusters around quarter-acre landscaped courtyards, are priced from $62,500 to $77,000.

One, two, and three-bedroom condominium apartments, offering 1,200, 1,500 and 1,800 square feet of living space, respectively, start at $50,500, $60,000 and $72,500. Wide private balconies overlooking Atrium's landscaped grounds extend the living space of all apartments to the outdoors.

Arrangements have been made for conventional mortgage financing of all townhomes and condominium apartments at Atrium, Crane pointed out. The developer recently announced a delayed closing program, under which a buyer can make an earnest money deposit on a contract to purchase, then have his monthly payments for a year build up a substantial down payment.

Atrium's furnished models are open for inspection from 11 a.m. till 7 p.m., Sundays and weekdays, and from 10 a.m. till 6 p.m., Saturdays.

Rental equipment can help many families when moving

Every year, one out of five American families makes a permanent change-of-address move. Last year, that meant 12.5 million families on the move to new homes, new jobs, new opportunities.

Of these 12.5 million families, 46.8 per cent, or 5.83 million, used do-it-yourself rental equipment. By comparison, 24 per cent or 3 million families, hired a van line to move their goods. The remaining 3.63 million families either liquidated their goods before moving or use borrowed or purchased equipment to move.

Cost and convenience are major factors in choosing do-it-yourself rental equipment over other means. By doing it yourself, you can save 50 per cent of the cost of a van line move, and your goods reach your destination at the same time you do. With planning, you can pack, load and move your goods with all the professional skill of a van line.

First, get the right equipment for your move. Look in the Yellow Pages telephone directory for a rental dealer near you. Call and tell him when, where, and how much you want to move. He can tell you what size trailer or truck you will need, how much it will cost, and reserve the equipment for the date that you need it.

Inspect the equipment before you rent it. Does it have a smooth interior with padded rub rails to protect your goods from scratches, and tie downs so that you can secure your load?

Is the trailer weatherproof, does it have locking doors, do the tie lights work? Most important, make sure the trailer is the right size for your car. The weight of the loaded trailer should not exceed the empty "curb" weight of the tow vehicle. Check your owner's manual for the curb weight of your car.

Does the truck have easy-loading features such as a low deck and a slide-out loading ramp? Many first-time movers believe that a hydraulic lift gate is desirable, but they can cause injury to inexperienced users, can fail to operate, and actually slow down the loading process. Most truck models are available with a choice of standard or automatic transmission.

Get the moving aids that will make your task easier. Hand trucks, furniture pads, wardrobe and packing cartons, side view mirrors (required by law when pulling a trailer) and tow bars (for towing your car behind a rental truck) are generally available. Special rental multi-clamp bumper hitches are available with rental trailers.

Ask about liability and cargo protection. One type of coverage provides cargo protection, life and medical coverage for the driver and passengers, and full liability protection on a rental truck (trailer liability is generally included on your auto insurance policy).

Nelson makes announcement

The five office sales leaders for July were announced by Robert L. Nelson, president of Robert L. Nelson Real Estate. The top volume leaders for July in the offices are: Julie Ward, Arlington Heights Office; Bob Griffith, the Barrington Office; Pat Meck, the Elk Grove Office; Pat Cosack, the Mount Prospect Office; and Cell Schwartz, the Palatine Office.

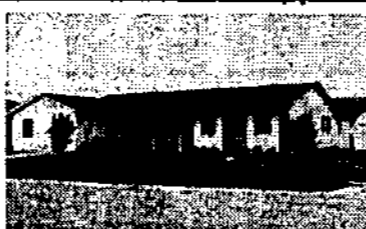

Thus far, the three top volume leaders for 1974 are Julie Ward, Joan Miller and Verne Smith.

Prepare for heating season by re-lighting gas furnaces

During the summer, many energy-conscious homeowners took advantage of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association's suggestion for conserving fuel by turning off the pilot lights on their gas furnaces. With the approach of the heating season, these pilots will need re-lighting, however. The pilot provides safe, reliable furnace ignition and the heat from it will contribute to the overall heating requirement of the house.

According to GAMA, some general safety practices should be observed when any gas furnace pilot is re-lit. The thermostat should be turned down to the lowest possible setting before the re-lighting procedure is begun. Once the pilot has been ignited, the thermostat can be turned up to the recommended 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

Specific instructions for re-lighting pilots should be attached to any furnaces manufactured during the last 17 years, bearing the American Gas Association Certification seal. GAMA's President, Harry A. Faynter, emphasizes that such instructions should be carefully followed. If these instructions cannot be located, consumers should contact their local service agencies or gas utilities for information.

All furnace filters should be changed

13 building industry associations meet

Thirteen different building-related associations met recently to discuss their commonality as providers of housing.

The meeting, which was put on by the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC), was held at the Builders Club. The HBAGC for a third year is sponsoring a Home and Apartment Exposition. Exhibitors in that show are companies who provide goods and services to the building industry — steel, wood, wall covering, appliances and insurance — and the attendance is comprised of builders, architects, specifiers and investors.

During the discussion it was established that all associations in builder-related areas would profit from mutual support of the exposition and cooperative activity, especially in a time where the building industry is struggling with so many diverse problems.

In an enthusiastic vote of confidence, one association head after another stood up, described what he and his members prior to the heating season, also. This allows free air flow and contributes to more efficient operation and longer life of the unit.

While it is possible for the homeowner to re-light the pilot and change the filter, the furnace should be inspected by a service agency, annually.

PLUM GROVE ESTATES

If you prefer the single floor home plan, then you'll be attracted to the rambling style of this French Provincial Ranch; a delightfully private home in a lush countryside setting with its prestigious location where leisure is a part of everyday living.

This unique home boasts almost every amenity. There are two fireplaces, one in the family room and one in the spacious recreation room that also has a built in wet bar. The family room is also large and wide thermopane windows look out over the terrace and expansive, carefully manicured grounds. Adjacent is a fully equipped kitchen with built-in oven, range, dishwasher and disposal. A desirable location for the utility room has been designed into the home. It is placed between the kitchen and 2 1/2 car garage where it can also serve as a mud room.

Three bedrooms, two lavish baths, central air and plush carpeting complete this well planned, quality built home that will afford many years of elegant comfort with a minimum of maintenance. $87,500

Low interest rates draw buyers to The Courtyards

Availability of mortgage loans at an interest rate of only 7.9 per cent is attracting buyers to The Courtyards of Arlington Heights, a 99 unit condominium project at 346 West Miner Street, adjacent to downtown Arlington Heights. The Courtyards is being developed by C.S.T. Joint Venture and marketed by Seay & Thomas, Inc., a member of the IC Industries Real Estate Group.

Norton Turchen, The Courtyards' Sales Manager, says that many people recognize that a low interest rate is the equivalent of a substantial discount on the price of a condominium home.

"Consider the case of a family that buys a two bedroom unit at The Courtyards for $38,000 with a down payment of $2,000. Monthly principal and interest payments on the $36,000 mortgage loan at 7.9 per cent are $263.00. Taxes on the property are $78 monthly and maintenance costs run $29.36. Thus, the total monthly payment is $371.26.

"At 9.5 per cent interest, principal and interest on the mortgage would total $304.59. Although taxes and maintenance would remain the same, the total monthly payment would be $411.95.

"The monthly payments on the unit at the 9.5 per cent interest rate would be $40.69 more than at 7.9 per cent. Over the 29 year life of the mortgage, the availability of mortgage money at 7.9 per cent saves this buyer more than $14,000 in the total cost of his condominium home," Turchen said.

Over and above the low interest rate, Turchen believes that the purchase of a condominium home at The Courtyards represents one of the best ways the average family can beat inflation.

"During the past few years, the cost of housing has increased by about 10 per cent annually. A new home now selling for $40,000 can be expected to be priced at $44,000 a year from today and $48,400 in two years. In fact, new homes have, over the past 10 years, provided a more consistent and greater appreciation than the average stock market investments or savings accounts," Turchen said.

Even though it is a relatively short time since ground was broken for The Courtyards last year, inflation has progressed to a point where it would not be possible for developers to offer comparable condominium homes at the same price.

"We have been able to take advantage of a unique combination of a good site, cost-conscious design and favorable financing to provide buyers with a unique opportunity in today's market," Turchen said.

The Courtyards is built around landscaped courtyards and is surrounded by open areas. The building covers only 23 per cent of the landscaped site. Each home at The Courtyards has its own balcony facing the enclosed landscaped area and accessible through living-dining areas through insulated glass doors. Special features include all electric heating, through-the-wall individually controlled air-conditioning units and individual hot water heaters. Kitchens include a complete electric appliance package and have large pantries as well as ample cabinets.

Condominium homes at The Courtyards are priced from $25,900.

To reach The Courtyards, take the Northwest Highway (U.S. Route 14) to Vall Street in Arlington Heights. Turn south to Wing Street, west to Highland and north, one block to Miner Street. The site is at the intersection of Miner Street and Somerset Lane.

Homefinders hosts annual staff picnic

More than 350 sales associates and staff members of Homefinders Realtors, members of their families and children enjoyed an all-day frolic at the annual picnic of the firm on Saturday, August 17.

The picnic, hosted by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm, was held at Countryside Lake near Mundelein, according to Zaun, the "fun day" reflected the successful year that Homefinders is enjoying, exemplified by the four new sales offices opened recently.

Adults as well as kids participated in a variety of games which tested skill as well as the mirth levels of all who participated and observed.

Homefinders Realtors maintains 11 sales offices in the northwest suburbs, Arlington Heights, Antioch, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, McHenry, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

Plans announced for Green Trails

Plans were announced today for Green Trails, a comprehensive planned unit development on a 744-acre site located west of Route 53 and south of Maple Avenue in Lisle Township, DuPage County, Illinois. The property, owned by the Green Trails Corporation, is being developed by Advance Construction Company, according to Paul Carson, president of Advance, who made the announcement.

Plans for Green Trails include several types of residences, recreational amenities, a 45-acre office and research park and two commercial areas — one 15 acres with a shopping mall, and the other 4 acres for a neighborhood shopping center. There also will be four separate school sites, totalling 43 acres, for three elementary schools and one junior high, and a day care center building. The developers are also planning a cable television system.

The housing types will include estate homes on 2½ acre lots, single-family homes, detached patio homes, townhomes, condominiums and apartments.

It is expected that there will be approximately 3600 residences of the various types within Green Trails.

A main emphasis of the project will be the linear park system of green belt areas, providing pathways and greenways for pedestrians. There also will be separate equestrian trails. One-hundred-eighteen acres will remain green open area. All of the pathways will lead from back yards of the residences providing safe play areas and commuting trails for children.

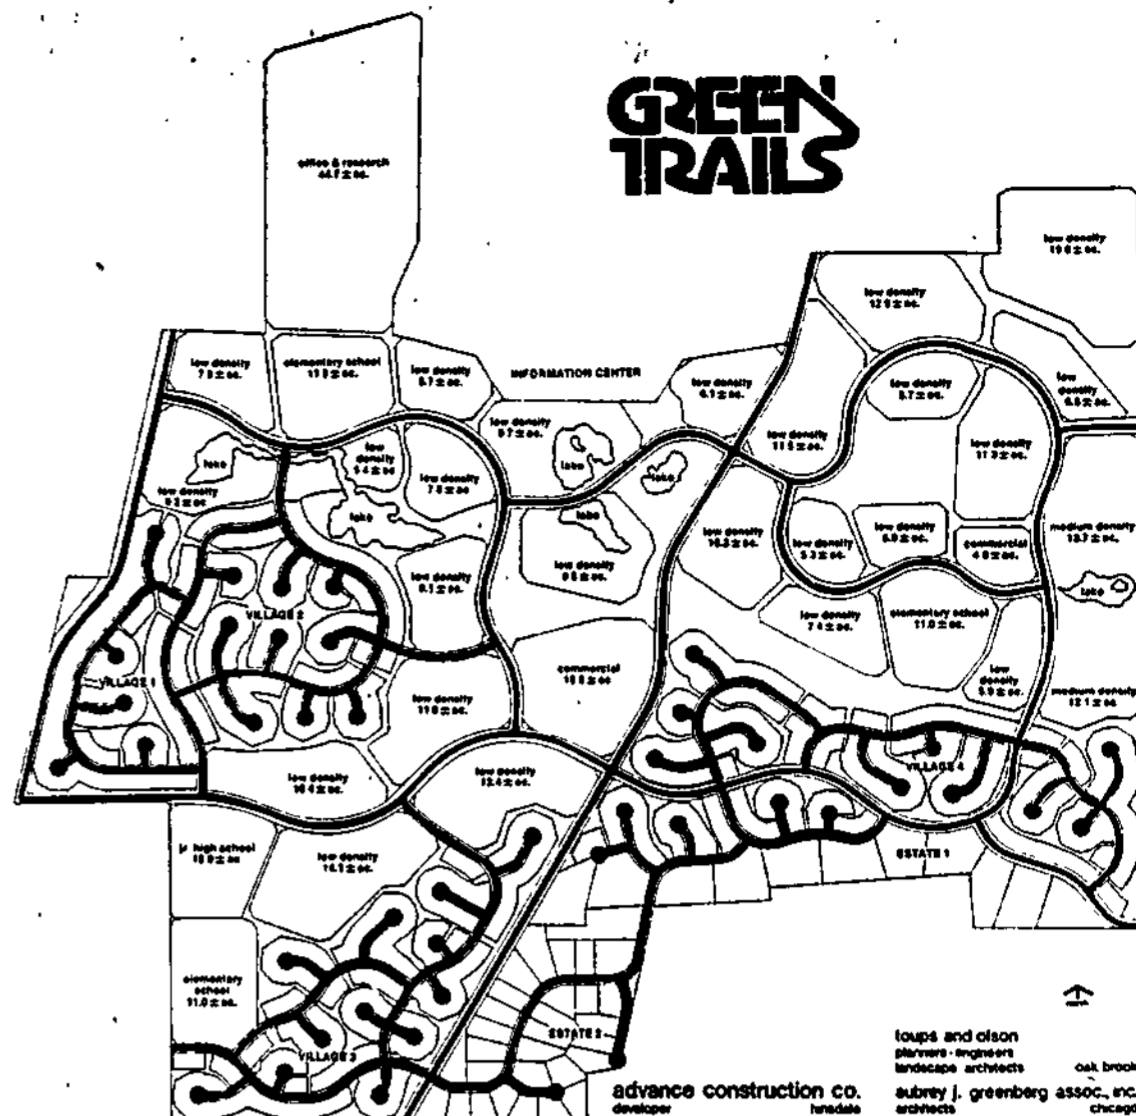

Present plans call for a number of tennis courts situated throughout the development and a swimming pool. The developers anticipate that there will be additional recreational facilities in the various areas, developed by individual residential builders, when the community is completed. Many other recreational facilities are nearby, including the Four Lakes Ski Slope and Recreation Complex, a 36-hole public golf course at Woodridge Country Club, Green Valley Forest Preserve with 1600 acres, Morton Arboretum, indoor tennis clubs, riding stables and the facilities of (both the Lisle and Naperville) park districts.

The Green Trails concept has allowed Advance Construction to develop the site in its initial stages in a plan unique to DuPage County and most of Illinois. They have obtained the zoning approval and will provide all utilities, in addition to building a network of roadways — both thoroughfares and arteries — through the development. College Road, which currently bisects the property, will be improved to become the main road through Green Trails.

The total acreage will be subdivided into approximately nine parcels for individual residential builders to construct developments. Specific types of housing for each area have been predetermined by Advance. Each builder will have to conform to standards set by a professional architectural review board, which has established guidelines for architectural style, quality, landscaping, and aesthetics. Ultimately, these standards will be maintained by the Green Trails Improvement Association, serving as an umbrella organization to the homeowners associations of each builder.

Initially, the focal point of the development will be the community information center to be built by Advance. The center will provide information on the total concept of Green Trails — the physical layout, and eventually, on the location and products of each builder. It also will be used by individual builders, prior to construction of their models and sales centers, for pre-opening inquiries. The center is scheduled for completion by fall 1974.

Fixing up house can help make sale, get good price

When you put your home up for sale, take a tip from the builders who display model homes. Make your home as clean and attractive as possible, and as free as possible of children, pets, and yourself.

This is the advice offered by Baird & Warner, Inc., one of the Chicago area's leading real estate sales organizations. According to Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the residential sales division, "You may have the best home on the block, but if it's not presented properly, it may take longer to sell and you may not get the price you expect."

Walters advises home owners to fix up and decorate the house. Discolored walls, peeling paint, cracked plaster, leaking faucets and windows and doors that stick might create a bad impression. You may have to spend some money to take care of these things, but your investment may be repaid in a better price.

Get rid of the clutter, especially in closets, basement, attic and garage. The less junk you have on hand, the roomier your house will appear.

Empty out your closets as much as you can. If need be, send clothing to the cleaners or give them to a neighbor temporarily. Get rid of bulky boxes. The idea is to make your closets seem spacious, not overcrowded. Whatever remains should be hung or stored neatly.

Clean your house thoroughly to make it shine before prospects enter. This means bathrooms and lavatories made sparkling, floors washed and waxed, furniture dusted, all beds made, dishes put away, wastebaskets and ash trays emptied, all appliances clean, windows washed, and no clothing strewn about.

Depending on the season, make sure your lawn is mowed and trimmed and the garden in good shape. In the winter, keep your walks and steps shoveled and free of ice.

Make yourself as scarce as possible. The best thing is for you and your family to be away entirely when your broker shows your house.

"Don't think you have to be a gracious host or hostess when your house is shown," Walters said. "Prospects are judging the house, not you. If you are too near, the prospect may hesitate to express his real feeling. It's up to the broker, not you, to answer the prospect's questions."

If you must be in the house, stay in one room. And keep children and pets under control. Children can be pleasantly distracting. Pets might annoy the prospect. Refrain from playing the radio, TV, record player, or musical instruments while the house is being shown, again to avoid annoying prospects.

"These are simple tips," the Baird & Warner executive said, "but if you follow them, they can help you sell the house and get the price you want."

4 real estate firms joined Century 21

Four local real estate firms have joined Century 21, a national real estate franchise operation.

The firms are Arlington Realty, Inc., four offices, Countryside Real Estate Inc., one office, Village Square Realty, Inc., two offices and Gerald Anthony & Associates, one office.

Century 21 announces the grand opening of its services this month with over 30 offices in the Chicago and Northern Illinois region.

Regional headquarters for the operation are at 9501 W. Devon Ave., Rosemont, where the real estate franchise also maintains its sales academy for affiliate offices.

Formed in the fall of 1971, California-based Century 21 has seen its original 17 real estate offices grow to more than 850 by August of this year. They are now in 22 states and Washington, D.C.

LIEBERMAN OFFERS trips for incentive

Stan Lieberman, president of Lieberman Realtors, recently announced a unique sales incentive program in which all his sales people could win trips to Spain for two, for a full week, if they accumulate the necessary points through new listings and sales.

Says Lieberman, "Based on previous performance, we know the top prize is well within the reach of many of our sales people."

In this program, Lieberman sales people are not competing against each other but are competing with themselves since there is no limit to the number of trips and other prizes that will be awarded.

Everybody wins in this program. Prizes are available to all sales people who earn the qualifying points. Other prizes include trips to Las Vegas, color television sets, black and white televisions, AM-FM clock radios and tape recorders.

McCord Tire buys building

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates reports the sale of the one story 34,000 square foot building at 1301 Busse Road in Elk Grove Village to McCord Tire Company. The larger quarters will allow for the consolidation of two separate facilities presently located in Bensenville.

Vernon F. Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was sole broker in the $500,000 sale transaction. Attorneys were Richard Ungaretti of Kirkland and Ellis representing the seller and Gene Nottolini for the buyer.

Michale Dusik gains promotion

Michael M. Dusik

President Thomas A. Kinst has announced.

Dusik, who holds a B.S. in marketing from Southern Illinois University, joined the $145 million Berwyn Institution in 1971. He also attended Morton College and Ferris State College.

A member of Alpha Kappa Psi, Dusik has taken advanced study courses at the American Savings and Loan Institute.

Dusik is president of the Lincoln Federal bowling league. He and his wife, Elizabeth Ann, live at 5704 W. 35th St., Cicero.

Real estate school publishes catalog

The Institute for Real Estate Sales located at 1000 E. Northwest Highway, Mt. Prospect, has recently published a professionally designed catalog. The Institute serves the needs of the real estate industry by conducting classes on a continuous basis for individuals who want to fulfill the basic requirements of eligibility for the state salespersons exam, for salespeople who want to learn or improve sales skills and for anyone who desires a sound basis in real estate knowledge. This catalog details among other things the steps to take to enter the real estate profession, the philosophy and function of the Institute, the administrators and instructors, the courses of study, their content and methods of instruction, the cost of instruction and the dates and times and place of the courses. This catalog is available at no charge to any interested individual.

Mr. James S. Regan III, president of the Institute and also an instructional design specialist states, "This catalog is a comprehensive publication. It gives the reader an accurate picture of what to expect from the Institute. The catalog is unusual in that it is designed around key questions which have been asked over the years by people who desire real estate training from the Institute. Anyone who is seriously considering entering real estate as a part-time or full-time career should read this publication first!"

Milwaukee Rd. names passenger personnel chief

Orren R. Anderson of Elgin has been appointed manager of passenger services for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Ry. Co., succeeding Maurice P. Burns of Schaumburg, who has retired after more than 47 years of service with the railroad. Anderson will also continue to serve as director of mass transit services. The announcement was made by

C. C. Dilley, general manager of passenger services.

Anderson, a native of Elgin, has been in the Milwaukee Road passenger traffic department throughout his career. In 1954 he was put in charge of travel promotion with the title of district passenger agent. He became assistant to general manager of passenger services in 1959 and assistant manager of passenger services in 1968. Since February 1, 1973, he has been director of mass transit services.

BURNS BEGAN his career with the Milwaukee Road in the passenger rate department in Chicago in 1926 and held various positions there and in Seattle, Wash., and Butte, Mont., prior to becoming district passenger agent in Tacoma, Wash., in 1947. He later advanced to the position of general agent passenger department in Seattle in 1960. The same year he was appointed assistant manager of passenger services at Chicago. He has held the position of manager of passenger services since 1968.

Stark named veep by Miner Enterprises

Joseph G. Stark of Arlington Heights has been named vice president for sales at W. H. Miner Division, Miner Enterprises Inc.

Joseph Stark

Stark joined Miner six years ago, most recently serving as general sales manager for western regions. Previously he was with Magnus Metal Division, NL Industries.

Holding a B.S. degree from DePaul University, Stark completed special management and sales training programs, including courses at the University of Chicago.

Stark is a member of the Union League Club, Western Railroad Club, Chicago Car Foreman's Assn. and the Engineer's Club of San Francisco.

Racanelli assigned to project team

A Palatine optometrist, Dr. Vito A. Racanelli Jr. of 418 S. Creekside Dr., has been appointed a member of the American Optometric Assn.'s project team on industry relations by the organization's president, Dr. B. J. Shannon of Madison, Wis.

The AOA project team on industry relations is concerned with continuing and improving relations between the profession of optometry and the optical industry.

The 18,750-member American Optometric Assn. represents the nation's largest vision care profession and is headquartered in St. Louis, Mo.

Illinois Bell's Northbrook building cited by architects

Illinois Bell's new 4A toll switching center at 2305 Sanders Rd. in Northbrook is one of eight buildings in the United States selected to receive the nation's highest award for architectural excellence.

The awards are presented annually by the American Institute of Architects.

In singling out the Northbrook facility for a distinguished building award, the AIA took special note of the imaginative design of functional aspects of the building.

THE EXTERIOR OF the three-story structure uses steel and laminated glass paneling which can be removed and reused when the building is expanded. Also a corewall partition, which separates the outer steel and glass panels from the switching system, will serve as a dustproof curtain for the sensitive equipment during construction of a horizontal building addition.

No exhaust pipes or cooling stacks are located on the roof. Instead, four cylindrical stacks, which are integrated with the overall building design, were placed in front of the building. Functionally, this means that pipes run only one floor — from the lower level to the first floor instead of four levels. An in case another floor is added to the building, the exhaust system will not have to be moved.

The architects' award committee said: "This project responds directly to 20th century technology. It is for machines rather than people — almost more an object than a building — and it is a refreshing and applicable use of a prototype in right place at the right time. For the viewer, the arrangement and situation of functional elements is almost pure sculpture."

Digital Equipment promotes John Baum

John F. Baum, of 1050 Old Mill Dr., Palatine, senior sales representative for Digital Equipment Corp., has been promoted to industrial sales manager for the Chicago district, according to Charles Schelbe, central regional manager.

Baum will be responsible for the development and management of major industrial accounts for Digital's broad range of computer products. He will be based in Northbrook until the company's new regional headquarters in Rolling Meadows is opened this fall.

John Baum

The Battle Creek, Michigan native joined the world's largest manufacturer of minicomputers in May 1972 as a sales engineer after three years association with Goodyear Atomic Corp. as a process control group leader. Because of his sales excellence, he was promoted to senior sales representative in January 1974.

Baum was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1963 with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering and has been awarded patents in process control.

We want your kids.

Finding an apartment where your kids are welcome can be a problem. The answer is Country Knoll, a new rental community in Schaumburg designed for little people and their parents.

The rental units are arranged among gently-rolling hills and trees—away from the reach of city noise and pollution. You'll be happy to know that this safe, natural environment is permanently and professionally maintained.

Here you can take family walks through acres of open land. There's a playground with room for plenty of kids. And Country Knoll has a vast recreation area where your family can throw a ball around or have a picnic. At the pool, you can all go swimming together.

For grown-ups, there are lots of planned activities, like free tennis lessons and organized volleyball. And so you'll have time off to participate, Country Knoll has plenty of babysitters available.

In your apartment, there's room for the family—the rooms are truly spacious. You enjoy the quiet and privacy afforded by soundproof ceilings and concrete walls 8 inches thick. You get wall-to-wall carpeting, individually-controlled heating and air-conditioning, full appliances—everything to make family life a pleasure.

Come see our furnished models—and bring your kids. Sorry, but no dogs please!

Now there's Shelter—for neglected kids

by ELEANOR RIVES

Shelter, Inc. has come of age.

Conceived in a conversation two years ago between Lt. Paul Buckholz of the Arlington Heights Police Department's youth division and Jenny Riechers of Arlington Heights, a concerned citizen, it now has a complete board of directors, an executive director who begins work next Monday, a location for its headquarters and imminent licensing by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

It will be fully operational by mid-December, serving Elk Grove, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Palatine Townships.

Shelter, Inc. is a completely autonomous, not-for-profit child welfare agency formed for the purpose of finding emergency foster care on a volunteer basis to abused, neglected and dependent children, ages infant to 18.

WHERE DO YOU find neglected, dependent, abused children in the northwest suburbs? Many places.

- In the house where a man threw his 2-year-old tot out a second story window.
- In the suburban home where a year-old baby lay black and blue and bleeding because of neglected diaper changes.
- In a local police station where a toddler screamed hysterically every time a woman went near him, but stretched out his arms to police officers.
- In the basement of another suburban home where a child was found chained to the bed, another locked in the closet.
- In the tidy backyard where a 7-year-old who disobeyed his father was cruelly beaten with a shovel.

ONE DOES NOT have to search far to unearth such cases. They are reported to local police departments; their sad details make headlines; they move youth commission members, pastors, "Fish" members, relatives and the next door neighbors to action. Nothing is quite so moving as the plight of an abused neglected child.

It moved Lt. Buckholz and Mrs. Riechers to form a steering committee, which in turn gave rise to a board of directors, composed of 12 members, all

You can help

Shelter, Inc. has been organized to provide emergency foster care for abused, neglected and dependent children in the northwest suburban area.

To help raise funds to launch its full scale operation, Shelter will sponsor a benefit performance of "The Most Happy Fella" on Sunday, Sept. 22, at the Des Plaines Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

The performance is at 7:30 p.m. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres are included in the ticket price of $5 and will be served during intermission. Seating is unreserved. There is a limit of 300 tickets and if Shelter board members accomplish their goal of a sellout, there will be no tickets at the door.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Cathy Brier at 537-0158. All proceeds go to Shelter, Inc.

volunteers, including lawyers, an insurance man, social workers, schoolteachers, a representative of The Bridge in Palatine, Lt. Buckholz and Mrs. Riechers, who is its chairman.

It moved these people to formulate all the necessary policies and statements for licensing required by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, and to determine foster family guidelines, an orientation program for foster parents and other concepts of short term placement.

IT MOVED NEARLY 80 northwest suburban parents to volunteer emergency care for a period up to 40 days for neglected, abused and dependent children as the cases arise. This is on a "good Samaritan" basis, with no reimbursement except for necessary medical, dental and educational expenses of the child. Primarily, he needs food and a roof over his head.

"Almost every day, we board members get calls seeking foster homes," said Loni Milz, who is also chairman of the Wheeling Youth Commission. "When we contacted 118 agencies, 44 responded, reporting 275 abused, neglected and dependent children in the northwest suburban area in a one-year period."

High on the list of priorities which Shelter believes will make its operation most effective are three basic policies:

- Prospective foster parents are guaranteed that they will receive the necessary orientation, probably over a period of ten weeks, both in their own homes and in foster parent groups.
- Lines of communication between the foster family and Shelter will be kept open at all times. Any questions or problems that may arise will be dealt with by professional people in direct contact with the organization.
- The child shall be placed without delay (within five days) and placement shall be local (within his own school district) except in rare cases where the executive director feels it would be more beneficial to remove the child from his environment.

"Basic to the entire procedure is Shelter's aim to return the child to his natural parents," said Mrs. Milz. "This would be with the help of mental health agencies, hot lines, Parents Anonymous or other organizations."

ral parents," said Mrs. Milz. "This would be with the help of mental health agencies, hot lines, Parents Anonymous or other organizations."

ALLEN YASGUR is Shelter's new executive director. He will work with local youth service and mental health agencies, the juvenile officers of police departments and school social workers and psychologists. He will train a volunteer professional staff and screen and train the first group of foster parents. The only other paid positions will be a secretary and a coordinator of volunteer services.

But Shelter needs more than a director, more than a direction. "We need speakers to acquaint organizations with our agency," said Mrs. Milz. "We need more volunteer families, we need office equipment — new or used. We will need volunteer office workers when we occupy our Rolling Meadows headquarters in December. And always — any time — we need money."

School social workers have been generous with their time. There has been much support from the Churches. Reminder Publications donated the original art work shown on this page to be used as Shelter's symbol.

A COMMUNITY RESOURCE Council, composed of 33 members, is being formed, its purpose to give feedback to the board of directors, to seek the financial support of the community and to bring about greater interest and understanding of Shelter.

Anyone wishing more information about Shelter — prospective foster parents, donors of funds or equipment, organizations seeking to engage speakers — may call Mrs. Susan Roberts at 392-6796.

"Shelter is a completely innovative program," declared Loni Milz. "As far as we know, there is nothing like it in the United States. We hope it will be a model for other communities. In fact, we would be happy to see a whole epidemic of Shelter organizations."

University women meet in Japan

They came from 42 countries to talk of peace, friendship

by KAREN THOMPSON

They arrived in Japan from all over the world to promote understanding and friendship among university women, encourage international cooperation and further the development of education.

The International Federation of University Women (IFUW), formed in 1919 by university women from Canada, Great Britain and the United States, dedicated itself to world peace.

This year's 18th triennial conference brought 900 women from 42 countries together in Tokyo and Kyoto under the theme "The Meaning and Measurement of Human Progress."

MRS. KATHERINE ROBISON, Des Plaines, a charter member of the Northwest Suburban branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW), attended the previous conference three years ago in Philadelphia and vowed that no matter what location was chosen for the 1974 conference, she would again attend.

Japan, the site set, couldn't have been much further away. This was the first conference held in Asia.

"I'd do it again even though the cost is high," said Mrs. Robison. "It's a great feeling to see friendships develop between women from all corners of the world — Bangladesh to El Salvador."

Attired in her blue and white print kimono, thong-like zori sandals and white tabi socks, Mrs. Robison reflects a bit of the delicate flavor of a faraway land and a gracious people.

THE JAPANESE contingent prepared for the congregation of women for over three years. According to Mrs. Robison, "Their hospitality was overwhelming."

From the intricate ice sculptures in the shape of Japanese temples adorning the tables at the main reception to the welcome speech by a "most exquisite lady," Her Highness the Crown Princess, not a detail was forgotten.

"Every object has a definite meaning in Japan," said Mrs. Robison. "The people are very artistic."

Business meetings filled part of the conference schedule. Elected president to succeed Dr. Bina Roy of India was Dr. Elizabeth S. May of Washington, D. C.

Headquarters for the convention was the new International Conference Hall in Kyoto, the largest meeting place in the Orient. In the building, which Mrs. Robison described as "soaring stylized Oriental architecture," the women attended special interest sessions and discussion seminars.

Seminars in three major areas were offered: Partnership in progress — the challenge to voluntary women's organizations, lifelong education and the quality of life.

ON A LIGHTER VEIN, the conventioners chose special interest groups ranging from Japanese arts, religion and industry to the performance of the tea ceremony and Japanese flower arranging.

Unlike former conferences when women stayed on college campuses, the Japanese session was structured with women checking into hotels throughout Kyoto. Though there were interpreters in English, French and Japanese, there was a definite language barrier, said Mrs. Robison, who has been a member of AAUW for over 27 years.

But the women bridged that gap and often spent off hours chatting about mutual problems and interests. "I was surprised to find that there was almost no talk of politics," Mrs. Robison said. "The women were mainly interested in my family."

On a shopping excursion, Mrs. Robison met a young woman who was employed by the Japanese Family Planning Agency. "She was very concerned about the new abortion laws in Illinois," she said.

"IT ALSO BECAME vaguely familiar with farming in New Zealand, the conditions in the Philippines and the Japanese WCTU, which incidentally, will hold its convention in Chicago soon," Mrs. Robison said.

The mother of four grown children found that only one or two of the women she talked to were housewives. "Most of them were teachers, lawyers, researchers, accountants and doctors," she said.

"While more women in the United States are educated, the few women who do receive formal education in foreign lands go all the way through to the doctorate level. Almost all of these women are unmarried," she continued.

Mrs. Robison, who is also very active in an "entirely different type organization," the 21st Star Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is home now from her 15-day stay in Japan, reminiscing about the friendships and experiences gained.

It's a safe bet that she'll be one of the first on the registry for the next IFUW convention, to be held in Stirling, Scotland.

MANY JAPANESE women and men still wear traditional kimono as modeled by Mrs. Robison. The trend for younger women, however, is long shirtwaists, platform shoes and cotton sun hats. Both men and women carry parasols to ward off the humid, hot temperatures in Japan.

A national hotline

Help for runaways

Metro-Help, a Chicago telephone clearing house for troubled youth, has taken on the nation's runaways.

In August, with the help of a $100,000 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Metro-Help's seven-paid and 60-volunteer staff members began accepting telephone calls from runaway teenagers around the United States.

The organization's communications director, Mike Gold, said since its inception in 1972, Metro-Help has concerned itself with problems of Chicago's youth.

"We've been dealing with a vast number of problems, including runaways," he said. "Our most important function has been as a clearing house. We try to be the one central telephone number in the city where a kid can call if he has some kind of personal problem or if he needs help. All the agencies in town would go crazy trying to publicize their own programs, so we do that for them."

When Metro-Help learned HEW was seeking an organization to become a national telephone hotline for runaways, the Chicago group submitted a proposal for the eight-month grant and was selected to do the project.

"We still will maintain our Chicago program," Gold said. The decision to "go national" meant Metro-Help had to compile a national data file on runaways, contact social agencies throughout the country which deal with the problem and begin promoting the hotline so runaways would know where to call for help.

The program will be the first national record-keeping effort on the runaway problem.

"THERE REALLY is no hard national data at this point, but we will have data like where a runaway is from, how far he has gone from home, his age, and why he ran away," Gold said.

Metro-Help held a three-day conference in Chicago in early August with representatives from social agencies in 20 U.S. cities. Gold said conference discussions made it clear the group's intuitions about runaways, based on two years of dealing with Chicago youth, held true for the nation.

Gold said HEW places the number of runaways each year at 1 million, but "I think that is an overestimate," he said. "We should be able to extrapolate better figures once our program is going."

In the late 1960s, the runaway problem was highly publicized because teen-agers, it seemed, were leaving home in droves, heading for hippie meccas such as the Haight Ashbury district in San Francisco and the East Village in New York.

"Since such focal points no longer exist," Gold said, "it's more difficult to pinpoint the number of runaways today. But from the calls we've been handling in Chicago, and the fact there are more than 100 runaway programs in the nation, I suspect the same number are running away now as then."

From all available information, he said, as many girls leave home as boys and percentage-wise, as many rural youth run away as city children.

The runaway problem includes more than rebellious vagabonds and frightened drug addicts who steal at night.

"Another part of the problem is kids who've been kicked out of their homes," Gold said. "They may have considered running away, but they got kicked out before they have the chance. They feel powerless. Their problems are like those of a runaway, but the don't have the option of going back home if things get too rough."

THE OBJECTIVE of the hotline is to "deal with whatever problems runaways have while they are away from home."

"If they have difficulty finding employment, or with drugs, or with legal issues or just the personal problems of being in a strange city, they call us and we get them whatever information they need to know."

"We do short term counseling over the telephone and then refer them to local agencies in the cities they are in. We even have the ability to call up the agency while the runaway is still on the phone and put the two in touch," he said.

As a secondary service, the national switchboard provides messages to the parents of runaways, without revealing the child's location.

"We hold confidentiality as a primary concern," he said. "We certainly are ready to relay messages to parents, but often, it is good for the runaway not to go home right away. Sometimes it is best for them to be away from their parents."

The national hotline number is 800-621-4000 and in Illinois, 800-972-6004. (United Press International)

Considering a condominium? Read this

(Editor's note: Monica Perin is on vacation. Patricia McCormack, family editor for United Press International, is the author of these hints on buying condominiums.)

This year Americans may buy as many as 220,000 condominium units. But Virginia Knauer, director of consumer affairs in Washington, warns:

"Along with the growing number of consumers who are buying condominiums comes an increasing number of complaints about shoddy construction, poor maintenance, hidden costs and resale difficulties."

Some things you should inquire about before you buy:

- Is the condominium that you see the entire development? You should learn whether the builder plans to enlarge the community by adding more land and additional units. Such additions could affect your ownership of the common areas.

- Is the downpayment refundable? If not, don't put any money down until you are sure of a mortgage loan.

- What will your monthly maintenance costs be? Add these to your mortgage downpayment to find out the extent of your total monthly obligation.

It's a good idea to talk to some present owners living in the condominium or ask people in other ones. Ask for their experience and whether non-mortgage expenses have accelerated.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

sumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

To protect consumers against alleged deceptive practices in both the advertising and selling of condominiums, Mrs. Knauer reported that the FTC has begun a nationwide investigation of the industry. The probe will concentrate on such problems as:

- Agreements under which certain matter that does not tell the prospective buyer what he may be getting into.

- Agreements under which certain companies must be hired to manage the development or building, sometimes at excessive fees.

- Long-term leases under which owners of condominiums must rent swimming pools, other recreational facilities, parking lots and even some of the grounds. Sometimes leases cost a lot and run as long as 99 years.

The SEC has brought condominiums under its jurisdiction to protect consumers who may buy a unit as an investment.

In these cases, SEC requires the developer to register with the SEC and also to give you a prospectus explaining risks involved before you buy.

The Internal Revenue Service also has new guidelines concerning condominiums. To insure that condominium associations are not profit-making, IRS has determined that funds accumulated by these associations are taxable unless excess payments by the individual owners are returned to them at the end of the year or are applied to the next year's assessments.

The condominium has a certain tax benefit. Because an owner buys his unit as he would a house, with a downpayment, monthly mortgage payments and the payment of real estate taxes, he can take the same tax deduction mortgage interest and tax payments as an owner of a house.

The Consumer Division of the Chicago Better Business Bureau in cooperation with the Chicago and West Suburban Dietetic Associations in sponsoring a consumer forum on foods and nutrition. The forum will be held Saturday, Sept. 21, at The Loop College, 64 E. Lake St., from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Experts who will provide information on food and nutrition are: Mrs. Jane Byrne, commissioner of the Department of Consumer Sales, Weights and Measures; Gloria Hansen, consumer education counsel from the Washington, D.C., office of the National Consumers Assn.; Mrs. Shari G. Bryant, specialist/consumer concerns; Marguerite Robinson, consumer affairs officer for the Food and Drug Administration; LaRosa Ketterling, president of North Suburban Dietetic Association, and Dr. Dean C. Fletcher, director/section of food sciences for the American Medical Association.

A sampling of new types of foods will be provided at the forum. Those wishing to attend should contact Karen Lind, director/Consumer Division, BBB/Chicago, 430 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60611, as registration is required in advance.

Garden club offers Flower show course

Mrs. Dale Schafernak of Palatine, flower show schools chairman for the Garden Club of Illinois, is announcing plans for Course 1, to be held next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Triton College Faculty Lounge, 2000 Fifth Ave., River Grove.

The course includes instruction on artistic design, horticulture and flower show planning.

Local garden club members on Mrs. Schafernak's committee are Mrs. Emil Fick, Mount Prospect and Mrs. Joseph Koenen, Arlington Heights. Anyone wishing information on reservations for the course may call 259-4514.

Tom Schilling, Palatine; and the groom's brother, Craig.

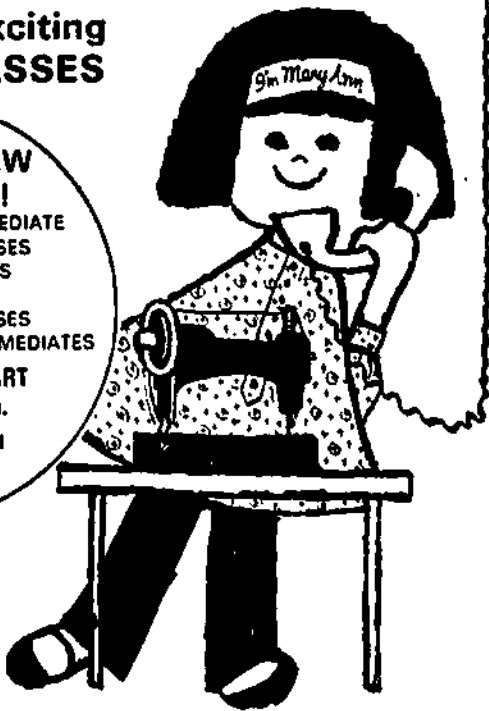

MUSIC FOR THE ceremony was provided by flutist Victoria Graeff of Palatine and soloists Duane Lundeen, Oak Park, and the bride's brother, John of Denver, Colo.

Following a luncheon reception at Nordic Hills Country Club, the newlyweds left on a two-week honeymoon on the East Coast. They will make their home in Macomb while completing their final year at Western Illinois University.

Monica is a 1972 graduate of Wheeling High School. John graduated from Hershey High in 1971. The couple met while attending high school.

Look Younger Than Friends Your Age

Now and then you like to be a step ahead of your friends. You like to set yourself apart from them.

Now you can, in a wonderfully satisfying way. You can look younger than many friends your age, just by easing away skin dryness that accents lines and wrinkles that can make you look older than need be.

Fortunate women, from Bangkok to Baghdad, now look their youngest because they know the secret benefits of a skin-loving formulation created by beauty researchers. Skin almost drinks in the precious fluid, known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. Its natural moisture, tropical oils and other emollients work with nature to maintain the oil-moisture balance needed for you to look your youngest. Complexion becomes more supple and radiant from the first days you use quick-penetrating Oil of Olay.

Faithful users let Oil of Olay work its wonders at least twice a day. In the morning, as a protective, non-greasy makeup base that lets cosmetics stay fresh for hours. At night, to soothe and cherish as you sleep.

Oil of Olay® is at your drugstore. It's not a moment too soon to begin looking younger than friends your age.

A 'lady' holly needs a male

Dear Dorothy: For some time I've been wondering why our lovely holly tree doesn't have berries. Do you know? — Eva Warner

The primary reason is probably no pollination. Male and female flowers are on separate plants. If there is no male holly nearby (900 feet or less), the female plant produces no berries. Only in the spring can you examine the flowers and determine the sex of the plant. A good book on trees will have pictures of the different types of flowers.

Another possible reason: Unless the plant was propagated from a cutting taken from an older plant, most female hollies will not bloom until they are five to 10 years old.

Dear Dorothy: We have a lovely dark-colored bathroom rug that stains the tile floor when it gets wet. We have taken it up temporarily in the hopes that you might have some suggestions on how to keep this from happening. — Mrs. Thor Borgstrand

The only thing that might work is to soak the rug in a heavy hot suds and then rinse thoroughly in warm water. If the rug has a heavy rubberized or foam backing, it is also advisable to wipe over the backing repeatedly, using a damp white cloth. Usually, heavy backings such as these have a tendency to retain excess dye. Being heavy makes them difficult to rinse thoroughly and the color then transfers to the flooring when damp.

Dear Dorothy: Thought your readers might like to try two tiny adaptations I've used recently. When I use a vanilla pudding mix, I add a small lump of butter and a half-teaspoon vanilla. Also, when I used canned gravy, a bit of red wine gives it a homemade taste. Both dishes are immeasurably better now. — Ada Brimmer.

Two ministers officiate at nuptials

Ministers from both their churches conducted the Aug. 17 marriage ceremony uniting Monica Jacqueline Smart and John Andrew Tillou in the garden of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Tillou, 2115 N. Verde, Arlington Heights.

Father Clarke Wills of St. Philips Episcopal Church, Palatine, and the Rev. Stephen Dahl of Kingswood Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove, shared the duties for the 11 a.m. wedding held beneath a bow-topped white lattice trellis.

Monica, daughter of Mrs. Theodore E. Smart, 321 Hawthorne Rd., Buffalo Grove, and the late Mr. Smart, was given in marriage by her brother, Ted.

Her period gown, made by Mrs. Tillou, was of crystalline organza with rosebud embroidery edging the flounces of the skirt. The bodice was of embroidered silk organza. A circlet of pink and white roses caught Monica's floor-length veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Julie, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Leslie; Julie Bettin, Buffalo Grove, and Mrs. David Gells, Harvard. They were attired in dimity floral-print gowns with full sleeves and skirts, each with a different pastel undershirt and sash. Natural straw hats and wicker baskets of flowers matching the dress print completed their ensembles.

The groom's cousins, Kimberly and Michael Cochran of Atlanta, Ga., were flower girl and ring bearer. Kimberly wore a petite version of the bridesmaid's dress; Michael wore white short pants and a wine-colored jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tillou

John chose James Tau of Franklin Park as his best man. Seating guests were William Hood, Arlington Heights;

Anti-freeze for gardens

Frost warnings ahead! Any time now those cold Canadian winds are going to whip down and streak through your garden like Sherman on his march to the sea.

You can anticipate the first killing frost and extend the season if you prepare for the onslaught now. Start listening to the 6 p.m. weather report on the radio or TV to give you a chance to cover your plants in early evening. This will eliminate a mad, grudging rush when you are ready for bed after the 10 o'clock bad news warns you of impending disaster.

Usually the first killing frost is followed by a period of Injun Summer — nice weather — and if you survive the first frost, you can keep your tender vegetables producing so much longer.

STRING BEANS, for instance, are just about the most vulnerable crop in the garden. One half-hearted frost knocks them out first. Tomatoes are touchy too — and you want to get a big one for our "Big Tomato" contest, don't you!

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

So have some hot kops, tarps, black plastic, even baskets, buckets, brown bags or whatever waiting in your garage to throw over the rows of beans and tomato plants.

Personally, I prefer to protect my plants with a straw mulch. It is easier than other contrivances and won't smother the plant the next morning if you forget to uncover them right away.

Since I use chicken wire cages around my tomatoes for support anyway, it is a simple task to prepare for frost. All I do is add several metal stakes in the ground, placing them outside the chicken wire cages. Then I fill the space between the cage and the stakes with straw. The stakes hold the straw in place. I am a mulcher anyway, and about now I buy several extra bales of straw and leave them in the garden area, where they are convenient to me for frost protection. (Straw has the added benefit of enriching the soil, because once the garden is through producing, I simply rototill the straw under the soil along with the dead plant stems, and the accumulation of my compost pile.)

IF A LIGHT frost is expected, I don't even bother to cover cabbage, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, carrots, potatoes, kohlrabi and turnips because these are tough and can take it.

Here's a tip that may help you save your garden, even if a light frost hits and you didn't cover the night before. (Perhaps you were out of town, at a party or didn't know frost was scheduled.) This is how you do it: When you get out to the garden under cover of early morning darkness, and see that the plants are wilted, if the temperature didn't dip below 25 degrees, and the sun has not yet started to beat down on them, put the sprinkler on the plants and keep it running until the sun comes out. In many cases you can revive them. When frost threatens cranberry bogs, for example, it is general practice to flood the bogs to forestall damage. If, however, it is already late in the morning, forget it. This technique for reviving light frost-hit plants will be of no use.

Of special interest will be the Salt Creek Reclamation Plant.

THE GROUP WILL gather for lunch at 1:45 p.m. at Lancer's Steak House in Schaumburg. Reservations, at $8 per person, are open to anyone affiliated with the construction industry. They may be obtained by contacting Joyce Slone at 279-9500.

BJ Davis, assisted by Joyce Patrinos, heads the committee in charge of the event, and may be contacted at 226-6872 for further information other than reservations.

Women in Construction, O'Hare Suburban Chapter, meets regularly the third Tuesday of the month at the Navarone Restaurant, Elk Grove Village. Membership is open to all women actively employed in the construction industry.

Women in Construction focus on Schaumburg

The O'Hare Suburban Chapter of the National Association of Women in Construction announces its second annual WIC Week celebration, in recognition of Founders Day. The event will take place Saturday, Sept. 14, with the focus this year on Schaumburg.

Both Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker and Mayor Robert O. Atcher of Schaumburg have recognized Founders Day by proclamation.

The event will begin with registration from 9 to 9:15 a.m. in the Schaumburg Civic Center. A tour will originate at the Civic Center Council Chambers with a discussion on city planning by Mayor Atcher. The group will then tour, by chartered bus, sites of interest, both under construction and completed, representing various styles of architecture and construction from the 1800s to the present.

Pyrogy sale

The women of the Apostleship Prayer from Immaculate Conception Ukrainian Catholic Church, Palatine, will hold a pyrogy sale Saturday at 3 p.m. at the church, 755 S. Benton St.

Pyrogy is a dumpling-type dough that can be filled with potatoes, meats or other stuffings and served with butter or sour cream.

Orders for the specialty are requested in advance so the women will know how many to prepare for. Phone numbers are 358-1481 and 359-7885.

DAR members at convention

Regents of three area chapters of Daughters of the American Revolution will be in attendance Friday at the DAR Days annual kickoff conference in Naperville.

Mrs. C. B. Robison, Des Plaines, regent of Twenty-first Star Chapter, will be accompanied by Mrs. C. W. Grange, Des Plaines, and several Park Ridge members of the chapter. Ell Skinner Chapter will be represented by Regent Mrs. Maurice A. Garland of Rolling Meadows as well as Mrs. Blanche Kolman, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Carl Berglund, Rolling Meadows; and Mrs. Douglas Gutzman, Arlington Heights.

Signal Hill Chapter of Barrington will be represented by Regent Barbara Sullivan and Mrs. Lawrence Sharpe of Palatine, plus members from Barrington and Mundelein.

Reports, exhibits, a luncheon and afternoon seminars are on the agenda.

Area women who are descendants of soldiers, millitamen and patriots who performed public service in the cause of independence during the American Revolution are eligible for DAR membership.

Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.

SERIES E

Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever. Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen. If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new. And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots. I'll always be there when you need me. And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

New E Bonds pay 4% interest when held to maturity of 3 years (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Apple Temptations

Since the choice of the first Eve, there've been more than 7000 named apple varieties recorded. Now, about 10 or 12 varieties account for an annual average United States production of over 6 billion pounds. But each year nearly one-fourth of this crop comes from the mountain-rimmed, green valleys of Washington State. Here, nippy nights, sun-glazed days, volcanic soil and glacial streams, produce growing conditions which are just about perfect for this favorite, wholesome, and versatile fruit.

Washington's top four varieties cover all apple needs, from satisfying low-calorie snacking (a medium-size apple has about 80 calories) to the most elaborate dessert, and are: Red Delicious, Golden Delicious, Winesap and Rome Beauty. Each variety has special characteristics, establishing it as preferred for certain uses. Though most apples may be used 'fresh,' for juicy, toothsome eating — for salads and compotes — choose the Red or Golden Delicious for such recipes, as these are sweet-meated and of a fine texture. For either flavorful eating or cooking select the all-purpose Winesap and Golden Delicious; for savory, special baking, the firm-skinned Rome Beauty. Keep apples in your refrigerator to insure crispness. And dip them in lemon'd water to keep them white when cut.

APPLE RICE CREAM

- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 1/2 cup raw regular rice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon mace
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 2 medium-size apples, Red or Golden Delicious

Combine milk, rice and salt in top of double boiler. Bring to boiling over direct heat, stirring often. Set over boiling water and cover. Simmer 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Stir a little of the hot mixture into the beaten egg, then stir into remaining rice. Add sugar, and cook, stirring constantly, for 2 to 3 minutes, until egg thickens. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla and mace. Cool. Beat cream to soft peaks. Fold into cooled rice. Core apples, and cut in matchstick pieces. Fold into pudding. Makes 6 servings.

Variation: Substitute 1 (12-ounce) can apricot nectar and 1/4 cup water for milk.

BLUE CHEESE MOLD

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup white table wine
- 6 ounces blue cheese, crumbled
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons finely-chopped parsley
- 1 1/2 tablespoons finely-chopped green onion
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 or 3 Red or Golden Delicious apples, sliced

Soften gelatin in wine. Set over hot water, and heat until gelatin is completely dissolved. Mix cheese with lemon juice. Gradually blend in mayonnaise, mixing until smooth. Stir in gelatin, and blend well. Add parsley, onion and paprika. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Beat cream to soft peaks and fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into 1-quart mold. Chill several hours or overnight. Unmold, and serve with crisp apples, cut in wedges, and dipped in lemon'd water bath. Makes 1 quart.

GINGERED FRUIT COMPOTE

- 1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons sliced or preserved ginger
- 1 tablespoon syrup from ginger
- Dash of salt
- 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 apples (1 Red Delicious, 1 Golden Delicious)
- 1 large grapefruit, pared and sectioned

Combine sugar, water, ginger and syrup, and salt; simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat, add lemon juice and cool. Shortly before serving, core apples and slice thinly. Combine apples and grapefruit sections; pour ginger syrup over all. Makes about 6 servings.

APPLE SPARKLE SALAD

- 2 cups bottled apple juice
- 1 (6-ounce) package lime or lemon flavor gelatin
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 (12-ounce) bottle gingerale, chilled
- 2 Golden Delicious apples
- 1 (8-ounce) can pineapple chunks, drained
- 1 banana, peeled and sliced
- Crisp lettuce
- Mayonnaise

Heat apple juice and dissolve gelatin and salt in it. Stir in lemon juice. Cool to room temperature. Stir in ginger ale. Core apples, and cut 1/2 apple in thin slices. Dice remaining apple. Chill gelatin until it begins to thicken. Turn about 1/2 cup into an oiled 1 1/2 quart mold, and set in pan of ice water until almost firm. Stand the apple slices around sides of mold. Fold remaining diced apple, pineapple and banana into the remaining gelatin, and chill until almost set. Spoon carefully into mold. Chill several hours or overnight until firm. Unmold onto crisp lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SPICY APPLE MUFFINS

- 1 medium-size Winesap or Golden Delicious baking apple
- 1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon apple pie spice
- 1 egg, beaten lightly
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup melted shortening

Pare and core apple; chop finely to measure 1 cup. Resift flour with sugar, baking powder, salt and spice. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Stir into dry mixture, mixing just until all of flour is moistened. Fold in apples. Spoon into greased muffin pans, filling about 2/3 full. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes, until nicely browned. Let stand 5 minutes, then turn out. Serve warm. Makes 12 (2 1/2 inch muffins).

Variation: For a spicy-sugar topping, blend 3 tablespoons sugar with 1/4 teaspoon apple pie spice. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Dip warm muffin tops first in butter, then in spicy-sugar mixture.

CINNAMON APPLES

- 1 cup red cinnamon candies
- 2 cups water
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 3 whole cloves
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 6-8 apples*

Combine cinnamon candies, water and spices in deep kettle. Simmer, stirring often, until candies dissolve. Add lemon juice. Pare and core apples. Place half the apples in hot syrup, spoon syrup over them, and simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Turn apples carefully, cover and cook 5 minutes longer. Uncover, and cook until tender, about 3 or 4 minutes, basting frequently. Remove apples with a slotted spoon. Cook remaining apples. When all apples are cooked, boil syrup down until reduced to 1/4 cup. Spoon over apples. Serve warm or chill. Makes 6-8 servings.

*Preferred Variety: Winesap, Golden Delicious or Rome Beauty.

GOLDEN APPLE PASTRY

- 1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 8-9 Winesap or tart apples, pared, cored and sliced to measure 8 cups
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup marmalade
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch

Combine flour and salt. Cut in cream cheese and the 1/2 cup butter until particles are very fine. Press dough together into a ball. Cover and chill while preparing apples. Turn water, lemon juice, butter and 1/4 cup marmalade into a large skillet and heat. Add half the apples, cover and cook about 5 minutes, until apples are tender. Remove apples with a slotted spoon. Add remaining apples, and 1/4 cup marmalade and cook as before. Combine all cooked apples. Mix cornstarch with a teaspoon cold water. Stir into liquid remaining in skillet, and cook, stirring, until thickened. Stir in remaining marmalade. Roll pastry to a 12-inch square. Fit into a 9-inch pie pan, allowing corners to hang over. Turn apples into pastry shell, and spoon thickened syrup over them. Bring corners of pastry up and over apples. Bake on lowest rack of hot oven (400 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes, until pastry is a rich golden brown. Serve warm or cold. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SKILLET APPLE-CARROT MEDLEY

- 1 pound carrots
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon chicken seasoned stock base
- 2 apples*
- 1 (8-ounce) can pineapple chunks in pineapple juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1/2 teaspoon cornstarch

Pare and cut carrots in 1 1/2 inch pieces. Combine with water and chicken stock base in large skillet or saucepan. Cook, covered, 15 minutes. While carrots cook, pare and core apples and cut into 16ths. Add apples, pineapple and its juice, lemon juice and orange peel to carrots. Cover and cook 5 minutes longer. Uncover and stir in cornstarch mixed with a teaspoon cold water. Cook a minute longer, stirring, until slightly thickened. Makes 6 servings.

*Preferred Variety: Golden Delicious or Winesap.

APPLES

- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar (packed)
- 1 small bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon marjoram, crumbled
- 6 medium-size Rome Beauty or baking apples

Combine orange juice, sugar, bay leaf, lemon juice and marjoram in a small saucepan. Cut tops from apples, and core, if desired, using small end of a melon ball cutter or apple corer. Arrange in baking dish. Heat first mixture to boiling, and pour over apples. Cover, using foil if dish does not have a lid. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 35 minutes, basting several times. Uncover, baste again and continue to bake for 10 minutes longer, or until apples are tender. Serve warm or cold. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN

- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1/2 cup cornflake crumbs
- 2 teaspoons onion salt
- 1/4 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 cup buttermilk
- 2 1/2 to 3 pounds frying chicken pieces
- 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Combine wheat germ, cornflake crumbs, onion salt, dill weed and pepper on a sheet of waxed paper; mix well. Turn buttermilk into a shallow dish. Dip chicken pieces first in buttermilk, then in crumb mixture, coating on all sides. Arrange in a flat baking pan in a single layer. Drizzle melted butter over chicken pieces. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes, until chicken is tender. Makes 6 servings.

New Jersey woman awarded $25,000

Pineapple recipes win top prizes

Amid exploding fireworks and drum rolls, Mrs. Neil Sicking of Vineland, N.J., was declared the $25,000 winner of the third National Pineapple Cooking Classic last week on Waikiki Beach in Honolulu, Hawaii. Mrs. Sicking's recipe for Hawaiian Pineapple Cake was judged best in the dessert category and selected as the top overall entry.

Mrs. Sicking was one of 40 finalists who participated in the contest sponsored by the Pineapple Growers Association of Hawaii. This year's contest attracted more than 30,000 entries. Ten were selected from each of four categories — breads, salads, desserts and main dishes — for the cookoff held at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

As a divisional winner, Mrs. Sicking received a cash award of $10,000. Hawaiian Pineapple Cake, named best of the contest, entitled the New Jersey homemaker to an additional $15,000.

Other $10,000 category winners were: main dish — Mrs. Bill Stockburger, Fayetteville, Ark., owner and operator of a drive-in restaurant; salad — Mrs. Bill Corbett of San Jose, Calif.; breads — Mrs. John Wunderle, mother of two sons and two daughters, who resides in Kent, Ohio.

NIGHTCLUB ENTERTAINER Al Harrington, who also appeared on Hawaii Five-O, was on hand at the awards ceremony to announce the top divisional winning dishes in each category. They included Polynesian Lamb Salad, Hawaiian Style Shortribs, Pineapple Tea Ring in the bread category, and Mrs. Sicking's Hawaiian Pineapple Cake, desserts.

Four runner-up winners, each receiving $1,000, included Mrs. Roy Ramsey of Spencer, Okla.; Orville Sheldon, Chicago; Mrs. LeRoy Selby of Christmas, Fla.; and Mrs. Andrew Tomasik of Bridgeport, W.Va.

One of seven men in the contest, Sheldon called his runner-up main dish recipe Pork Fantango. He is vice president and art director of Harry G. Willis & Associates, an advertising and communications agency in Arlington Heights.

HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE CAKE

- 1 (1 lb. 4 oz.) can crushed pineapple
- 2 cups buttermilk baking mix
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup sugar
- 3/4 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons rum*

Glaze
Drain pineapple well, saving syrup for glaze. Stir baking mix, flour and soda together. Beat sugar, sour cream, margarine and vanilla together for 2 minutes. Add eggs, and beat 1 minute. Add flour mixture, and beat 1 minute longer. Mix in drained pineapple and rum. Turn into well greased 9-inch Bundt pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes, until cake tests done. Remove from oven and spoon about half the Glaze over cake. Let stand 10 minutes, then turn out onto serving plate, and spoon on remaining Glaze. Cool before cutting. Makes 1 (9-inch) cake.

Glaze: Combine 3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup each margarine and syrup from pineapple. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved and margarine melted. Remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons rum*.

*Rum may be omitted, if desired.

HAWAIIAN STYLE SHORTRIBS

- 4 lbs. beef short ribs
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 3 cups bottled barbecue sauce
- 2 (13 1/2 oz.) cans pineapple tidbits
- 1/4 cup liquid smoke
- 1/4 cup brown sugar (packed)
- 1 teaspoon lemon pepper

Have ribs cut in serving pieces. Brown on all sides, placing fat side down first, so no additional fat need be used. When ribs are browned, drain off and discard any fat in pan. Sprinkle with salt and garlic powder. Add water just to cover, and heat to boiling. Cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours, just until meat is tender. Drain meat, saving broth. Place ribs in shallow roasting pan. Combine all remaining ingredients, and pour over meat. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 1 1/2 hours, basting frequently. If sauce becomes too thick, add some of the reserved beef broth. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

POLYNESIAN LAMB SALAD

- 1 (13 1/2 oz.) can pineapple tidbits
- 1 (8 oz.) can water chestnuts
- 1 medium-size green pepper
- 2 cups diced cooked lamb
- 2 cups diced celery
- 1/2 cup mandarin orange sections
- Polynesian Dressing
- Lettuce
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Drain pineapple and water chestnuts. Slice water chestnuts and green pepper. Combine with pineapple, lamb, celery and orange sections. Toss gently with Polynesian Dressing. Serve on lettuce and garnish with pimiento. Makes 6 or more servings.

Polynesian Dressing: Mix 1 1/4 cups mayonnaise with 3 tablespoons each lemon juice and chopped preserved ginger, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Cover and chill.

PINEAPPLE TEA RING

- 1 (15 1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple
- 1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1/2 cup warm water
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 2 1/2 cups buttermilk baking mix
- 1 cup natural cereal with raisins and dates

Icing: Maraschino cherries and nuts for decoration (optional)

Drain pineapple, saving syrup for icing. Combine drained pineapple with brown sugar, cornstarch, egg and cinnamon. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat, and cool. Sprinkle yeast over warm water, and let stand 5 minutes. Combine with granulated sugar and baking mix, and beat vigorously. Turn out onto board covered with baking mix, and knead smooth, about 20 times. Let rest 5 to 10 minutes. Roll out to a rectangle 18 x 9 inches.

Spread with the cooled pineapple filling, and sprinkle with cereal. Roll up as for jelly roll, starting from long side. Shape into a ring on greased baking sheet, pinching ends together. With kitchen shears, clip about 2/3 of the way through roll at 1-inch intervals. Turn each cut on its side. Cover and let rise in warm place about 1 hour. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes, until browned. Drizzle with icing while warm. Decorate with cherries and nuts, if desired. Makes 1 ring.

Icing: Stir 1 cup powdered sugar with 1 tablespoon reserved pineapple syrup and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla until smooth.

PORK FANTANGO

- 4 center-cut pork chops, (1/2 to 3/4-inch thick)
- 1/2 cup bottled Italian Dressing
- 1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 cup bottled Italian Dressing
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 (8 1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple
- 1/2 cup apricot preserves
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1/4 cup dark rum

Trim excess fat from chops. Sprinkle chops with salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate and lemon peel. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Pour Italian Dressing over chops; marinate 2 to 4 hours. Drain, saving marinade. Brown chops on both sides in heated butter. Combine undrained pineapple, preserves, vinegar and reserved marinade, and heat. Pour over chops. Bake, uncovered, in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes, or until pork is tender. Pour rum over chops, and bake 5 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE cake, at the National Pineapple Cooking created by Mrs. Neil Sicking was Classic. named best of the contest last week

ORVILLE SHELDON, an advertising dish recipe, Pork Fantango at the executive in Arlington Heights, was named runner-up winner for his main was awarded $1,000.

She makes use of her freezer

Elegant dinner can be fixed ahead

by LOIS SEILER

"One of those nice things that can be prepared ahead" is the way Barbara Finley of Arlington Heights modestly describes an elegant dinner that she devised herself. It is one which she serves to both family and guests.

She makes this by assembling skinned and deboned chicken breasts sandwich-fashion with a wild rice filling. Wrapped in bacon, the breasts are baked in chicken broth until tender.

As accompaniments for this appealing chicken dish, Barbara suggests a green vegetable, Irish soda bread and a frozen fruit salad or cranberry sauce or applesauce.

She usually keeps a supply of individual fruit salads on hand in the freezer. The ingredients for this salad, which include cream cheese, whipping cream (or Cool Whip) and frozen strawberries, are mixed together in a blender. This is poured over fruit cocktail which has been placed in paper-lined muffin cups. After they've been in the freezer until firm, Barbara removes the filled cups from the muffin tins and stores them in plastic bags.

"They are handy to have on hand when nothing else is available, and always ready to serve when the family eats in shifts," she said.

HER VERSATILE Irish soda bread is a tasty accompaniment for almost any type of meal, breakfast, lunch or dinner. It is a solid, moist-textured bread dotted with raisins and nuts. Cinnamon gives it a little different flavor and pretty color. It keeps well in the refrigerator and also freezes nicely.

The family's all-time favorite dessert is a delicious frozen coffee pie. Barbara's children, Mike, 17, Peter, 15, and Beth, 12, prefer it to cake for their birthdays, and it also makes a hit with husband, Jim.

The pie has a crust made of crushed Oreo cookies which is filled with coffee ice cream. A thick, fudge-like bittersweet chocolate sauce is spread on top, and the pie is frozen until served. It will keep in the freezer indefinitely, and makes a rich, mellow-flavored dessert for luncheon or dinner. Peppermint ice cream may be substituted for the coffee, if desired, and the topping recipe can also be used to make hot fudge sundaes.

CHICKEN BREASTS WITH WILD RICE

6 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and cut in half
1 package Uncle Ben's Long Grain and Wild Rice
1/2 cup regular rice
2 13-ounce cans chicken broth
1 can Great American Chicken Rice with Mushroom Soup
2 to 3 tablespoons cooking sherry
12 slices bacon
6 tablespoons butter

Combine Uncle Ben's Rice and regular rice with one can of the chicken broth and the Great American Soup. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 25 minutes. Remove from heat and add sherry. (1/4 cup browned, slivered almonds may be added, if desired). Let cool thoroughly. Rice may be made a day ahead and stored in the refrigerator.

On waxed paper, assemble ingredients in the following manner: place a half chicken breast over two strips bacon. Spread two to three heaping tablespoons rice mixture on top of chicken. Top with another half chicken breast and wrap bacon around the top. Repeat process with remaining ingredients.

Place filled breasts in a foil-lined pan. Dot the top of each with one tablespoon butter. Pour remaining can chicken broth over all. Cover with foil.

Bake at 350 degrees for about two hours. Remove foil cover about 20 minutes before chicken is done; raise oven temperature to 400 degrees to brown bacon. Serves 6.

STRAWBERRY FRUIT SALAD

1 2-pound can fruit cocktail, drained
1 small package softened cream cheese
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Pinch of salt
1/2 pint whipping cream, whipped, or 1 small carton Cool Whip
1 10-ounce carton frozen strawberries and juice, thawed

In a blender, mix cheese, lemon juice, salt and whipped cream or Cool Whip. Add strawberries and juice and blend.

Divide drained fruit cocktail evenly among 12 to 14 paperlined muffin cups. Pour ingredients from blender over the fruit. Gently stir each cup with a spoon to blend. Freeze. After salads are frozen, remove from muffin tins and store in a plastic bag. Remove from freezer five minutes before serving.

The weekly price survey of four area food stores will resume Sept. 16.

IRISH SODA BREAD

3 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup granulated sugar
3 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 1/4 cups milk
3 tablespoons cooking oil
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Mix dry ingredients together. Add egg and all liquids and beat well. Then blend in raisins and nuts.

Grease and lightly flour either one 9 by 5-inch bread pan or two 7 by 3-inch bread pans. Pour in batter, pulling it gently away from the center. Sprinkle each pan lightly with 1 1/2 tablespoons milk.

For the larger pan, bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes to one hour. Bake smaller loaves about 40 minutes. Test with toothpick for doneness. Caution: do not open oven during the first 35 minutes of baking or bread will fall. After bread has cooled, wrap in plastic wrap or foil and store in refrigerator or freezer.

FROZEN COFFEE PIE

Topping:
2 squares baking chocolate
1 tablespoon margarine
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 5-ounce can evaporated milk
In a double boiler, melt chocolate and margarine. When melted, add sugar and blend well. Stir in evaporated milk. Cook over boiling water, stirring frequently, 40 to 45 minutes until mixture is very thick. Place in refrigerator until very cold and thick.

Crust and Filling:
18 crushed Oreo Cookies
1/4 cup melted margarine
1 quart coffee ice cream
Combine crushed cookies and melted margarine. Press into a 9-inch pie pan and place in freezer while waiting for ice cream to soften.

Spread ice cream into chilled crust and place in freezer until very firm. Then spoon chocolate mixture over the top. (If there is too much to suit your taste, reserve about 1/4 cup and use as a topping for hot fudge sundaes.)

Return pie to freezer, and when frozen, cover with foil. Cut in wedges and serve frozen. Serves 8.

Hard to tell when melon's ripe; these tips may help

Icy cold watermelon is one of the joys of summer's end fruit crops. Unfortunately, it's not always easy to judge a melon by its cover. When faced with the bounty of watermelons heaped high at the fruit stands, the average person has no way of telling which is the best.

Although there is no sure method for selecting the finest fruit, there are a few guidelines suggested by University of Illinois Extension Service.

When watermelons are still on the vine, look at the "curl" or curled tendril at the attachment of the fruit stem to the vine. For many varieties, the melon is ripe when this curl dies. For home-grown varieties such as Crimson Sweet and Charleston Gray, the melon is not fully ripe until a week after the curl dies, according to Joe Vandemark, vegetable crops specialist.

For harvested melons, many consumers often thump the fruit to est-mate ripeness. A hollow sound indicates the tissue inside is soft and ripe, while a solid, ringing sound indicates the melon is still green.

HOWEVER, WITH smaller varieties and solid-fleshed varieties (such as Crimson Sweet) the hollow sound may not develop until the melon is overripe. Vandemark says the surest way is to look at the melon for three indicators:

The "belly" or bottom of the melon of most varieties turn a "buttery" or creamy yellow color when ripe. A whitish or greenish-white color indicates the melon is still green.

Most melons lose their powdery, slick appearance on top as they ripen and develop a dull, rough appearance.

A fresh stem indicates the melon has not laid outside the market for a long time and deteriorated. Thus, it is probably suitable for eating.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture lists good supplies of watermelon this year, so enjoy.

Rosy Watermelon Rind Preserves, a recipe from Farm Journal's "Country Cookbook," is a great, old-fashioned relish to serve with venison and beef. It's also one way to economize and use the entire melon.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

ROSY WATERMELON RIND PRESERVES

- 1 very large, firm watermelon
- 1 cup salt
- 4 cups cider vinegar
- 2 cups strained red cherry juice (from fresh, cooked or canned cherries)
- 12 cups sugar
- 4 sticks cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons whole cloves

Remove rind from watermelon. Peel off outside skin, then cut rind into 3-inch strips (there should be 12 cups of cut-up rind). Place strips in a large jar. Cover with water to which 1 cup salt has been added. Let stand overnight.

The next morning, drain off all water. Place rind and 2 quarts fresh water in a large saucepan. Boil for 10 minutes. Drain.

In a 6-quart kettle bring vinegar, cherry juice and sugar to a boil. Add spices, tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag, and simmer 10 minutes. Remove spices. Drop cooked melon strips into hot syrup. Cook until syrup thickens and is transparent.

Put a cinnamon stick and three whole cloves into each hot jar, then fill with boiling hot preserves. Adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees) 15 minutes. Remove jars and let cool. Complete seals unless closures are self-sealing. Makes 8 to 10 pints.

A gourmet spaghetti that takes only minutes

Back in the days when train travel could be a luxury, dining car chefs vied to produce gourmet dishes to satisfy the desires of their most discriminating patrons. Spaghetti Caruso is from the files of famous Illinois Central recipes and was in constant demand on the Panama Limited, crack train of the line.

Since it was prepared in the confines of a dining car galley, you'll find the recipe quick and easy. First, prepare the sauce. Place 1/4 cup cooking oil in a frying pan. Add 1/4 cup flour and brown gently. Next add a small finely chopped onion and 1 finely chopped clove of garlic. Sauté until soft.

Add 2 cups chicken stock, 1 cup canned button mushrooms, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, crushed, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon MSG (monosodium glutamate). Simmer sauce for 10 minutes, stirring constantly, then remove from fire but keep the sauce hot.

Wash 2 pounds chicken livers, remove membranes and cut in one-inch squares. Sprinkle livers with flour and sauté lightly in cooking oil until done.

PREPARE PACKAGED spaghetti according to directions, enough to make 12 cups. Serve on heated dinner plates by placing 1 1/2 cups on each plate, 3 tablespoons chicken livers over the spaghetti and 6 tablespoons of the hot sauce over all. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

offer guests grated parmesan cheese for topping. Makes 8 portions.

For anyone who doesn't wish to spend hours preparing spaghetti sauce, you'll find this a delightful recipe.

For a change of pace in salads, wash a good-sized head of cauliflower, cut off stem and break into flowerets. Cook in water to cover until just tender (12 to 15 minutes). Drain and chill. Make a dressing by combining 1/4 cup olive (or salad) oil, 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon minced green onion tops (fresh or freeze dried), 1 teaspoon thyme, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Blend dressing thoroughly, toss with flowerets until well mixed then serve on lettuce bed in salad bowls. Serves 8.

I personally like raw cauliflower sliced paper thin and served on lettuce with a good French dressing.

Recipe ideas offer coffee new look, taste

There are a number of ways to convert an ordinary cup of coffee into an unusual taste treat. In fact, there are a number on an appealing new look.

Mocha Topped, Cafe Royal and Greg's Mog — are just three suggestions to add unusual zest to the next party where you will be serving coffee.

MOCHA TOPPED

- 2 1/2 cups cold strong coffee
- 5 tablespoons chocolate
- 2 cups vanilla ice cream
- Place all ingredients in bowl and blend with rotary beater or wire whip or in blender until smooth. Pour into tall glasses. Serves four.

CAFE ROYAL

- 3 eggs, chilled
- Grated peel of 1/2 lemon
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 cups cold strong coffee
- 1/3 cup cognac or brandy
- Break eggs into blender; add lemon peel and beat until fluffy. Add sugar; beat until thick. Add coffee, then cognac. Serve in brandy snifters. Serves four.

GREG'S GREG

- Peel of 1 orange (cut in strips)
- Peel of 1 lemon (cut in strips)
- 4 cinnamon sticks (each 3 inches long)
- 1 1/2 teaspoons whole cloves
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 4 ounces chocolate
- 2 quarts strong coffee
- 1/2 teaspoon anise flavoring
- Vanilla ice cream or whipped cream
- Combine all ingredients in chafing dish or saucepan. Steep over very low heat 15 minutes (do not boil). Fill cups or small mugs 2/3 full of brew. Float vanilla ice cream (or whipped cream) on top. Makes 12 half-cup servings.

Peas are always good

Dry peas are not a seasonal food. They are readily available in packaged form throughout the year, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

They can easily be stored in a cool dry place in tightly covered containers, thus always on hand for so many uses. Dry peas require little preparation or watching, and may be cooked ahead and refrigerated or frozen easily in their cooked form, ready for quick use.

Health foods on campuses promoted better nutrition

by JEANNE LESEM

"A lot of the health food craze on college and university campuses is giving way to a new and general awareness of good nutrition," says Albert R. Doble.

Doble is director of Yale University's 21 dining halls, which serve about 3.5 million meals annually. He also is immediate past president of the National Association of College and University Food Services, a post that took him onto dozens of campuses last summer. In an interview, Doble said Adelle Davis was part of the reason for young people's awareness of good nutrition. Mrs. Davis, who died recently, was a controversial figure who advocated not just fresh, unprocessed food and beverages but also heavy usage of vitamin supplements and other dietary aids.

Vegetarian and health food diets are popular on both coasts, Doble said, but there's very little interest on campuses in the center of the United States and none in the south.

"As food becomes scarcer and more expensive, students are becoming more aware of their nutritional needs," Doble said.

They also are weight conscious.

"ALMOST EVERY college I go to has one diet meal on the menu, and low calorie dressings."

The starch diets that generations of collegians complained about are no more, and there's not a lot of obesity on campus, he said.

He has noticed a real decrease in dessert consumption and a corresponding increase in demand for fresh fruit instead of cake and pie.

"One of the biggest successes on our campus is fresh vegetables. Skim milk consumption is also up tremendously."

People today want to help make their own meals, Doble said. Large condiment bars that include wheat germ, among other things, are popular. So are make your own salad bars.

Students are eating more often. They also take more meals in dining halls. The reason, Doble thinks, are the increasing interest in balanced meals and good nutrition and the tight money situation.

"A student who pays for a board contract is less likely to skip meals and go out for a pizza," he said.

Variety is a key word in meal plans these days. Some schools offer eight to 10 variations, such as five dinners, any 10 meals or 21, 17 or 12 meals per week.

Some schools are going to the point system. It permits a student to eat where and when he wants to in a college's dining halls and snack bars.

One college in upstate New York has even started an exchange system. It allows students to eat either in their own dining hall or that of another college in the area.

Nonfat dry milk fortifies drinks

Nonfat dry milk is a good budget-stretcher. Here are some ideas for using it in refreshing summer beverages:

STRAWBERRY MILKSHAKE

- 10 oz. package frozen strawberries
- 1 quart strawberry ice cream slightly softened
- 1 quart milk
- 1 cup instant nonfat dry milk

Thaw strawberries until soft but still very cold; crush. Add milk and nonfat dry milk to strawberries and blend thoroughly. Add softened ice cream and beat or shake just enough to blend ingredients. Pour into tall glass and serve immediately. Makes 6 servings of about 1 1/3 cups each. Calories per serving: about 370.

MOCHA MILKSHAKE

Omit strawberries. Dissolve 2 tablespoons instant coffee in 1/4 cup warm water. Cool. Add to mixture of milk and nonfat dry milk. Use chocolate ice cream. About 320 calories per serving.

CHOCO-MINT MILK

- 5 cups milk
- 1 cup instant nonfat dry milk
- 1/3 cup chocolate syrup
- 1/3 cup peppermint candy, crushed

Mix all ingredients. Let stand in the refrigerator at least 1/2 hour to allow candy to dissolve. Stir before serving. Serve chilled. Makes 6 servings of 1 cup each. Calories per serving: about 255.

Subtract 6 1/4% a week from your food bill.

We asked twelve customers at Treasury Supermarkets to shop and compare food prices at other supermarkets. On the average, all twelve customers spent 6.41% less on the same orders at Treasury. In dollars and cents, that's a savings of $2.43! (On orders averaging $37.91.) Shopping one or two weekly specials won't give you a low tape total like this. But the every day lower prices at Treasury Supermarkets will. So, come to Treasury Supermarkets. We'll add more buying power to your food dollars.

Based on shoppers' tests completed August 6, 1974.

Vegetables from the grill

Singles and families alike are enjoying the bounty of their home gardens this summer. As a result more are trying new ways to prepare and serve their cucumbers, tomatoes, corn, eggplant, squash and carrots. A perfect way, simple and just right for a cookout, is to grill them on the charcoal. Place vegetables brushed with melted butter directly on the grill over medium-hot coals instead of wrapping them in foil. The charcoal flavor permeates the vegetables and proves a delicious addition to barbecued foods.

CHARCOALED EGGPLANT SLICES

Melt 1/4 cup butter or margarine. Remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese. Cut one medium unpeeled eggplant* into slices 3/8-inch thick. Brush one side of all slices with salt and pepper. Place on grill with buttered side down. Grill about 6 inches from medium hot (see below) coals until lightly browned, about 3 to 5 minutes. Brush top side with butter mixture. Turn with pancake turner and grill until fork tender and browned, about 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

Peel helps to hold shape of eggplant but becomes tough during charcoaling. Discard peel before eating grilled slices. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED MUSHROOMS

Carefully remove stems from 8 large mushrooms. (Use stems for soups, stews or casseroles). Brush mushrooms with about 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; place top side down on grill. Grill about 6 inches from medium hot coals for about 12 minutes or until tender. Brush with butter twice. Do not turn. Remove with pancake turner. Serve with the juices which collect in mushroom caps. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLED DILLED TOMATOES

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir in 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed. Cut 2 large tomatoes in half and brush cut sides with butter sauce. Grill, cut sides down, 6 inches from medium hot coals until lightly browned, about 5 minutes. Brush skins of tomatoes with butter sauce; turn with pancake turner. Brush cut sides again with the butter sauce and grill until fork tender, about 7 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

HOW TO JUDGE THE TEMPERATURE OF A CHARCOAL BRIQUET FIRE

Different brands of charcoal give off varying degrees of heat. To test the temperature of a charcoal briquet fire, cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, just above the grill. Judge temperature by number of seconds hand can be kept in position. For these recipes a medium-hot temperature is desired. Your hand should be kept in position for 3 seconds.

To lower temperature of charcoal fire, raise grill or separate coals. To raise temperature, tap the outer gray layer from coals and push coals closer together. If more coals are needed, add them to outer edge of hot coals.

Cheese topped stuffed peppers

Garden Stuffed Green Peppers add a refreshing and nourishing note to summertime meals. Most of the vegetables are in your garden, or abundant and economically priced at roadside stands and supermarkets. Topped with tangy edam cheese, these distinctively different peppers add a gourmet touch to your table.

GARDEN STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

4 large green peppers
1/4 cup sliced green onion
1/4 cup thinly sliced celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups corn cut from the cob
1 1/2 cups cooked rice
1 medium tomato, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 1/4 cups grated edam cheese
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
Remove seeds and membrane from each pepper. Wash thoroughly and cook in boiling salted water 5 minutes. Drain.
Cook green onions and celery in butter until tender. Add corn, rice, tomato, salt, chili powder and pepper. Heat, stirring. Remove from heat and stir in 1/4 cup edam cheese and 1/2 cup tomato sauce.
Stuff peppers with mixture and place upright in an 8-inch square baking dish. Pour remaining tomato sauce over peppers. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Sprinkle remaining edam cheese over peppers and bake 10 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes 4 servings.

Turkey makes flavorful outdoor menu

You'll feel like soft Polynesian breezes are blowing in your own backyard when you serve Barbecued Turkey Hawaiian as the main course.

Rotisserie turkey is really catching on for a new kind of summertime fare. Simply skewer the thawed turkey on a spit (or an indoor oven rotisserie if you wish) over glowing coals. Baste at intervals with spicy Pineapple Glaze and serve outdoors where things taste better.

To make a flavorful feast guests won't forget, add the accompaniment of fluffy lemon-flavored rice and your favorite salad and dessert.

BARBECUED TURKEY HAWAIIAN

1 8-to-10-pound turkey
Salt
Pepper

Oil
1 8½-ounce can crushed pineapple
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Dash salt

If the turkey is frozen, thaw according to the wrapper directions, rinse, and pat dry with paper towels. Salt and pepper the large and wishbone cavities. Truss turkey and balance on spit; brush with oil. Insert meat thermometer into thickest part of breast or thigh, being careful not to touch bone. Check to see that thermometer clears the grate as it turns.

Cook for 1 hour. At the end of the first hour, brush turkey with basting sauce prepared by mixing together pineapple, brown sugar, lemon juice, prepared mustard, and dash of salt. Continue cooking, basting turkey every 30 minutes. Total cooking time will be 3½ to 4 hours.

Before carving, let turkey rest at least 10 minutes. Serve hot or cold. Yield: 10 to 15 servings.

SAVORY LEMON RICE

2 tablespoons butter
¼ clove garlic, minced
1½ cups chicken broth
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups long grain instant rice
1½ tablespoons parsley
2 teaspoons lemon juice

In a medium-sized saucepan, sauté garlic in butter. Add chicken broth and salt, bring to a boil. Stir in rice. Cover, turn off heat, and let stand 5 minutes. Add, fluffing with a fork, the parsley and lemon juice. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Take along torte is sure favorite

All summer long, light, moist prune cake travels to where the fun is. For wherever there's fun afoot, a cool drink and a nibble of something sweet adds to the day's enjoyment. Whether you go for boat or beach, picnic or patio, Prune Tote Cake is certain of a rousing welcome.

PRUNE TOTE CAKE

1½ cups chopped pitted dried prunes
1 cup orange juice
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
1½ cups firmly packed light brown sugar
½ cup salad oil
3 eggs
¾ cup chopped nuts
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Caramel Frosting
Simmer prunes and orange juice in covered saucepan for 5 minutes. Drain and set aside orange juice.

Sift flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves into large mixing bowl of electric mixer. Add brown sugar and mix well. Add reserved orange juice and oil; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add eggs and beat 2 minutes longer. Blend in prunes, nuts and orange rind. Bake in a greased and floured 13 x 9-inch pan at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Cake may still be very moist. Cool and frost with Caramel Frosting.

Caramel Frosting

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¾ cup milk
1 cup confectioners' sugar

Melt butter in saucepan. Add brown sugar and bring to a boil. Boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add milk and boil 1 minute longer, continuing to stir. Remove from heat; cool. Add confectioners' sugar and beat until of spreading consistency.

Turn leftover beef into flavor-packed Texas-style sandwich

Round up cooked beef leftovers and prepare wild western sandwiches in a jiffy. They're perfect partner-pleasers and will whet the appetite of the family's fussiest young broncobuster. These hot and hearty sandwiches are something for them to really dig their spurs into after a hard day of roamin' the range.

Beef slices simmered in a spicy tomato sauce with beans cook down to a zesty barbecue filling to go between bun halves. It's a great way to utilize leftover beef.

TEXAS JOE BARBECUES

1 pound cooked beef, thinly sliced
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons cooking fat
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 can (15½ ounces) red or kidney beans
8 hamburger buns

Cook onion and garlic in cooking fat in frying-pan until lightly browned. Add tomato sauce, mustard, vinegar, chili powder, salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce, stirring to combine. Stir in beef and beans, including liquid, and cook slowly, uncovered, 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve on hamburger buns. Yield: 4 cups.

Burger performance

Ground beef is the number one choice for satisfying, economical meals. Most often it's burgers, so to keep interest high varied appeal is important. Here's a tasty alternative to putting patties between bun halves. Mix one pound ground beef with three tablespoons thinly sliced green onions, one teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Spread meat mixture on five or six slices of rye toast, covering edges. Place on broiler rack so surface of meat is three inches from heat and broil until browned, six to eight minutes.

Identity of key witness told

8-month delay cited in Wickes extortion

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Completion of the Wickes, Inc., furniture warehouse in Wheeling was held up more than eight months by demands for a $50,000 zoning payoff, the U. S. Attorney's Office charged Wednesday.

Federal prosecutors also disclosed the identity of the key witness in their case against two county zoning officials accused of extorting the $50,000 from Wickes in December, 1971.

The witness is Willard Brown Jr., a vice president of Arthur Rubloff and Co., the Chicago real estate firm involved in the purchase of Wickes' Wheeling property.

The Herald reported in March that a key government witness identified Nicholas Phillips, one of the two defendants, as the bagman who picked up the $50,000 cash at a North Side Chicago hotel in 1971. Phillips is a county zoning board employee and a cousin of political boss James Stavros, who has pleaded guilty to federal extortion charges in the Wheeling scandal, and is now in prison.

ALSO CHARGED WITH extortion in the Wickes case is Ira Colitz, who resigned from the county zoning board after he and five others were indicted Jan. 31.

In a bill of particulars filed Wednesday in U. S. District Court, the government charged that Colitz was the organizer of the Wickes shakedown scheme.

Nicholas Phillips

Colitz, a former state representative, informed Wickes beginning in October, 1971, "that a payoff had to be made in order for Wickes to obtain zoning," the prosecutors charged.

Colitz made "arrangements necessary for the zoning to be approved and for the payoff to be made," according to the bill of particulars, which was filed in response to defense requests for details of the government's case against both men.

The U. S. Attorney's Office also named four other potential witnesses in the case, all of them connected with Wickes.

They are Edward Sheldon, a consultant for the firm; Emil Sheldon, a consultant; and Eugene Gordon and John Drumm, both senior vice presidents.

WICKES PLANNED opening of the store, 351 W. Dundee Rd., for Nov. 21, 1971, but demands for the payoff delayed completion until mid-June, 1972.

McNeely, Gordon, Sheldon and Drumm "feared the loss of large sums of money" if zoning for the project was denied, the government said.

McNeely and Gordon approved the payoff and plans for delivering the money were made by Colitz, Sheldon and Brown after "continuous negotiations" between October and December, 1971.

The government statement said "it is unknown what happened to the $50,000 after it was given to Phillips" and that "it is unknown whether either was in a position to control or influence the actions of any government body."

AN I-2 ZONING variation for 32 acres of Wickes land was approved by the Wheeling Village Board Jan. 24, 1972.

A trial date in the Wickes case will be set Sept. 23. Phillips and Colitz have pleaded innocent to the charges against them.

Oven explodes, worker critically burned

Investigators Wednesday probed the remains of an oven at the Resinlite Corp. in Wheeling to discover why it exploded Tuesday, critically burning a factory worker.

The worker, Pedro P. Garcia, 24, of Mundelein, was in critical condition Wednesday with burns on 40 per cent of his body at Evanston Hospital. Garcia had been transferred from Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Tuesday.

Police said the oven exploded at 1:45 a.m. Tuesday. The oven is used for baking cylinders at the 1033 S. Noel Avenue factory.

Chief Bernie Koepfen of the fire department said the blast caused an estimated $10,000 damage to equipment and $3,000 damage to the plant. The investigators were from the oven manufacturer.

Check for leaks today

Gas line fumes reported leaking into home here

Gasoline storage tanks at two gas stations at the intersection of Wolf and Dundee roads in Wheeling will be checked for leaks today. Gasoline fumes are present in a sewer line in that area and have come up in at least one home, fire department officials said.

Fire Chief Koepfen said gas fumes have been found in the B. Q. Diaz residence, 297 S. Wolf Rd. The fumes were first noticed Monday night.

In addition to trying to trace the source of the gas spill, the fire department has flushed the sewer and placed smoke ejectors over manholes along the sewer line. The object was to eliminate the fumes.

Koepfen said there is no evidence the leak came from either gas station. "Somebody might have just dumped something in a manhole," he said.

A SIMILAR GASOLINE spill occurred in the same area just about a year ago, Koepfen said. He added a check of the gasoline stations at that time revealed no leaks. The fumes just went away after awhile, Koepfen said. "We never did come up with anything."

Koepfen said he traced the sewer system on the maps, however, and referring to the gas stations, said, "I can't see where the devil else it could be coming from." He said the fumes were strongest in the sewer at the intersection.

State officials will not be called in, Koepfen said, unless the leak continues and cannot be traced. Of the leak, Koepfen said, "It's not that great. It's not pouring in. It doesn't take that much gasoline because of the confined space to produce the fumes."

The Diaz residence reportedly also had fumes last year.

Woman, 75, crossing road hit by car

A 75-year-old Wheeling woman was struck by a car Wednesday as she was crossing Old McHenry Road near Whippetree Drive in Wheeling.

Mary Cuklin, of the Addolorata Villa on Old McHenry Road, was admitted to Holy Family Hospital and reported in good condition late Wednesday.

Fire department officials said the woman suffered head wounds in the 9:30 a.m. accident. Wheeling police had no further details late Wednesday.

'Public purchase is only way to save open space'

Preservation of the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space was the main concern Wednesday night as six area legislators met with Prospect Heights residents.

State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, and State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, disagreed over whether lowering the tax assessment of the golf course, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township, would keep the course open.

Porter said he believed some kind of tax relief "really is not the answer." Even if there were no tax on the golf course, Porter said, the incentive of increased profits through development would be so great it probably could not be resisted.

PUBLIC PURCHASE of threatened open space, such as Rob Roy, is "the only solution," Porter said.

Juckett said he feels a tax incentive would help and he plans to introduce a bill into the Illinois General Assembly under which golf courses would be assessed at their actual use rather than the highest use of the land. He added he felt there would not be "any trouble" in passing such a bill.

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, said there has been a lack of local action toward purchasing Rob Roy. "Nobody has really done anything in the past year to enable us (the legislators) to help," he said.

Duff suggested that the River Trails and Prospect Heights park districts conduct referenda of about $2 million each, with the funds used to purchase half of the golf course.

KENRO INC., Skokie, has offered to sell the 18-hole course if its petition to rezone the remaining half of the 200-acre site for apartments and condominiums is approved by the Village of Mount Prospect. The village's zoning board of appeals has recommended denial of the request, which is pending before the village board.

Another suggestion, backed by State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, was that the county forest preserve district be urged to purchase the property for the use of all county residents. Forest preserve officials have stated previously that the district would not buy the golf course because it is too small and costly, not adjacent to other forest preserve property and not needed, because the district is building a golf course in Palatine Township.

Francine Stein, a surrogate for absent Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, said the federal government has indicated federal money would be available for a multi-purpose recreational land purchase, such as playground equipment, pools and facilities for senior citizens, but not just for a golf course.

A brief moment of political antagonism arose when Juckett threatened to walk out of the meeting if Miss Stein were permitted to represent Jaffe at the speaker's table. Juckett said only legislators themselves should be at the table. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., which sponsored the meeting, agreed.

Miss Stein sat in the audience and Juckett resumed his seat.

ALSO DISCUSSED were the preservation of Palwaukee Airport, giving townships zoning powers, and drainage and flooding problems.

Other legislators attending the meeting at St. Alphonsus School were Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; and Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st. Of those invited, Jaffe and Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe, did not attend.

Voter registration under way at hall

Wheeling residents can register to vote in the Nov. 5 election at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., through Sept. 20.

The village will register voters from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday and 6-8 p.m. Wednesdays.

After the village deadline, voters will be able to register in Room 402 of the County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. The County Clerk's office will register voters through Sept. 30.

Voters also can register to vote at the Wheeling Township Hall, 1818 E. North-west Hwy., Arlington Heights, from 7 to 9 p.m. today and Sept. 19 and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Finally, voters will have their last opportunity to register for the election on Oct. 8, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. at precincts throughout Wheeling Township.

Lake County college vote opposed by village board

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has decided to oppose the assignment of High School Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County junior college district in the upcoming referendum.

Voters in Dist. 125, which takes in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, will decide in the Sept. 28 election whether or not the high school district will be assigned to the College of Lake County.

Trustees said at Tuesday's village board meeting that students in Dist. 125 should have the right to decide whether they will attend the Lake County school or Harper College in Palatine.

Until now, Dist. 125 was not part of any junior college district and students had the option of attending a junior college of their choice.

The Illinois Community College Board earlier this year assigned Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County. The referendum was scheduled following protests by Buffalo Grove and some district residents.

If 51 per cent of the voters indicate they do not want to be in the College of Lake County District, the high school district once again will not be a part of any junior college district.

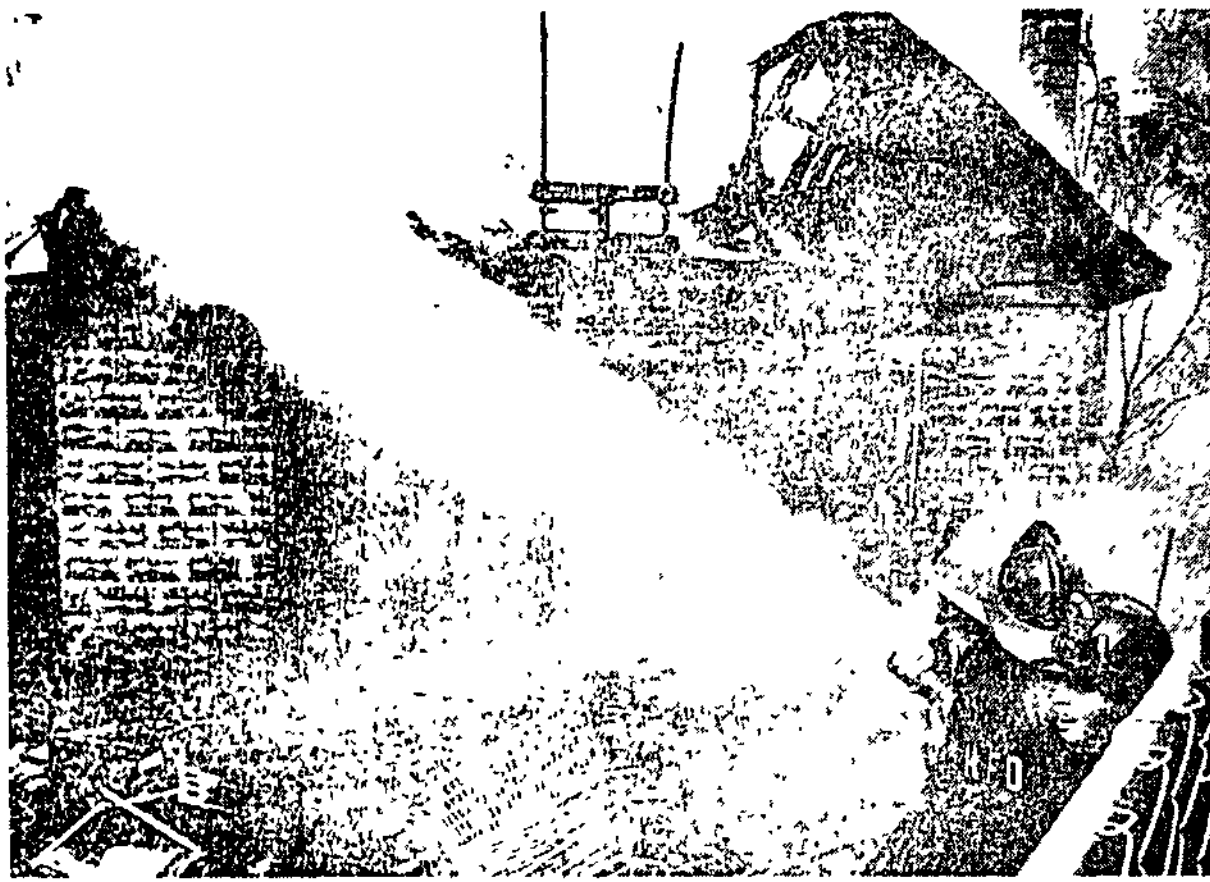

Although some residents would like to see Dist. 125 put in the Harper College district, the upcoming referendum will not decide that question.

In the past, Buffalo Grove officials have supported that action, saying that making the village part of just one junior college district would "create unity."

ARSON IS SUSPECTED in a fire that destroyed a garage at an abandoned house in Prospect Heights at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Firemen also battled a fire of suspicious origin in the nearby house Monday night. No value was placed on the loss because the buildings, near the northeast corner of Thomas Street and Rand Road, are in the process of being demolished. Arlington Heights firemen assisted.

For office-warehouse

Officials reject water line outside of village

Wheeling officials have turned down a request by a developer to extend its water lines outside the village's corporate limits to service an office-warehouse planned for a 50-acre tract north of Pal-Waukee Airport.

Village Mgr. George Passolt Wednesday said the request was turned down because a village resolution prohibits the village from extending its water lines to an unincorporated area.

"The only time we can bring water outside our corporate limits is if we are doing it in order to get to another area that is part of the village," Passolt said.

The request for the extension of the water lines was made recently by George B. Anderson and Associates, Mount Prospect, civil engineering consultants for a group of investors planning the office-warehouse.

IN A LETTER to the village, the firm said its clients would prefer annexing to Wheeling, but at present are unable to because the property is not contiguous with the village.

The firm said it would be willing to incur all costs for extending the lines, as well as village water fees. In addition, the firm said the investors would be willing to sign an agreement stating that it would annex to the village when the property becomes contiguous.

George Anderson, of the engineering firm Wednesday said since the village has refused to extend its water lines to the property, the investors will have to consider alternatives.

"All I can really do is advise my clients, but there are still two other viable ways of obtaining a water supply," he said.

ONE WAY of obtaining water, according to Anderson, would be by drilling two or three wells on the site. Another possibility would be through the Citizens Utilities of Illinois, a private firm that provides water to unincorporated areas.

Anderson said a well system was a "strong possibility," but added that his firm will recommend the method that is most economical.

He would not speculate on when construction of the office-warehouse would begin and would not say what would be housed in the facility. "I'm not at liberty to reveal that at this time," Anderson said.

Park board wrapup

Bonds won't be sold by bidding

Prospect Heights Park District officials will enter private negotiations rather than bid publicly for the sale of the $1.1 million in bonds authorized by last spring's referendum.

"We will probably do better through negotiations," Park Pres. Max Lyle said Tuesday. He added that because of the current economic conditions and the 7 per cent legal limit on bond interest, the district might not receive any bids if it went the bid route.

Park district attorney William Moore said he expects to obtain approval for the bond sale from Chapman and Cutler, a law firm specializing in municipal bonds. The law firm has held up its approval, which banks look for before buying bonds, because publication of the referendum lacked the park district secretary's name, Moor said.

Moore said listing the secretary's name was formerly required but has since been stricken by the Illinois Revised Statutes. The attorney said Chapman and Cutler was merely being "cautious" on the point.

$500 OK'd for ball fields

Up to $500 for grading and seeding of four ball fields was unanimously approved.

The three baseball diamonds — for seniors, intermediate seniors and tots — and one softball field will be located on property the park district is leasing from High School Dist. 214 at Coudren Drive in Prospect Heights.

'Ethical standards' ordinance

An "ethical standards ordinance" that covers park commissioners, employees and "persons associated with the district in an official capacity" was unanimously adopted by the park board.

The three-part ordinance forbids conflict of interest situations that would result in profit for the offending party, patronage and contracts with relatives.

"Basically, we are in compliance with this ordinance," Lyle said.

Senior citizens meet

The Prospect Heights Senior Citizen Club, sponsored by the park district, met Tuesday for the first time at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St.

Twenty-one senior citizens, including three men, attended the session. The group will meet from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. each Tuesday with Jo-Ellen Claws acting as co-ordinator.

Fall brochures due soon

Fall recreation program brochures have been delayed and are now expected to be mailed in about two weeks.

Beer drinking a problem

Late-night beer drinking in Kiwanis Park, Elm Street at Palatine Road, has become a serious problem, according to park district officials. The county sheriff's police will be asked to patrol the site.

Used equipment given away

The park board unanimously agreed to give six used toilets and laundry-type sinks from Lions Pool to the Wheeling Park District, which requested the items. The equipment is no longer needed by the Prospect Heights Park District because new facilities will be included in the community center/sports complex. Construction of the complex will begin in about a month.

After youth complained of electric shock

Lions Park Pool closed by county

Lions Pool in Prospect Heights was closed for four days in late August by Cook County Building Dept. officials after a youth complained of receiving a mild electric shock from a defective underwater pool light.

The pool, Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street, was closed from Aug. 22 to 25 after park district officials had been warned of the danger in early July. It was disclosed at Tuesday night's board meeting of the Prospect Heights Park District.

Park Director Ronald Greenberg, who was told by pool guards in July of the situation, said he instructed pool personnel not to use the lights, because they were only "low voltage" and not needed anyway. Greenberg nor any other park official had the situation corrected until the county officials closed the pool.

Greenberg said the defective 6-volt light took only about a half an hour to fix, once the pool was closed down. However, the pool remained closed over the weekend because the county would not recertify its safety until the following Monday.

PARK OFFICIALS said the incident in which a girl was shocked occurred Aug. 21, possibly during a rehearsal for a water ballet show. They said the girl was not injured but merely felt "a tingle."

The disclosure of the incident came when six pool guards attended Tuesday's meeting asking that they be paid for the four days the pool was closed. They said that since they told Greenberg about the faulty light in July, they should not suffer financially because the situation was not corrected then.

No decision was made on the guards' request, although an apparently illegal executive session on the matter was held near the end of the regular meeting. Although board president Max Lyle would not say whether the matter was discussed, the unscheduled executive session was called after another board member asked Lyle if an executive session should be held to discuss the pool guard's request.

THE HERALD learned from one source that pool guards were discussed during the executive session. According to a legal opinion from Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, executive sessions on personnel can only be held to discuss hiring and firing and not salaries.

The park board went into the executive session on the advice of its attorney, William Moore.

The pool closed for the season, Sept. 3. It is being renovated over the winter as part of the recently approved $1.1 million park district referendum.

Village interviews

2nd consulting firm

Wheeling Village trustees have interviewed the second of three outside consulting firms being considered for an in-depth study of the village.

The study was proposed by Trustees Donald Jackson following the indictment of six former village and Cook County officials for their part in the shutdown of village developers and builders.

Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two have been sentenced to prison.

Paul A. Reaume, vice president and division director of Callaghan and Co., the consulting firm, told trustees if his firm is hired it will review the "Entire village operation." After the study is completed Reaume said his firm would meet with trustees in a series of workshops and make recommendations on what needs to be done in Wheeling.

Former site now for sale

Walgreen's scraps plans to build here

by LUISA GINETTI
Plans by Walgreen Co. to build a national headquarters office complex on the former St. Patrick Academy property in Des Plaines have been scrapped.
Robert Pease, an official in the company's real estate department, said Wednesday the company dropped plans to build on the 26-acre site when it negotiated the purchase of the Baxter Laboratory building in Deerfield in June.
Pease said the Des Plaines property, 1400 E. Touhy, is for sale with an asking price of $4.5 million. Walgreen purchased the land in 1970 for $2.9 million and received the city's blessing for rezoning of the property from single-family residential to commercial, much to the displeasure of area residents.
MICHAEL RICHARDSON, Des Plaines director of planning and zoning, said Wednesday the commercial zoning granted for the land in 1970 will remain even if the property is sold.
City officials are uncertain if an extensive list of restrictive covenants which were agreed to by the city and Walgreen's will apply to future owners of the land.

Walgreen's originally planned to build on only 15 acres of the land. The restrictive covenants bar certain businesses from being developed on the remaining portion of the site. Firms included in the restriction are auto sales, taverns, bowling alleys, dance or pool halls, service stations, car washes, laundries, trailer rentals, psychiatric wards and newspaper offices.

Pease said time was the main factor in the company's decision to relocate its national headquarters to Deerfield rather than Des Plaines. "We can move into the Baxter building in May whereas we might have to wait as long as 2 1/2 to 3 years before we could complete construction and be ready to move into Des Plaines," Pease said.

"WE WOULD HAVE preferred to move to Des Plaines because officials there have been very cooperative with us, but the immediate availability of the Baxter building was a primary factor in our decision," Pease added.

Pease said Walgreen's notified the city in July that it was closing a deal for the Baxter laboratory and would not be building in Des Plaines. "We called the mayor because we wanted him to hear it from us rather than from an outside source."

Pease said officials from Baxter approached Walgreen's with the information that the Deerfield building would be available. Walgreen's officials determined that the 255,000-square-foot building would suit Walgreen's office space requirements and Pease said the deal for the purchase was closed the end of July.

The Baxter building will become the national headquarters for the drug store chain with offices from the north side of Chicago and Franklin Park consolidated in the Deerfield complex.

administrative offices at 748 Pearson St., which is slated to be used as part of a parking lot for the proposed Superblock retail and office complex.

MAHON SAID he believes the district will receive a fuller hearing from the entire city council.

The city has offered the district about $133,000 for its facilities, but a park district study has revealed the cost of replacing the building would range from $450,000 to $580,000.

"If we took the $150,000 and gave up the building we would be out of business unless we got approval for a bond referendum," Mahon said.

Mahon said he does not believe the negotiations involving the park land are related at all to the political differences between himself and Mayor Herbert Behrel.

"IT APPEARS as though the city has set aside a certain amount of money to acquire all the necessary property and the mayor has to stick within those guidelines," he said.

Mahon added that he hopes the district can explain the situation to the full city council. He noted that this would let the council decide whether the city could afford to pay for a replacement facility.

"If they can we would be glad to sell the property; if the money isn't available we have a perfectly usable facility and we will stay where we are," Mahon added.

Presentation planned Oct. 6

City should pay fair price for park offices: Mahon

Des Plaines Park District officials believe the city should be willing to pay a fair price for the district's Pearson Street office and garage facility if it wants to take over the land as part of the downtown redevelopment project.

Park District Pres. Thomas Mahon Wednesday said the park board is preparing a presentation for the Oct. 6 city council meeting.

The park district presently has its ad-

Deadline extended for police station bids

City officials have extended the bidding time for contractors who plan to submit bids for the new city police station.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel explained that the bidding time was extended because a number of contractors told the city they could not prepare a bid within the two-week period previously set by the city.

The bids had been scheduled for opening Wednesday, but the time has been pushed back to 3 p.m. Sept. 18.

The police station is expected to cost more than $600,000 and will be located adjacent to the new six-story city hall building which is scheduled for completion in March 1975.

Tunnels, reservoirs would eliminate flooding: official

The Metropolitan Sanitary District's proposed tunnel and reservoir plan would eliminate all overbank flooding resulting from Weller Creek, a U.S. Soil Conservation Service spokesman said Wednesday night.

However, residents of the Willow-Higgins Creek area may need two reservoirs and stream widening to solve their flooding problems, the SCS planning engineer predicted.

SCS engineer Harry Means told 20 Des Plaines and Mount Prospect area residents at a meeting in the Des Plaines City Hall Municipal Building, that a detailed plan for the reservoirs and dredging of Willow-Higgins Creek will be prepared and brought back for local consideration.

THE 26-ACRE SITE of the former St. Patrick Academy, Des Plaines, which was purchased by Walgreen Co. in 1970 will continue to remain vacant.

The company has abandoned plans to build on the site and has put the land up for sale at a price of $4.5 million. The company paid $2.9 million for it.

MEANS AND TWO MSD representatives at the meeting came under fire from some local residents who said they doubted the combined sewerage tunnels would ever be built.

MSD engineer Roy A. Carlson countered with a charge that the Village of Mount Prospect has held up plans for a temporary storm-water basin at Busse and Central roads for six to nine months.

Des Plaines resident Burton Kosmen said members of the city council were wrong to allow continued building in the Mill and River Street area without requiring flood-retention basins.

He urged the MSD to strengthen its retention requirements to include residential developments on sites smaller than five acres.

Another Aid. Carmen J. Sarlo, 6th, called on other local municipalities to build their own retention basins to keep from flooding their neighbors.

Possible retention reservoir sites to solve the $287,500 annual flood damage in the Willow-Higgins Creek area include 55 acres of the old Ravenswood Airport and a smaller site near the intersection of Higgins Road and Lee Street, Means said.

Both sites are part of O'Hare Airport and are owned by the City of Chicago. The MSD has already purchased 22 acres of privately owned land north of the Ravenswood site for a future retention basin.

Seniors may get break on transit costs

by STEVE BROWN

Senior citizens in the Des Plaines area may be able to get another break on transportation costs if Des Plaines officials agree to join the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) in the near future.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN's executive director, said Wednesday the district is in the process of completing an agreement with the United Motor Coach Co. to begin offering discount fares to all senior citizens within the district.

The discount, which would reduce the regular fares from 45 cents to 25 cents, would be available to all of the 18 communities that make up NORTAN, DiJohn said.

DES PLAINE OFFICIALS are scheduled to consider whether or not they wish to join the district at Monday's city council meeting.

Transit district officials told the city last week that it would cost $65,000 annually to keep the 14 routes which serve Des Plaines in operation once NORTAN completes final negotiations with UMC to purchase the bus operation. That move is expected to come in two months. NORTAN has received notice that a $6.6 million federal grant to purchase the physical assets of the bus company and buy new buses and other equipment has been approved.

DiJohn was not able to set a specific date on when the senior citizen discount rates will go into effect, but said it should happen in the very near future.

DiJohn also said NORTAN has a discount fare program for students. He explained students have always had the discount 25 cent fare program, but that is now being extended to other communities served by UMC.

HE SAID ONE CHANGE in the student discount program will allow students to board UMC buses at Maine West High School and Notre Dame High School in Niles and ride to Evanston for the reduced 25 cent fare.

DiJohn added students must show their school identification cards when boarding the bus to qualify for the discount fare.

It is expected that once the discount fare for senior citizens is set, identification cards for the senior citizens will be available at the municipal offices of their respective communities.

If Des Plaines decides to join NORTAN, the lower fares for senior citizens would be the second break they have received for transportation in the last year.

THE CITY BEGAN lower cab fares for senior citizens earlier this year. Under that program, which is being financed with a portion of the funds allocated to Des Plaines by the federal revenue-sharing program, seniors can ride anywhere in the city for a 50-cent fare.

The discount fare program for the cabs appears to be so successful that the city may need to appropriate another $5,000 to $6,000 to carry the program through the remainder of the year.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said that making the additional funds available for the program should be no problem.

Suburb drug probe planned by unit headed by Rep. Young

An ad hoc congressional committee, headed by U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, will conduct a hearing Sept. 21 in Niles to examine the problem of drug abuse in the suburbs.

Young has invited a number of experts in the drug field to testify during the day-long hearing. Young said he also expects U. S. Representatives Philip Crane, R-12th; Harold Collier, R-6th, and Robert McClory, R-13th to take part in the hearing.

Young said he is holding the hearing so that he can learn more about the drug abuse problem in this area and what can be done about the problem.

Among the witnesses that have been asked to testify at the hearing are Dr. Marilyn Dexheimer, chief of congressional relations for the White House Special Action Office on Drug Abuse Prevention.

According to Young's staff, Dr. Dexheimer's office is in charge of coordinating federal, state and local efforts to combat drug abuse.

The operating director of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), John J. Hinchey, will also appear as a witness.

Hinchey has been heading a county-wide crack down on drug sales for the past two years.

Other witnesses will include Dr. Marvin Schwarz of MacNeal Memorial Hospital in Berwyn. Schwarz has been involved in the nation's largest drug abuse prevention program which is headquartered at the Berwyn medical facility.

Dr. David Busby of Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge and Mrs. Erna Gans, a Loyola University sociologist from Skokie will also appear at the hearing. Mrs. Gans has been researching the drug abuse problem in Niles Township High School and has worked for funding of a drug abuse prevention center in Skokie.

Games, films, dramatics used

Teaching method makes reading fun

by LINDA PUNCH

For many youngsters in Des Plaines Dist. 62 schools, "attacking" and "decoding" are a major part of learning to read.

Several times a week, primary students at Forest, Orchard Place and Terrace schools gather to master the basic skills of reading through games, filmstrips, tape recordings and basic reading texts. The program — formally titled the Wisconsin Design — concentrates on word study and basic reading skills, said Estelle Bradley, Dist. 62 reading coordinator.

"Reading comprehension comes after word attack — you have to call and know words before you can really comprehend," Mrs. Bradley said.

WORD ATTACK is divided into four levels ranging from rhyming words, shapes, letters and colors at level A to sight vocabulary, consonant blends, silent letters and possessives at level D. Students are grouped according to skills rather than age, Mrs. Bradley said.

The district first used the word attack approach to reading with children who scored poorly on reading tests. After a four-year period, youngsters in the program were reading "approximately 1½ years above" students at the same grade level and I.Q., she said.

"When we saw how important the type of program is, we thought we should try it with all the children," she said.

The program is being used on an experimental basis with primary youngsters in the three schools, Mrs. Bradley said. A long-term evaluation will determine whether the program will be introduced into other district schools.

THE BACKBONE OF the Wisconsin

Design is cooperation among classroom teachers, learning disabilities teachers and media specialists, Mrs. Bradley said.

"The program takes a great deal of work and patience on the teachers' part — they have to be dedicated and want to be part of the team," she said. "When we first started the program teachers hated it. Now they don't want to go back to the other way."

The word attack program is flexible both for students and teachers, said the reading coordinator. Teachers can choose methods ranging from games to the traditional reading text to teach the basic skills.

As for students, each youngster is able to progress at his own rate because of the various groupings, Mrs. Bradley said.

"Some children learn skills instantly, so why should they sit and review them over and over," she said. "Others need to go over a skill four or five times. With this program they have the opportunity."

YOUNGSTERS WHO master the basic skills take part in enrichment activities in the instructional material centers at the schools. Jan Anderko, IMC specialist at Forest School, terms the enrichment "kind of recreational fun."

Activities include creative dramatics, puppet shows and story writing. "We don't try to teach — we just work with the skills the kids already know," she said.

Mrs. Bradley credits much of the success of the program to the interest of the school staff.

"No program would succeed without teachers," she said. "You can invest a lot of money but if your teachers aren't willing to work, forget it."

STORYTELLING IS a basic part of a new reading program being tried on an experimental basis at three Des Plaines schools. Estelle Bradley, reading coordinator, reads to Barbara Cho and her classmates.

Oakton College trustees approve $6.4 million budget

The Oakton Community College Board of Trustees approved a $6.4 million budget Tuesday and heard a challenge from board member Stephen Loska that they work to reduce the college's costs next year.

The budget represents a 9.7 per cent increase over last year's budget. David Hilquist, vice president for business affairs, pointed out that the increase was kept under 10 per cent, even though the college faced an inflation rate of 10 per cent and a 12 per cent growth in enrollment.

Loska said the budget represented a "pretty good" job, but said that next year he would like to see the college ensure that all parts of the college operate more efficiently so the school's cost per student can be reduced.

IN ADDITION TO the $6.4 million, operating budget, the college has $4 million set aside in a fund for development of the school's permanent campus in Des Plaines. College officials hope to complete purchase of the land, located along the Des Plaines River in Maine Township, in the next few weeks.

The college's tax rate for the coming year will drop from 20.6 cents per $100 assessed value to 19.5 cents. It is the fourth year in a row the tax rate has decreased.

Loska warned, however, that even though the tax rate is decreasing, some taxpayers may end up paying more in taxes next spring because of assessment increases in Maine Township. "We are asking our citizens to pay more money for our college even though we've cut taxes," Loska said.

Hilquist, however, said most homeowners in the district will probably have a slight decrease in their bills for Oakton, even though because of the college's small tax rate they might not notice it. "We represent just four cents of the taxpayer's dollar," he said.

Free school lunch program offered

Applications are now available for Maine Township High School Dist. 207's free lunch program.

Children from families whose income is at or below income levels established by school officials are eligible for free meals and milk. Families with other unusual expenses, such as medical expenses and special education costs, also may apply.

For further information, contact the principal's office or call the Dist. 207 administration office at 696-3800.

Youth services chief sought

Elk Grove Township is looking for a director for its newly formed Regional Youth Service Bureau.

Paul E. Paprocki, director of youth services, said the township is seeking applicants from the Northwest suburbs since the new bureau is a cooperative venture of Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Paprocki said the director will coordinate regional programs including a hotline referral service, medical counseling and referral for pregnancy and venereal disease, pregnancy testing, family therapy, individual counseling and referral and walk-in emergency assistance.

The director will be assisted by 11 staff members, Paprocki said.

Paprocki said the township is looking for applicants with a Bachelor's degree minimum although a Master's degree or three years of experience in social service are preferred. In addition applicants should have experience working with volunteers and with a hotline and have some administrative experience.

The salary range for the full-time position is $12,000 to $13,000 plus fringe benefits.

Resumes should be sent to Paul E. Paprocki, Director of Youth Services, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, 60005.

Township wrapup

Day-care center enrollment growing

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has an enrollment of 17 students with more applicants expected by the end of the week.

Dora Fowler, director of the center, told the township board of auditors Tuesday the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services initially licensed the center for 30 students. Capacity for the center at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., is 40. Mrs. Fowler said the center will receive licensing for its capacity in the near future.

Of the 17 students enrolled in the five-day week program, 12 pay the full fee of $30 per week, four pay a partial fee and one student is on a full township subsidy, Mrs. Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler said children will be accepted on a part-time basis for less than the full five-day week.

Children from Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines comprise the 17-member enrollment.

Sewer cleaning bid OKd

The board accepted a bid from National Power Rodding Corp. of Chicago to clean the sewer in the industrial area along Oakton Street. The bid of $3,278 includes cleaning of 5,000 feet of 8- and 10-inch pipes and cleaning of the Oakton lift station and manholes.

One other bid was received on the project although the township solicited five bidders for the work.

Five men and one mobile unit

Paramedic program to roll in 3 weeks

Five paramedics and one mobile intensive-care unit will be operating in Des Plaines within the next three weeks, according to Fire Chief Donald Corey.

Five of the city's 11 firemen who are participating in the program are now in the process of receiving their certification.

Maryville school plans up for review

Architects in charge of the new Maryville school project will meet Sept. 24 with the Illinois Capital Development Board.

Anthony J. Siros of Fields, Goldman and Nages, Mont Vernon, said Wednesday the ICDB will review drawings for the school and "should at that time establish final plans." The ICDB must approve design plans since it is providing nearly $1 million toward construction of the school.

Last month the ICDB approved roughly 40 per cent of design drawings completed thus far and directed architects to prepare specifications for use by prospective contractors for bidding. Siros said he still hopes to let bids for construction by October.

Architects are aiming for a September, 1975, opening for the new building. Siros said if bid letting is delayed, the school may not be ready for occupancy until some months past September.

The new school will be located on the Maryville Academy grounds in Des Plaines on a five-acre parcel of land at the intersection of Gregory Street and River Road. The school will serve students from the academy who now attend River Road School, which must be replaced because it does not meet state life safety codes.

Evangelism seminar scheduled Oct. 30

The Northwest Suburban Lay Institute will hold a week-long evangelism seminar at Evangelical Free Church of Des Plaines, 53 W. Golf Rd., starting Oct. 30.

Approximately 20 churches are sponsoring the seminar with the Rev. Ted Lopper of the Evangelical Free Church serving as chairman of the pastors' committee.

Persons other than members of participating churches are invited to attend and are asked to contact the church at 297-3733 for information.

Boosters meet today

Maine West High School Athletic Boosters will meet tonight at 7:30 in the teachers' lounge of the school.

Parents and friends of athletes are invited to attend the meeting and support the boys and girls in the athletic program.

Bike-a-thon to raise funds

The Northwest Opportunities Center and Shelter Inc., a local child welfare agency, will cosponsor a bike-a-thon Oct. 20 at the Arlington Park Race Track parking lot.

Funds raised from the event will be shared by the two agencies.

Riders will begin circling the parking lot at 9 a.m. Each cyclist will have a sponsor who will contribute a certain amount of money for each mile the rider completes.

Persons wishing to participate in the event should call the township office at 437-0300 for more information.

October meeting changed

The board voted to reschedule its October meeting from the 7th to the 1st, which is the first Tuesday of the month.

The board also tentatively scheduled a meeting with the Elk Grove Village Park District for Tuesday, Sept. 17 to discuss the park district's bicycle safety program.

Voter sign-up continues

Voter registration will continue through Sept. 20 with the township offices open each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon to accommodate registrants. The township will sponsor a special voter registration drive Sept. 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., which will be the last chance for prospective voters to register in the evening.

Centex street repair delay irks village

by JERRY THOMAS

Building permits may be withheld from Centex Homes Corp., a major builder of Elk Grove Village homes, unless the builder speeds up street repairs.

Village Pres. Charles Zetek, irked over long delays in completion of street repairs, Tuesday said, "Let's give them (Centex) an incentive for getting it done: let's stop handing out building permits."

Zetek's threat was cheered by most trustees although Trustee Nanci Vanderweel reminded him the action was illegal and that Zetek himself had deplored the idea when suggested in the past.

SHORTLY BEFORE his statement, Zetek had chided Trustee George Spees for charging that "Centex Homes Corp. puts in anything it wants, and the village is powerless to demand better performance."

The discussion began when Trustee Michael Tosto asked fellow board members to accompany him on an 8 a.m. walking street inspection tour Saturday.

Tosto said that acceptance of streets in Section 15, south of Blesterfield Road, west of Wellington Avenue and north of Devon Avenue has been pending for several years. The streets were put in by Centex eight years ago.

Normally, the village inspects sidewalks, streets and driveway aprons and lists repairs that must be made before it will consider accepting the public improvements. Once the improvements are accepted it is the village's responsibility to provide maintenance.

When section 15 was inspected in 1970, the builder repaired some deficiencies cited by the village, but argued that some sidewalks and driveway aprons, which village engineers termed defective, were borderline and did not merit replacement.

Several reinspections were made in the past four years and the builder resealed last year and replaced 144 aprons and adjacent sidewalks, but refused to replace 38 others the village maintained were bad.

SINCE THAT DATE, the acceptance of streets in section 15 has been listed as unfinished business on the village board meeting agenda.

Zetek said Tosto's inspection could expedite street acceptance in section 15. "He will determine if the 38 unrepaired driveway aprons all need to be torn out, left the way they are or just some repaired," he added.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert then asked if the builder had posted a performance bond.

He said that the bond money could be used to make repairs when the builder drags his feet. The bond is usually the village's guarantee that streets are completed and repaired to their satisfaction, he added.

Zetek said the village now requires such a bond, but did not at the time Centex first began construction in the village.

When trustees wondered how to motivate builders to repair streets when there was no bond, Zetek suggested withholding building permits. "It's always worked before," he said.

AMID TEST EQUIPMENT for Purity air pollution control devices, L. J. Pircon, president of the Elk Grove Village firm, talks about the advantages of the new industrial unit he began marketing three years ago.

L. J. PIRCON, president of the Purity Corp., Elk Grove Village, explains the process used by the company's Pentapure air pollution control device. Although Pircon, who also invented the device, says the product is better for the environment, industry and the consumer than older ones in use, it is difficult for fledgling companies like Purity to get state and federal funds

Thomas Edison would be proud of Purity Corp.

by JILL BETTNER

Thomas Edison turned on the light that pointed the way to a worldwide technological revolution. But he once said his greatest regret was that he would not be around to help solve the problems that began in his laboratory.

The brilliant inventor had the foresight to know that his incandescent light bulb would be just the start of a new age of power that might one day be difficult to control for man's own sake.

Edison's fears are borne out on the shores of South Chicago, for example, where steel mills belch smoke and grit and noxious gases that threaten human health.

THANKS TO THE public's concern for a better environment and some strict new laws, a whole new industry — pollution control — has been born in the last decade. The opportunities are there for even the small manufacturer if he's got an idea and can put it on the market.

One such company is Purity Corp., 50 Lively Blvd., Elk Grove Village. L. J. Pircon, company president, claims his industrial air purifier saves energy and time, resulting in lower-priced consumer products. It also turns out by-product — sulfuric acid — which can be used for other purposes.

Basically, for the last 40 years the majority of industries such as foundries, utilities and steel mills have been using "scrubbers" — large cylindrical devices that clean impurities out of industrial exhaust by using motors to churn up millions of tiny polluting particles until they merge with each other, becoming heavy enough to wash away, Pircon said.

The Purity Corp. president explained that his air purifier uses less water, requires less power and is more efficient.

Because of the way the particles are settled out in Pircon's process, the end waste product is sulphuric acid instead of sludge. A consultant to the Institute of Gas Technology is working with the aid of a state grant on ways of using the acid and other raw materials to produce fertilizer.

PIRCON SAID it is difficult for a fledgling company like Purity to obtain necessary demonstration funds to show industries the benefits of his product.

"I'm not DuPont, I'm not General Motors," he said. "When these people look at this they say 'Who's Purity? Where is Elk Grove Village?' The State of Illinois was the first one to realize that somewhere in this huge network of industry there might be some little company that just could have the answer."

Pircon said the Pentapure and a newer version of the original product, the Polypure used on incinerators could replace municipal landfills and save taxpayers money in waste disposal services. But here, too, the men with the money are reluctant to take a chance on something new.

He concluded by saying that many other companies similar to the Purity Corp. have been created to try to improve on old pollution control methods, but died for lack of governmental support.

"There's a very high fatality rate because we're just not getting the help we need," Pircon said. "Today, old Tom would have a heck of a time getting rid of candles."

THE GIFT OF LIFE

ELK GROVE VILLAGE COMMUNITY
4% BLOOD ASSURANCE PROGRAM

Annual Goal: 900 units

Already donated: 315

Still needed: 585

Four units of blood were donated by Elk Grove residents last week to credit the village's 4 per cent blood-replacement program.

Persons who wish to donate blood may do so now by contacting Alexian Brothers Medical Center at 437-5500 for an appointment.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, chairman of the blood program, may be contacted at the village hall at 430-3000 for further information.

Governmental bodies do not have to apply

U.S. rent assistance now available here

Senior citizens and low-income families in Elk Grove Village can apply for federal rent assistance under a revision in the federal housing subsidy program.

Under a recently enacted revision to the U. S. Dept. Of Housing and Urban Development-administered program, local governmental bodies no longer have to submit applications for the subsidies to be available in their municipalities.

Previously, local authorities were required to adopt resolutions before federal funds were made available to senior citizens or low-income families.

Two policemen receive FOP awards

Lt. William Kohnke and Det. Gary Kuehnle of Elk Grove Village police were awarded Policeman of the Month awards by the Fraternal Order of Police.

Kohnke was cited for action beyond the call of duty in a recent incident involving an Elk Grove Village resident who had barricaded himself in his home and was threatening police and residents with a weapon. Lt. Kohnke walked into the house and disarmed the man. He then convinced the man to surrender to police.

Kuehnle also was commended for bravery. He was honored for his part in keeping a mental patient from attempting to jump off an overpass last May at Blesterfield Road and I-90.

At a meeting Wednesday night of the Elk Grove Village Housing Commission, Chairman Catherine Duoba told the commission that the revised program allows HUD to contract directly with developers for housing assistance payments.

The commission has been working on a resolution to be passed by the village board setting up a rent-assistance program in the village, a measure which apparently is no longer needed.

In previous discussions, village board members said they favored further study of the any rental assistance program for families. When the commission prepared a resolution authorizing rent assistance for both senior citizens and families, the village board members indicated opposition to subsidized rents for families.

To coordinate regional programs

Elk Grove Township is looking for a director for its newly formed Regional Youth Service Bureau.

Paul E. Paprocki, director of youth services, said the township is seeking applicants from the Northwest suburbs since the new bureau is a cooperative venture of Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Paprocki said the director will coordinate regional programs including a hotline referral service, medical counseling and referral for pregnancy and venereal disease, pregnancy testing, family therapy, individual counseling and referral and walk-in emergency assistance. The director will be assisted by about 11 staff members, Paprocki said.

Paprocki said the township is looking for applicants with a Bachelor's degree minimum although a Master's degree and/or three years of experience in social service are preferred. In addition applicants should have experience working with volunteers and with a hotline and have some administrative experience.

The salary range for the full-time position is $12,000 to $13,000 plus fringe benefits.

Resumes should be sent to Director of Youth Services, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, 60005, to the attention of Paprocki.

Material, paving contracts awarded

Elk Grove Village officials Tuesday awarded $114,170 worth of materials contracts and a $44,788.97 contract for the 1974 street repaving program.

American Asphalt Paving Co., low bidder for the 88,867 square yards of street repaving work expected to start immediately. The firm was selected over Cutler Repaving, Inc. of Villa Park.

Village Eng. Donald Claglia said Cutler worked for the village the past five years on its Motor Fuel Tax (MFT) street programs with no problems.

"However, we could not ignore the American bid which was $11,000 lower," Claglia said. He added the firm has state approval necessary for MFT work.

"A tour of American's plant, inspection of completed work and viewing of the repaving process used convinced me they have a good operation and I recommended them for the job," he explained.

Driveway variation OK'd

Trustees granted a resident a variation to install a driveway at 540 Ruskin Dr. 13 feet wider than village ordinances allow.

The variation was recommended by Building Comr. Tom Rettenbacher. He explained that the property owner, Thomas Wold, has a three-car garage.

Trustee George Spees unsuccessfully attempted to convince fellow board members that a review of the driveway ordinance and perhaps a change in the maximum width standards for driveways should be undertaken.

He pointed out that several homeowners who plan three-car garages have asked for and received variations, "so why not allow it in ordinance," he said.

Trustee Ronald Chernick said the ordinance limits driveway widths to 20 feet in residential areas because most homes have two-car garages.

"If we allowed wider driveways most homeowners would install them and leave extra cars in the driveway and this could lead to a parking lot look very shortly," said Chernick.

He said variation requests do not entail any cost to the homeowner and are a means of control.

Two trucks to be purchased Purchase of two trucks was approved for use by the Public Works Department at a cost of $9,350.

Trustees awarded the purchase contract to Grand Spaulding Dodge Inc., Chicago, the lone bidder on contract. Officials expressed concern that the village did not receive any other bids even though there was public advertising and invitations for bids sent to 16 firms.

Claglia said the lack of bidders is a problem in many communities buying new equipment.

"Most firms just are not interested in soliciting municipal business since subsidies that made it possible for them to offer us bargains have been withdrawn," said Claglia.

The village purchased a 1975 pickup truck for $4,339 and a 1975 utility box truck for $5,019. The department will negotiate directly with area dealers to purchase an additional piece of equipment, a 2½-ton dump truck with snow plow. Although a bid was received for this piece of equipment it was not accepted because the dealer could not deliver for 270 days.

Claglia noted that the plow was needed this coming winter.

Radio equipment bid OK'd

Trustees approved a $20,391.50 expenditure to purchase communications equipment from Motorola Communications and Electronics Inc., Elk Grove Village for the police department.

The following equipment was purchased: Eight radios with batteries for $10,495; six in-car chargers, for $1,899.50; six one-watt radios with batteries and accessories for $7,614 and a $202 installation cost.

Project gets zoning board approval

'76' donation of $150 per child

Developers of Schaumburg Woodfield 76 "metro center" will be required to donate $150 for each child enrolled in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Zoning board members Wednesday approved a development plan for the $250 million project contingent on developers finalizing a verbal agreement made early this week with school officials.

Zoners also will recommend that the village board negotiate for further donations to the police and fire departments and a proposed cultural center. Their report will be presented at the Sept. 26 village board meeting.

ZONING BOARD member James Blankenship said he was advised of a Monday meeting between the developers' attorney and Dist. 54 officials.

"I've been told that the school district is agreeable to a $150 per student donation to be provided on enrollment," Blankenship said.

School officials, Blankenship said, foresee no need for a school site in Woodfield 76 since the district owns land in the adjacent Walden development at Meacham and Algonquin roads.

Woodfield 76 is being planned on 237 acres of Golf Road property near Woodfield Shopping Center.

AS A MULTI-USE project, the center would contain commercial, residential and recreational space and a 648-room Hyatt convention hotel on 104 acres. Completion is planned over 20 years. The remaining 133 acres would be similarly developed in a second 20-year period.

Annexation of the property and planned metro-district zoning is being requested by a development team consisting of Union Oil Co. of California; The Pritzker family, owners of the Hyatt hotel chain, and Bennett Kahnweiler; a Chicago Real Estate Brokerage.

Developers are asking the village to become a partner in the venture and provide external loads, utilities, a domestic water system, a "people-mover" and a 900-car municipal parking facility as well as public transportation.

Annexation hearings being held by the village board will continue Oct. 1 at Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Inspections slated at 4 high schools

Four High School Dist. 214 schools will be evaluated by the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools in April, 1975.

Chairmen of the visitation teams from North Central have been announced for Elk Grove, Prospect, Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools.

Schools are evaluated generally every seven years. The most recent visit by the association came in 1968 at Arlington, Elk Grove, Forest View, Wheeling and Prospect high schools.

NICHOLAS MANNOS, Niles West High School principal, will be chairman of the NCA visitation committee at Elk Grove High School. Elk Grove science teacher John Peters will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Len Szudy, assistant superintendent for the West Allis Public Schools in West Allis, Wis., will chair the visitation committee at Forest View High School. Burton Showers, director of student activities, will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Chairman of the Prospect High School visitation committee will be David Cox, principal of New Trier West High School. John Kleinschmidt, social science teacher at Prospect, will chair the steering committee.

GILBERT R. WELDY, Niles North High School principal, will chair the committee visiting Rolling Meadows High School. The schools' social science foreign language division head, Thomas Rife, is chairman of the steering committee.

Along with the 20 to 30 representatives on each visiting team, representatives from the Office of the Superintendent for Public Instruction also will be visiting.

More than 700 colleges and universities and 4,044 secondary schools in 19 states are members of the NCA.

The remaining four Dist. 214 schools, Arlington, Buffalo Grove, Hersey and Wheeling High Schools, will be visited by NCA teams in spring 1976.

Trustees weigh boost in pay

Elk Grove Village elected officials' salaries could be increased 33 per cent for trustees and 50 per cent for the village president.

The raises were recommended by the judicial, planning and zoning committee Tuesday, after a review of the present salary scale. Village Atty. Edward Hofert was instructed to prepare an ordinance for the board establishing the new salaries.

Any increase voted by this administration would take effect with the next term of office and would not mean a raise or change in salary for those now serving in elected posts.

The board meets the first, second and fourth Tuesday of the month at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

Trustees are paid $25 per meeting and the village president's salary is $2,400 a year.

The suggested new salary is $100 a month or $1,200 a year for trustees and $3,600 a year for the president.

Arts guild to sponsor theater trip Sept. 26

The newly formed Elk Grove Arts Guild will sponsor its first theater trip of the year Sept. 26 at 7 p.m.

The play will be "Brief Lives," at the Arlington Park Theater.

British actor Roy Dotrice, portrays the old scandal monger John Aubrey, who delights in telling risqué stories about his colleagues, friends and especially his enemies.

The trip is open to the public. The price of a $7 ticket and bus transportation from Elk Grove-High School to the theater and back is $5. Tickets may be reserved by calling Richard Calisch, 439-1800, ext. 71 or Mary Clark, 439-0477.

Township wrapup

Day-care center enrollment growing

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has an enrollment of 17 students with more applicants expected by the end of the week.

Dora Fowler, director of the center, told the township board of auditors Tuesday the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services initially licensed the center for 30 students. Capacity for the center at Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., is 40. Mrs. Fowler said the center will receive licensing for its capacity in the near future.

Of the 17 students enrolled in the five-day week program, 12 pay the full fee of $30 per week, four pay a partial fee and one student is on a full township subsidy, Mrs. Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler said children will be accepted on a part-time basis for less than the full five-day week.

Children from Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines comprise the 17-member enrollment.

Sewer cleaning bid OK'd

The board accepted a bid from National Power Rodding Corp. of Chicago to clean the sewer in the industrial area along Oakton Street. The bid of $3,278 includes cleaning of 5,000 feet of 8- and 10-inch pipes and cleaning of the Oakton lift station and manholes.

One other bid was received on the project although the township solicited five bidders for the work.

Real estate tax bill a shocker

Computer goof nearly costs homeowners $2,087 in taxes

by TONI GINETTI

A computer error in the county assessor's office almost cost the Robert Spohr family of Hoffman Estates $2,087.18.

That was the amount the county told Spohr, 31, he owed for 1973 real estate taxes on his home at 352 Firestone Dr., in the Winston Knolls subdivision. The figure was calculated after a computer added, rather than erased, a $10,500 house assessment which Spohr had successfully appealed and reduced to $7,613.

Spohr, who works for Weber Marking Systems, Inc. in Arlington Heights, three weeks ago filed the papers required to correct the error, but it wasn't until Wednesday, after newspaper inquiries to the county, that Spohr won a reprieve.

Officials in the county assessor's certificate of error division confirmed the correction to Mrs. Spohr, 29, Wednesday following an inquiry on the matter by the Herald.

"What a run-around," Mrs. Spohr said Wednesday after the matter had apparently been settled. "They said it (the tax bill) has been lowered, that it was completed yesterday and that they were sorry for the inconvenience," she added.

MRS. SPOHR, who is expecting the couple's second child in December, said the family's tax problems began in February when a $10,500 assessment for their home was sent to the county. The assessment was appealed by the family, and in March the county assessment appeal board granted a lowered assessment of $7,613.

The couple in the meantime had paid $408.91 in taxes on their first payment installment, but when the total tax bill arrived last month, it showed a balance of $1,678.27 due.

"The assessment was $8,113," Mrs. Spohr said. "They had added the two assessments and this brought the total tax bill to $2,087.18."

What followed was an ordeal which included being shuffled from one county department to another, several trips by Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township Assessor in the couple's behalf and one wasted trip to the county building by Mrs. Spohr.

"The run around I got was 'gee whiz, lady, we can't help you.' One day I called at about 2:30 p.m. and asked how late their offices would be open. A man there told me 5 p.m."

"I GOT DOWN THERE at 4:15 p.m., but they then told me the vault with all the papers in it is closed at 4 p.m. because everybody goes home at 4:30 p.m."

When I called another time a man said

$790 birthday gift

taken from desk

A mother's $790 birthday present to her son was reported stolen from a desk at an Elk Grove Village business.

Mrs. Dorothy Tammeling told Elk Grove Village Police late Tuesday she left $790 in cash and a birthday card under a telephone of her son's desk at the United Consumers Club, 219 Crossen St., Elk Grove Village.

Her son, Robert Fattess, 2222 Goebert St., Arlington Heights, vice president of the firm, told her later that he never found the money.

Mrs. Tammeling, an Addison resident, said she planned the gift as a surprise and when it was discovered missing she thought her son had taken the gift.

There were no signs of forced entry into the building according to reports. Police believe the money may have been taken between Sept. 7 and 9.

Bike-a-thon to raise funds

The Northwest Opportunities Center and Shelter Inc., a local child welfare agency, will cosponsor a bike-a-thon Oct. 20 at the Arlington Park Race Track parking lot.

Funds raised from the event will be shared by the two agencies.

Riders will begin circling the parking lot at 9 a.m. Each cyclist will have a sponsor who will contribute a certain amount of money for each mile the rider completes.

Persons wishing to participate in the event should call the township office at 437-0300 for more information.

October meeting changed

The board voted to reschedule its October meeting from the 7th to the 1st, which is the first Tuesday of the month.

The board also tentatively scheduled a meeting with the Elk Grove Village Park District for Tuesday, Sept. 17 to discuss the park district's bicycle safety program.

Voter signup continues

Voter registration will continue through Sept. 20 with the township offices open each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon to accommodate registrants. The township will sponsor a special voter registration drive Sept. 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., which will be the last chance for prospective voters to register in the evening.

to me 'oh, yes, Mrs. Spohr, we've seen your bill,' but he never even asked for my tax number or anything, and you know how many Spohrs there are in the Chicago area?"

On Aug. 23 the couple filed a certificate of error which would correct the mistake and include notice of a corrected, lower tax amount. That notice will now be issued to the couple, only several days before the Monday deadline for payment of tax bills.

Without it, the couple could have been charged a penalty for every day after Monday in which the $1,678.27 installment was not paid.

According to Kathy Butcher of the certificate of error department, a corrected certificate could have been issued later and the overpaid taxes refunded, but the refund would likely take a year or more to process.

"It appears to be one of those crazy mistakes," said Pedersen.

"IBM ERRORS ARE not frequent but they do happen," Miss Butcher said in commenting on the situation. "People think machines are perfect, but they're not."

Indeed, the Spohr case is one of hundreds which have been submitted for review, Miss Butcher conceded. "There are about 200 that have not yet been looked at. We've already issued I would say 100 or 200 certificates of error."

For those remaining, the chances of beating the Monday tax payment deadline may be slim.

"The big problem now is time," Miss Butcher said. "We can't get these all done. There just are not enough hours in the day, but if we're made an error, we want to correct it. We don't want the taxpayers to pay for our mistakes."

Queen of Rosary PTA meet Monday

The Queen of the Rosary Catholic School PTA will meet Monday for the first time this school year.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. at the school, 750 E. Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

All classrooms at the school will be open for parent visits after the brief meeting.

Boys hockey league tryouts this weekend

Tryouts will be conducted this weekend for boys interested in participating in the Elk Grove Park District traveling hockey leagues at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Drive.

Any boy who has not registered for a park district hockey program prior to tryouts will be charged $15.

Leagues scheduled to try out Friday are Squirts, ages 9 and 10, at 8 p.m.; Bantams, 13 and 14, at 9 p.m. and Midgets, 15 and 16, at 10:30 p.m.

League tryouts for Saturday are Mites, ages 6, 7 and 8, at 7 p.m.; Pee Wees, 11 and 12, at 8 p.m. and Juniors, 17, 18 and 19, at 9:30 p.m.

Boys must have full equipment and should check in at least 30 minutes before their ice time.

There are still openings on both the traveling and house league teams included in the park district hockey program. Practice for house leagues began earlier this week.

Officials call for conference on vandalism

Rising incidents of vandalism throughout the Palatine area have prompted village and township officials to call for a "concerned citizen's conference on vandalism."

The conference is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 24 at Palatine Hills Junior High School. Details are being worked out by the Palatine Advisory Board.

The purpose of the conference is to get concerned citizens, parents and children in one place talking about vandalism, said Village Trustee Philip E. Stern. He explained the conference will address itself to where vandalism is occurring, how it is happening and what can be done to stop it.

"Vandalism is on the rise significantly. There has to be a reason and answer," said Stern.

Police Chief Jerry Bratcher will provide factual data for the conference on where the vandalism problem is and the nature of the vandalism.

ACCORDING TO Palatine Police Dept. reports for 1974, there have been 393 reports of vandalism and criminal damage to property for the first eight months of the year. This compares to a total of 468 reported cases of vandalism during all of 1973.

Monthly reports in Palatine show that vandalism incidents increased significantly in April when the warmer weather started and have remained fairly constant at an average of 55 incidents a month.

Figures on the incidents of vandalism in unincorporated areas of Palatine Township were not available.

Stern said his research into the problem indicates vandalism is not isolated to one area but is widespread throughout Palatine Township.

Residents help sought to stop vandalism at parks

by DIANE MERNIGAS

William Vaughn, designer of Palatine Park District's Doug Lindberg Park, has seen the park's bridge and other facilities "destroyed" during the past two years by the youths who gather there.

Obscenities, names, and figures have been carved into the bridge, portions of the structure have been spray-painted, and trees in the park have been damaged and destroyed, creating what Vaughn says is a "miserable and unnecessary sight."

Vaughn designed Lindberg and other parks in the Palatine Park District.

As a result of extensive vandalism, he is going to attempt to stir concern by residents whose children use the parks.

"I believe that the repairs to the structure and repainting should not only be the responsibility of the park district but the nearby residents, preferably the parents in the area," Vaughn said.

Vaughn plans to ask residents in the Winston Park Subdivision at their next homeowners' association meeting if they would join in a combined effort to "keep a lookout for youths who are vandalizing park property and try to have them apprehended by police," and to join in repairing damaged park property in their neighborhood parks.

THE HACKED, whittled and carved scene is not uncommon in other parks in the Palatine Park District. According to the park district director, Fred Hall, vandalism is a continuing result of restless youths.

Carving, breaking of benches, damaging trees, and breaking windows have been the major acts of vandalism in Palatine parks this summer that could cost the park district from $4,000 to $5,000 for repairs and replacement.

Substantial damage has been done this summer to the hockey rink in Community Park, and the southwest corner of the park has suffered more damage and vandalism this summer than have other areas in the district. It is an area where youths often gather in the evening.

Vaughn already knows that attempting to "inspire adults and kids to be more conscious" of the damage being done "will not be easy." Vaughn is still doing

Village pays out $1,800 for 544 library votes

It cost the Village of Palatine about $3.50 for each of the 544 residents who voted in the library referendum Tuesday.

The village paid for the cost of the referendum with special election funds from its general budget because the library board, although an elected body, is governed by the Palatine Village Board.

Approval of the referendum gives the Palatine Public Library Board the power to govern itself.

The referendum must be approved by the Circuit Court of Cook County before a library district, with the same boundaries as the village, can be formed.

IF THE LIBRARY extends its boundaries in the future, allowing more residents in unincorporated areas to use its services, the library's tax base will also be broadened.

"This will mean that the library will have more tax revenue available from more people in order to expand its services," said Mrs. Judith Gammoran, a library board member.

An expanding of the district boundaries could also mean an overall decrease in the library tax in the future, explained library board president, Robert Jensen.

"I think our main goal with a library district is to allow people in or near to the village or in unincorporated areas that have no library, to have some library service available," he said.

Some of the unincorporated areas that may approach the library board with a request for an extension of the district boundaries are Winston Knolls, Heatherlea, English Valley and Pepper Tree Farms subdivision, said Mrs. Gammoran.

The formation of a library district will also mean that the Palatine Public Library will be able to secure state funds that could be used in promoting the extension of the district boundaries.

Inverness OKs Palatine police pact

The Village of Inverness plans to continue to receive protection from the Palatine Police Dept. next year.

The Inverness Village Board voted to contract with Palatine for 24-hour police protection for approximately $5,000 per month at the board's Tuesday night meeting.

The new contract will be for a five-month period that will begin Dec. 1 and extend until the beginning of the new 1975-76 fiscal year for Palatine and Inverness Village Boards.

A three-year contract for 24-hour police services between Inverness and Palatine Police expires Nov. 30. Inverness presently pays $60,000 for one year of police service to Palatine.

PALATINE POLICE Chief Jerry Bratcher explained that the police service to Inverness will consist of eight hours of regular patrol during a 24-hour period and a full 24-hour police response to all calls.

During the past three years, Palatine police have given Inverness a constant 24-hour police patrol.

A private consulting firm said earlier this year that Inverness needs only part-time police protection because of the amount and type of crimes in the village.

The study, conducted by the Police Service Bureau for Inverness, quoted Palatine as requesting $92,000 for one year of constant 24-hour police patrol in the village. Inverness officials looked into the price and type of police services that could be offered by the nearby Barrington Police Dept.

"WHEN WE CONFERRED more closely with Barrington and Palatine police departments, it turned out that they were both offering us the same type of police service for almost the same amount of money," said Walter Pugh, chairman of the Inverness Police Committee.

"Inverness has been very pleased with the police protection that Palatine has given us. We were only concerned about the cost," Pugh said.

Bratcher feels that the tentative agreement on services seems "fair and equitable for Inverness and Palatine," although full consideration and approval by the Palatine Village Board is still needed.

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said that the village board would be willing to renew a contract with Inverness for police services, "providing that new conditions can be agreed on."

Palanois Park Garden Club meets today

Palanois Park Garden Club will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Robert Jacobi home. An in-club show with all members participating will be the program. "September had a party" is the theme.

Student judges Mrs. Linda Stephens and Ann Cooldge of Buffalo Grove will judge the entries and horticulture. A critical analysis will follow.

Better bonding power sought

Palatine officials are proceeding with steps to increase the village's revenue-bonding power for water and sewer improvements and the future purchase of the Ferndale Heights Utility Co.

The village board has authorized Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig to prepare an ordinance combining the existing water and sewer systems into a general-utility system. Actual adoption of the ordinance is several months away, said Harwig.

Creation of a general-utility system would increase the village's revenue-bonding power for water and sewer improvements by $3.3 million to $5.75 million, according to a report prepared by Paul D. Speer & Associates Inc., municipal finance consultants.

This would give the village enough bonding power to purchase a portion of Ferndale Heights Utility Co., and make improvements in the existing water and sewer system, said Harwig. A study of the village's water system is expected to be completed this month by Conser & Townsend Associates, the village's engineering consultants, and recommend extensive improvements. A comprehensive flood plan is also being prepared and is expected to recommend improvements of the sewer system.

The village has been negotiating with representatives of Ferndale Heights Utility Co. to purchase a section of the utility company so it can extend its boundaries north and annex English Valley, Heatherlea and Pepper Tree Farms subdivisions.

Schools approve 9.1% salary increase for teachers

A 9.1 per cent increase in salaries was given to teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 by the board of education Wednesday night.

The board approved new salary contracts for teachers, ending five months of talks which were listed as critical by the Illinois Education Assn. during the summer. Under the agreement, teachers will earn between $9,000 and $17,608, rather than the $8,250 to $16,306 range they received last year.

Each year teachers were given an automatic increase in salaries for experience by adding the automatic increase to the raise in the base salary. Dist. 15 officials say they will spend about $760,000 more on teacher salaries next year, an increase of 12 per cent.

Salary contracts were approved by 92 per cent of the teachers in Dist. 15 in a vote taken in the schools Friday. Negotiators for teachers last month reduced their request for an 18 per cent increase in salary to 12 per cent.

The new contracts included a grievance procedure and procedures for teacher evaluation and leaves of absence. The contract defines the length of the school day and increases the number of sick days for teachers from 110 to 120 days.

In other action, the board approved a $17.5 million budget. Costs will go up 5 per cent in the district this year mainly because of an increase in the district's education fund for teacher salary and instructional cost. The $13.1 million dollar fund comprises about 75 per cent of the total school budget and includes $9.1 million dollars for teachers' salaries.

The tax rate in Dist. 15 was recently lowered by 6 cents per $100 assessed valuation making the new rate $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation.

Dist. 15 will gain tax revenue this year because of a 6 per cent increase in assessed valuation. Property in the district is now valued at about $350.2 million.

Projects to cost $5.5 million

Big plans made for Wilke Road site

by KURT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights is making some expensive plans for the large tract of vacant land bounded by Wilke, Kirchoff and Central roads.

On the drawing board, and in various stages of official approval, are a deep-water well, pump house and large steel tank reservoir, a 12-acre storm water retention basin for the Pioneer Park neighborhood, and a five-acre park site.

Added together, the projects represent an estimated $5.5 million worth of land acquisition and construction, and are apt to take several years to complete.

THE COST OF THE new well installation will be paid from village utility tax funds paid by each resident while non-referendum general obligation bonds have been recommended to finance the flood control project.

There is no clear source of money to acquire and develop the park site.

A four-acre site, immediately south of the existing Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin, was approved by the village board Monday night for the well, pump house and reservoir tank, which will stand four to five stories tall and store six million gallons of water.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the village board's finance committee, said the Wilke-Kirchoff site was chosen "because it is a relatively remote area, away from any established residential development."

Palmatier said setting the tank in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle will minimize what he euphemistically called "its visual handicap."

ANOTHER TRUSTEE, David Griffin, was more candid when he said the tank "would be big, four or five stories tall. There's no use deceiving anybody."

The tank will be identical to the six million gallon reservoir that now stands on the village landfill site at Dundee and Nichols roads.

But to bury the tank underground, even halfway, would add at least $400,000 to the cost of the water installation which is already estimated at $1.9 million.

"There's no question that we're going to need this facility to head off water shortages," Palmatier said. "We'll need it whether or not we go to Lake Michigan for water."

When the tank is completed, it will bring Arlington Heights' total water storage capacity to 19 million gallons. On a peak summer day, demand for water tops out at 13 to 14 million gallons daily.

"With Lake Michigan water, they like you to have two full day's storage on hand in case there's any trouble in the lines that they have to shut down to fix," Palmatier said. "With 19 million gallons, we won't quite have that, but we'll be over one day's supply."

PRESENT PLANS call for the reservoir tank to be set back about 100 feet from future New Wilke Road.

Directly east of the 14.5-acre Wilke-Kirchoff basin is the proposed site of an additional 12-acre detention basin that is intended to hold storm water drained

Parks submit proposal for Nike Base land sharing

The Arlington Heights Park District has submitted a formal counterproposal to the Army for the sharing of the remaining 75 acres of the Arlington Heights Nike Base, Central and Wilke roads.

The proposal, first put forward on a trial basis about three weeks ago, calls for the Army to retain 40 acres of the base for a Reserve training center and the approximately 35-acre balance to go to the parks for inclusion in their holdings of land previously held by the military at the site.

The office of U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., is drafting a letter supporting the park district's proposal. The letter reportedly will be co-signed by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been trying for more than 10 years to get title to as much of the base as possible to increase the park acreage-per-population ratio. The present ratio of the district is less than half that recommended by federal standards.

To date, the park district has been given title to 13 acres of the base. An additional 52 acres, once set aside for military housing, has been declared surplus by the federal government and is expected to be conveyed to the district at a ceremony Sept. 29.

from the Pioneer Park neighborhood to the north.

Locating this basin in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle is an alternative to using a portion of Pioneer Park itself to store the storm water, a proposal which was never accepted by the Arlington Heights Park Board or the majority of Pioneer Park residents.

The cost of the basin project is estimated at $2.65 million. A large and very deep storm sewer would be constructed along Dwyer Avenue to drain the storm water from Pioneer Park to the Wilke-Kirchoff reservoir.

Within the proposed basin lies a five-acre future park site, already officially reserved in an ordinance passed by the village board in May.

"We first proposed that site three or four years ago when as far as I know, there was no intention of building a second basin," says Katherine Muller, Arlington Heights Park District vice president. "We asked for the site in anticipation of residential development in that triangle."

IF THE SECOND BASIN is built as

Presidential counselor Dean Burch is tentatively scheduled to make the deed transfer. President Gerald Ford had originally been invited to appear at the ceremony by Crane.

The remaining 75 acres was used by the Chicago-Detroit air defense command until this year when funding for the Nike missile program was cut from the federal budget.

The Army announced plans to create a 1,000-man Reservist training center on the 75 acres after the Nike group withdrew.

THE PARK DISTRICT and residents of the area maintain the Army does not need the full 75 acres for a training site. The local interest claim other area sites, such as Glenview Naval Air Station and Fort Sheridan, can be used more fully than they are at the present time.

The park district position calls for the Army to keep 40 acres around the cement command structure for its training needs. The park holdings then would surround the Army of three sides, leaving the military frontage onto Central Road.

A $1 million golf course, incorporating village flood control measures, would be built on the site, if the park's efforts are successful. The course would increase acreage ratio and would also generate revenue for the financially troubled district, officials have said. A referendum would be necessary.

planned, the park site will have to be moved, Mrs. Muller said.

"We will need a neighborhood park site there, one that will remain dry all year-round," she said, adding that retention basins which have been designated park land have not proved very useful. "We're not convinced, for example, that we'll ever be able to do anything with the Wilke-Kirchoff basin."

Mrs. Muller said she does not anticipate a conflict with the village over where the park will be located. "Almost anywhere within that triangle would probably be acceptable to us," she said.

Palmatier has suggested that dirt excavated for the second basin be used as fill to build up a park site in the area, much of which is low-lying property. "We could build up the surrounding land either for a park, or sell it off for development," he said.

Acquisition of the land for the well-reservoir, flood control basin and park site poses its own special problems, and much of the property being mapped out may have to be acquired through condemnation, a court proceeding that could take years. The vacant land in the triangle may cost about $25,000 an acre, according to Palmatier.

"We paid $17,000 an acre for the (existing) Wilke-Kirchoff basin, but that was several years ago. We can expect that prices have gone up some since then."

THE WILKE-KIRCHOFF triangle appears to be convenient for the village's purpose. It is a place where they can "hide" a south side water tank, dump a lot of storm water in a big hole in the ground, and maybe even build a new park. But a four-story water tank and 12-acre retention basin cut in drastically to Village Planner Joe Kesler's visions of a well-planned residential development in the area.

In April, Kesler prepared a "Central-Wilke-Kirchoff Study" in which he proposed four alternative development plans for the whole 119-acre tract.

Each plan contains a mixture of land uses, including offices, commercial space, townhouses and single-family homes, connected by parkways leading to the proposed park.

The report, which has not been formally adopted, states that "enormous development potential exists in the Central-Wilke-Kirchoff area. In order to realize this potential, diligent scrutiny of all proposals for the area is mandatory."

Kesler said Wednesday that he will now have to substantially modify the land planning study to take into account what appear to be the more practical, less artistic pressures of water supply and flood control.

Project gets zoning board approval

'76' donation of $150 per child

Developers of Schaumburg Woodfield 76 "metro center" will be required to donate $150 for each child enrolled in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Zoning board members Wednesday approved a development plan for the $250 million project contingent on developers finalizing a verbal agreement made earlier this week with school officials.

Help needed to stop vandalism what he feels he can do as a designer of some of the parks to curb vandalism.

IN THE EIGHT new parks established in the park district during the summer months, less fiberglass and more metal has been used in the construction of the playground equipment, making it more difficult for the structures to be damaged.

Parking meters to start earlier

Early morning commuters will have to have some extra change on hand in the future when they park at the Palatine Transportation Center at Smith and Colfax streets.
Parking meter enforcement has been pushed back three hours and will start at 6 a.m. instead of the previous 9 a.m. in the future. Parking meter enforcement will be from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays excluding holidays and Sundays.

Zoning board member James Blankenship said he was advised of a Monday meeting between the developers' attorney and Dist. 54 officials.
"I've been told that the school district is agreeable to a $150 per student donation to be provided on enrollment," Blankenship said.

School officials, Blankenship said, foresee no need for a school site in Woodfield 76 since the district owns land in the adjacent Walden development at Meacham and Algonquin roads.

Woodfield 76 is being planned on 237 acres of Golf Road property near Woodfield Shopping Center.
AS A MULTI-USE project, the center would contain commercial, residential and recreational space and a 648-room Hyatt convention hotel on 104 acres. Completion is planned over 20 years. The remaining 133 acres would be similarly developed in a second 20-year period.

Annexation of the property and planned metro-district zoning is being requested by a development team consisting of Union Oil Co. of California; The Fritzer family, owners of the Hyatt hotel chain; and Bennett Kahnweiler, a Chicago Real Estate Brokerage.

Developers are asking the village to become a partner in the venture and provide external loads, utilities, a domestic water system, a "people-mover" and a 900-car municipal parking facility as well as public transportation.
Annexation hearings being held by the village board will continue Oct. 1 at Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Warehouse complex likely to receive OK

An office-warehouse complex near Golf and Algonquin roads appears headed for certain approval by Rolling Meadows officials.

The city council almost granted final site plan approval Tuesday night for the $4.5 million Hel-Jac Office Park proposed by Habin and Associates. But Ald. Thomas J. Waldron, 2nd, asked that the matter be sent back to the plan commission for another round. Preliminary approval was granted by the city council Tuesday, and instructions were issued to schedule a special plan commission meeting to hear the final plan presentation before Sept. 25. This would permit construction to start before winter.

The project carries with it extension of New Wilke Road and improvement of Patton Avenue and installation of sewer and water mains off the site. City Engineer James Muldowney noted the Wilke Road work must be completed this fall to avoid construction traffic on Patton.

MULDOWNEY SUGGESTED the council grant approval of the off site improvements so that work on Wilke can proceed, but Habin's vice president, Sheldon Goodman, said it is "highly unlikely" the firm would begin any improvements without final council approval.

The commission recommended either its own members or the city building and zoning officer be authorized to decide whether plantings or fencing should be used to screen the site from adjoining residential property. The decision is not to be made until the second phase of development, to start in mid-1975. The plan submitted by Goodman carried a notation that the residential property owners would be allowed to make the choice. Council members said the terms of the decision making process should be spelled out in written documents.

That is one matter the plan commission will review at its special meeting. Its final recommendation is due before the city council when it meets Sept. 25.

The Hel-Jac park is to include five buildings with a total of about 40 rental

Savings, loan building gets zoning OK

Commercial zoning for a savings and loan building granted Tuesday by the Rolling Meadows City Council paves the way for design of a plan for the site at Kirchoff and East Frontage roads.

St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago now must seek acceptance by the city plan commission and council of both preliminary and final site plans, including landscaping, before it can proceed with building permit applications. The speed with which these steps are accomplished may determine whether St. Paul opens for business on the site in a temporary facility or its permanent building.

Under St. Paul's charter from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, it must be in operation on its 1.8-acre site by July 1, 1975. Its representatives have said they may seek permission from the city to use a temporary structure in initial operations to comply with the deadline.

MAYOR ROLAND J. MEYER said Wednesday he doubts if the city council will consent unless it becomes apparent construction cannot possibly be finished in time. Meyer estimated the building could be completed within six months of the starting date, if the foundation, walls and roof are in by December.

Tentative plans have been presented at a special zoning commission meeting, showing four drive-in bays, a walk-up window and eight indoor teller windows. Access to the site is to be via two driveway cuts on Kirchoff Road and one on East Frontage Road.

Although St. Paul's site does not meet the minimum two-acre size requirements for a C-2 commercial zoning district, Meyer said the fact it adjoins an existing C-2 district establishes compliance with the zoning code. In granting C-2 zoning, the city council overrode recommendations from a special zoning commission, which sought the more strict C-1 category.

City Attorney Donald M. Rose advised against the C-1 application, saying it could set a dangerous precedent. St. Paul would have required a variance to operate with drive-in windows in a C-1 district. Rose said such a variance could expose the city to similar demands from such businesses as fast food service in unacceptable areas.

Second dead bat found here; first not rabid

A second dead bat found in Rolling Meadows in two days has been sent to the Cook County Dept. of Animal Control for rabies tests.

The first bat, found Monday by Rita Brennan, 4000 Wren Ln., was found not to be infected with rabies, said Police Chief Lewis R. Case Wednesday. Results of tests on the second bat, discovered Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. James Kester in her backyard at 2149 Vermont Ct., should be available today, Case said.

Case said there have been 20 reported incidents of rabies in bats and cats this year in Cook County, although none have been in Rolling Meadows.

$5.5 million earmarked for Wilke Road site

by KUIT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights is making some expensive plans for the large tract of vacant land bounded by Wilke, Kirchoff and Central roads.

On the drawing board, and in various stages of official approval, are a deep-water well, pump house and large steel tank reservoir, a 12-acre storm water retention basin for the Pioneer Park neighborhood, and a five-acre park site.

Added together, the projects represent an estimated $5.5 million worth of land acquisition and construction, and are apt to take several years to complete.

THE COST OF THE new well installation will be paid from village utility tax funds paid by each resident while non-referendum general obligation bonds have been recommended to finance the flood control project.

There is no clear source of money to acquire and develop the park site.

A four-acre site, immediately south of the existing Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin, was approved by the village board Monday night for the well, pump house and reservoir tank, which will stand four to five stories tall and store six million gallons of water.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the village board's finance committee, said the Wilke-Kirchoff site was chosen "because it is a relatively remote area, away from any established residential development."

Palmatier said setting the tank in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle will minimize what he euphemistically called "its visual handicap."

ANOTHER TRUSTEE, David Griffin, was more candid when he said the tank "would be big, four or five stories tall. There's no use deceiving anybody."

The tank will be identical to the six million gallon reservoir that now stands on the village landfill site at Dundee and Nichols roads.

But to bury the tank underground, even halfway, would add at least $400,000 to the cost of the water installation which is already estimated at $1.9 million.

"There's no question that we're going to need this facility to head off water shortages," Palmatier said. "We'll need it whether or not we go to Lake Michigan for water."

When the tank is completed, it will bring Arlington Heights' total water storage capacity to 19 million gallons. On a peak summer day, demand for water tops out at 13 to 14 million gallons daily.

"With Lake Michigan water, they like you to have two full day's storage on hand in case there's any trouble in the lines that they have to shut down to fix," Palmatier said. "With 19 million gallons, we won't quite have that, but we'll be over one day's supply."

PRESENT PLANS call for the reservoir tank to be set back about 100 feet from future New Wilke Road.

Directly east of the 14.5-acre Wilke-Kirchoff basin is the proposed site of an additional 12-acre detention basin that is intended to hold storm water drained

from the Pioneer Park neighborhood to the north.

Locating this basin in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle is an alternative to using a portion of Pioneer Park itself to store the storm water, a proposal which was never accepted by the Arlington Heights Park Board or the majority of Pioneer Park residents.

The cost of the basin project is estimated at $2.85 million. A large and very deep storm sewer would be constructed along Dwyer Avenue to drain the storm

Schools approve 9.1% salary increase for teachers

A 9.1 per cent increase in salaries was given to teachers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 by the board of education Wednesday night.

The board approved new salary contracts for teachers, ending five months of talks which were listed as critical by the Illinois Education Assn. during the summer. Under the agreement, teachers will earn between $9,000 and $17,600, rather than the $8,250 to $16,300 range they received last year.

Each year teachers were given an automatic increase in salaries for experience by adding the automatic increase to the raise in the base salary. Dist. 15 officials say they will spend about $760,000 more on teacher salaries next year, an increase of 12 per cent.

Salary contracts were approved by 92 per cent of the teachers in Dist. 15 in a vote taken in the schools Friday. Negotiators for teachers last month reduced their request for an 18 per cent increase in salary to 12 per cent.

The new contracts included a grievance procedure and procedures for teacher evaluation and leaves of absence. The contract defines the length of the school day and increases the number of sick days for teachers from 110 to 120 days.

In other action, the board approved a $17.5 million budget. Costs will go up 5 per cent in the district this year mainly because of an increase in the district's education fund for teacher salary and instructional cost. The $13.1 million dollar fund comprises about 75 per cent of the total school budget and includes $9.1 million dollars for teachers' salaries.

The tax rate in Dist. 15 was recently lowered by 6 cents per $100 assessed valuation making the new rate $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation.

Dist. 15 will gain tax revenue this year because of a 6 per cent increase in assessed valuation. Property in the district is now valued at about $350.2 million.

City OKs operation

Township senior citizen bus service gets go sign

The Elk Grove Township senior citizens bus service will begin operation in Rolling Meadows, the last municipality in the township to sanction the service.

Township Auditor Bernard F. Lee told the township board Tuesday he has received verbal approval from Rolling Meadows officials to allow the buses to operate in the city. Lee said the approval came following a meeting of the city's licensing committee last month at which township officials requested operating approval.

The bus service, free to senior citizens who reside in the township, has been running since December in Elk Grove Village, parts of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Senior citizens in Rolling Meadows were denied use of the service because the city, unlike the other township municipalities, required the service to be licensed.

LEE SAID HE expects a formal license for the operation to be granted by the city soon. In the meantime, Township Supervisor Richard Hall said the township will operate on the assumption that the city's verbal word is good enough to sanction the immediate start of the program in Rolling Meadows.

Hall said calls from Rolling Meadows seniors who live south of Central Road will be accepted. Persons who wish to ride should call 437-0300 for reservations for rides anywhere in the township.

Buses operate from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Three weekly special out-of-town trips to the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg and Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect are also available to riders.

City council wrapup

Drainage ditch to get cleaning

A City of Rolling Meadows drainage ditch between Plum Grove Bank and the Mr. Steak Restaurant on Algonquin Road, leading south to Salt Creek, is to be cleaned and improved.

The council authorized Mayor Roland J. Meyer and City Clerk Eileen D. Kornatz to sign applications to the state for permission to install drainage tile in the ditch and clear debris. A contract is to be awarded to a private firm if state authorization is obtained.

$25,200 computer pact OK'd

Cost control, budget management and general accounting entered the electronic age for Rolling Meadows this week.

The city council approved a $25,200 contract with its auditors, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. to prepare computer program and accounting system. The 1974-75 city budget allows $10,600 for the project, but $14,600 is to be transferred to the account to finance the system. City financial books have been recorded via hand procedures until now.

Notify residents!: alderman

Public works crews in Rolling Meadows were reminded Wednesday to notify residents in advance of roadwork when Ald. Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd, reported the unhappy experience of a resident of his ward.

The woman had left her home to go shopping last week, and returned home to find a large hole in the entrance to her driveway, said Eberhard. The Public Works Dept. was pouring curbing in her area, he said. Eberhard also noted the curbing work was being done by daylight, and said residents are awaiting each morning with interest, to see whether the light was adequate for a proper job.

Chief to attend meeting

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas J. Fogarty will attend a conference in Salt Lake City, Utah, this month. City councilmen authorized $578.38 in expenses for the chief's Sept. 11-16 trip to the International Fire Chiefs Conference.

Parks counter Army proposal for Nike Base

The Arlington Heights Park District has submitted a formal counterproposal to the Army for the sharing of the remaining 75 acres of the Arlington Heights Nike Base, Central and Wilke roads.

The proposal, first put forward on a trial basis about three weeks ago, calls for the Army to retain 40 acres of the base for a Reserve training center and the approximately 35-acre balance to go to the parks for inclusion in their holdings of land previously held by the military at the site.

The office of U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., is drafting a letter supporting the park district's proposal. The letter reportedly will be co-signed by Sen.

Charles Percy, R-Ill., and U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been trying for more than 10 years to get title to as much of the base as possible to increase the park acreage-per-population ratio. The present ratio of the district is less than half that recommended by federal standards.

To date, the park district has been given title to 13 acres of the base. An additional 52 acres, once set aside for military housing, has been declared surplus by the federal government and is expected to be conveyed to the district at a ceremony Sept. 29.

Presidential counselor Dean Burch is tentatively scheduled to make the deed transfer. President Gerald Ford had originally been invited to appear at the ceremony by Crane.

The remaining 75 acres was used by the Chicago-Detroit air defense command until this year when funding for the Nike missile program was cut from the federal budget.

The Army announced plans to create a 1,000-man Reservist training center on the 75 acres after the Nike group withdrew.

THE PARK DISTRICT and residents of the area maintain the Army does not need the full 75 acres for a training site. The local interest claim other area sites, such as Glenview Naval Air Station and Fort Sheridan, can be used more fully than they are at the present time.

The park district position calls for the Army to keep 40 acres around the cement command structure for its training needs. The park holdings then would surround the Army of three sides, leaving the military frontage onto Central Road.

A $1 million golf course, incorporating village flood control measures, would be built on the site, if the park's efforts are successful. The course would increase acreage ratio and would also generate revenue for the financially troubled district, officials have said. A referendum would be necessary.

Inspections slated at 4 high schools

Four High School Dist. 214 schools will be evaluated by the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools in April, 1975.

Chairmen of the visitation teams from North Central have been announced for Elk Grove, Prospect, Forest View and Rolling Meadows high schools.

Schools are evaluated generally every seven years. The most recent visit by the association came in 1968 at Arlington, Elk Grove, Forest View, Wheeling and Prospect high schools.

NICHOLAS MANNOS, Niles West High School principal, will be chairman of the NCA visitation committee at Elk Grove High School. Elk Grove science teacher John Peters will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Lon Sturdy, assistant superintendent for the West Allis Public Schools in West Allis, Wis., will chair the visitation committee at Forest View High School. Burton Showers, director of student activities, will chair the self-evaluation steering committee.

Chairman of the Prospect High School visitation committee will be David Cox, principal of New Trier High School. John Kleinschmidt, social science teacher at Prospect, will chair the steering committee.

GILBERT R. WELDY, Niles North High School principal, will chair the committee visiting Rolling Meadows High School. The schools' social science foreign language division head, Thomas Rife, is chairman of the steering committee.

Along with the 20 to 30 representatives on each visiting team, representatives from the Office of the Superintendent for Public Instruction also will be visiting.

More than 700 colleges and universities and 4,044 secondary schools in 19 states are members of the NCA.

The remaining four Dist. 214 schools, Arlington, Buffalo Grove, Hersey and Wheeling High Schools, will be visited by NCA teams in spring 1976.

Boy, 3, found chained to tree, parents arrested

by JOE SWICKARD

An Arlington Heights couple was arrested Wednesday night after police discovered the couple's 3-year-old son shackled and chained to a tree in the backyard of their home.

Arrested were Richard and Erna Gilman, 383 N. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights. They were charged by Arlington Heights police with endangering the life and health of the boy.

Police said they received a report Wednesday evening from neighbors that a boy was chained to a tree in the Gilman's backyard.

When detectives arrived at the house they found the youth secured to a tree with a 40-foot length of steel chain attached to his ankle by a shackle and padlock. Police said the chain was wrapped around the tree so the boy could not untie it.

"HE WAS JUST LYING ON THE GRASS BY THE TREE," said Cap. Irwin McDougall. McDougall said the Gilmans admitted chaining the boy, but claimed it was done "so he wouldn't run away." They said it was "a method of controlling him."

According to the parents' statements to police the boy had run away several times this summer and would not stay in the yard. The parents did not put up a fence, police said, because they thought the boy "would just climb over it."

Police said the boy was chained outside daily while Mrs. Gilman would do the housework.

The chain, shackle and padlock weighed a total of 11 pounds, police said. The steel chain is the type commonly used to tether pets. Although the chain was about 40 feet long, police said it was knotted in the middle in an apparent attempt "to limit the child's range of mobility."

THE SHACKLE was homemade from two curved pieces of metal joined with a nut and bolt as a pivot and then secured with a large padlock. The curved portions of the shackle were bare metal, unpadded in any manner, police said.

The boy did not appear bruised or mistreated in any other way, police said. The boy's 4-year-old sister was not kept secured, police said.

Both children were removed from the Gilmans' home by police and were placed in an emergency foster home on approval of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services, police said.

A custody hearing will be conducted in Family Court, 1100 S. Hamilton, Chicago. Police said a hearing date has not been set.

The parents were released on $1,000 bond. They are scheduled to appear Oct. 10 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Projects to cost $5.5 million

Big plans made for Wilke Road site

water from Pioneer Park to the Wilke-Kirchoff reservoir.

Within the proposed basin lies a five-acre future park site, already officially reserved in an ordinance passed by the village board in May.

"We first proposed that site three or four years ago when as far as I know, there was no intention of building a second basin," says Katherine Muller, Arlington Heights Park District vice president. "We asked for the site in anticipation of residential development in that triangle."

IF THE SECOND BASIN is built as planned, the park site will have to be moved, Mrs. Muller said.

"We will need a neighborhood park site there, one that will remain dry all year-round," she said, adding that retention basins which have been designated park land have not proved very useful. "We're not convinced, for example, that we'll ever be able to do anything with the Wilke-Kirchoff basin."

Mrs. Muller said she does not anticipate a conflict with the village over where the park will be located. "Almost anywhere within that triangle would probably be acceptable to us," she said.

Palmatier has suggested that dirt excavated for the second basin be used as fill to build up a park site in the area, much of which is low-lying property. "We could build up the surrounding land either for a park, or sell it off for development," he said.

Acquisition of the land for the well-reservoir, flood control basin and park site poses its own special problems, and much of the property being mapped out may have to be acquired through condemnation, a court proceeding that could take years. The vacant land in the triangle may cost about $25,000 an acre, according to Palmatier.

"We paid $17,000 an acre for the (existing) Wilke-Kirchoff basin, but that was several years ago. We can expect that prices have gone up some since then."

THE WILKE-KIRCHOFF triangle appears to be convenient for the village's purpose. It is a place where they can "hide" a south side water tank, dump a lot of storm water in a big hole in the ground, and maybe even build a new park. But a four-story water tank and 12-acre retention basin cut in drastically to Village Planner Joe Kesler's visions of a well-planned residential development in the area.

In April, Kesler prepared a "Central-Wilke-Kirchoff Study" in which he proposed four alternative development plans for the whole 119-acre tract.

Each plan contains a mixture of land uses, including offices, commercial space, townhouses and single-family homes, connected by parkways leading to the proposed park.

The report, which has not been formally adopted, states that "enormous development potential exists in the Central-Wilke-Kirchoff area. In order to realize this potential, diligent scrutiny of all proposals for the area is mandatory."

Kesler said Wednesday that he will now have to substantially modify the land planning study to take into account what appear to be the more practical, less artistic pressures of water supply and flood control.

Day-care center enrollment growing

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has an enrollment of 17 students with more applicants expected by the end of the week.

Dora Fowler, director of the center, told the township board of auditors Tuesday the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services initially licensed the center for 30 students. Capacity for the center at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., is 40. Mrs. Fowler said the center will receive licensing for its capacity in the near future.

Of the 17 students enrolled in the five-day week program, 12 pay the full fee of $30 per week, four pay a partial fee and one student is on a full township subsidy, Mrs. Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler said children will be accepted on a part-time basis for less than the full five-day week.

Children from Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines comprise the 17-member enrollment.

Sewer cleaning bid OK'd

The board accepted a bid from National Power Rodding Corp. of Chicago to clean the sewer in the industrial area along Oakton Street. The bid of $1,278 includes cleaning of 5,000 feet of 8-and 10-inch pipes and cleaning of the Oakton lift station and manholes.

One other bid was received on the project although the township solicited five bidders for the work.

Panel adopts open meeting policy

An open meetings policy was adopted this week by the City of Rolling Meadows' Fire and Police Commission.

The three commissioners agreed to hold a minimum of three public meetings per year. The commission is set up under state statute to supervise all examinations for hiring or promotion of personnel within the fire and police departments. Part of the examination is an oral interview with each applicant, and all examinations are conducted privately.

The commission also meets in executive session to rank qualifying applicants for jobs or promotions in order of their performance in written and psychological tests and interviews. Previously, it has met publicly for election of officers and review of grievances. Its meetings are not scheduled for regular specific dates, but are held as needed.

THE COMMISSIONERS set their next meeting for 7 p.m. Sept. 25, when they will complete detailed planning for a sergeant examination schedule. Five criteria will form the basis for selecting two sergeants from among qualified applicants. The department now has three sergeants.

Persons passing a written test will be psychologically tested, probably by the Elmhurst Psychological Center, which the commission has employed in the past. Written, but unsigned, evaluations of the men will be requested from the police chief, captain and lieutenant, and these will be added to regular monthly reports prepared on the men by their shift sergeants. The final factor will be the oral interviews with the commissioners.

Also at the Sept. 25 meeting the commission will complete preparation of an eligibility list ranking applicants for patrolmen. The list should be posted shortly after that date, said commissioners.

Kenneth Brown was elected chairman of the commission for a one-year term. Rudolf Balek was elected secretary.

Bike-a-thon to raise funds

The Northwest Opportunities Center and Shelter Inc., a local child welfare agency, will cosponsor a bike-a-thon Oct. 20 at the Arlington Park Race Track parking lot.

Funds raised from the event will benefit the two agencies.

Riders will begin circling the parking lot at 9 a.m. Each cyclist will have a sponsor who will contribute a certain amount of money for each mile the rider completes.

Persons wishing to participate in the event should call the township office at 437-0300 for more information.

October meeting changed

The board voted to reschedule its October meeting from the 7th to the 1st, which is the first Tuesday of the month.

The board also tentatively scheduled a meeting with the Elk Grove Village Park District for Tuesday, Sept. 17 to discuss the park district's bicycle safety program.

Voter signup continues

Voter registration will continue through Sept. 20 with the township offices open each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon to accommodate registrants. The township will sponsor a special voter registration drive Sept. 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., which will be the last chance for prospective voters to register in the evening.

Lions sponsor mobile glaucoma testing unit

The Palatine Lions Club will sponsor a mobile glaucoma testing unit at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St., on Sept. 19 from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

The glaucoma testing and other visual testing to detect eye problems is free and only takes a few minutes.

Glaucoma, is a disease of the eyes which may cause blindness and is most often found in adults 35 years of age or older.

Zoning board approves Woodfield 76 development

Developers of Schaumburg Woodfield 76 "metro center" will be required to donate $150 for each child enrolled in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Zoning board members Wednesday approved a development plan for the $250 million project contingent on developers finalizing a verbal agreement made early this week with school officials.

Zoners also will recommend that the village board negotiate for further donations to the police and fire departments and a proposed cultural center. Their report will be presented at the Sept. 26 village board meeting.

ZONING BOARD member James Blankenship said he was advised of a Monday meeting between the developers' attorney and Dist. 54 officials.

"I've been told that the school district is agreeable to a $150 per student donation to be provided on enrollment," Blankenship said.

School officials, Blankenship said, foresee no need for a school site in Woodfield 76 since the district owns land in the adjacent Walden development at Meacham and Algonquin roads.

Woodfield 76 is being planned on 237 acres of Golf Road property near Woodfield Shopping Center.

AS A MULTI-USE project, the center would contain commercial, residential and recreational space and a 648-room Hyatt convention hotel on 104 acres. Completion is planned over 20 years. The remaining 133 acres would be similarly developed in a second 20-year period.

Annexation of the property and planned metro-district zoning is being requested by a development team consisting of Union Oil Co. of California; The Pritzker family, owners of the Hyatt hotel chain, and Bennett Kahnweiler; a Chicago Real Estate Brokerage.

Developers are asking the village to become a partner in the venture and provide external roads, utilities, a domestic water system, a "people-mover" and a 900-car municipal parking facility as well as public transportation.

Annexation hearings being held by the village board will continue Oct. 1 at Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Both groups favor proposal

Chambers may merge before year's end

by TONI GINETTI

The long-discussed merger of the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce and the Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry may take place by the end of the year.

Representatives from both groups Wednesday said discussions on the merger are continuing and look "favorable." Schaumburg Assn. Pres. Russ Larson and Hoffman Estates Chamber Sec. Shirley Stenger said the move might take place by December prior to the election of officers in the two organizations.

Both said a united chamber would provide for a stronger group with less duplication of efforts. The new group also could better provide for needs of residents, retailers and businessmen by expanding upon the services now provided individually by the chambers, Mrs. Stenger added.

THE MERGER, which would unite the 90-member Schaumburg association with the 75-member Hoffman Estates organization, was discussed Tuesday during meetings of the chambers.

Discussions surrounding the merger were "favorable," according to Mrs. Stenger. She said if the action is taken the groups would likely hope to complete the move by December before new elections in each group.

She added a golf outing has been planned for October as a "get acquainted" social event aimed at furthering the possible merger.

Hoffman Estates Chamber Pres. Bud McMahon of McMahon Realty was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Larson, of Union Oil Co., said a meeting of the Schaumburg chamber board Tuesday discussed the merger but took no action because a quorum was not present. He confirmed, however, that plans for the move are progressing.

"I would think it would be prudent for us to aim for that," Larson said of the possible December merger date. "The things that we are interested in are common not only to the business community but the whole community," Larson added.

DISCUSSIONS surrounding the merger of the two chambers have taken place since 1972 with debate on the matter usually revolving around the advantages to be gained by the merger. The union of the two organizations apparently is now closer to reality, both representatives indicated.

The merger may be more favorable now too, because of the recent formation of the Northwest Suburban Chambers of Commerce, an association of area chambers which members agreed to form in April to better work toward mutual goals.

Larson and Mrs. Stenger both said the work of the organization, which hopes to act as a lobby for Northwest suburban business interests, will be beneficial and that their groups will work with the association.

Two rapes reported in Hoffman

Two unrelated rape incidents were reported Wednesday to Hoffman Estates police.

In one, a 16-year-old Hoffman Estates girl said she was abducted for eight hours Tuesday night and Wednesday morning and was raped three times. The girl told police she was forced into a car by a man near Kingsdale Road and Devonshire Lane and was assaulted. She was unable to provide police a description of her assailant or his vehicle.

In the other case, a 21-year-old Hoffman Estates woman told police she repelled an attacker who she said broke into her apartment early Wednesday and attempted to rape her. The man reportedly entered the apartment by crawling through a floor-level window.

He was described as 28 years old and 160 pounds with wavy, reddish-blond hair. He was wearing a white T-shirt and blue pants, police were told.

Computer fouls up—family almost loses $2,087

by TONI GINETTI

A computer error in the county assessor's office almost cost the Robert Spohr family of Hoffman Estates $2,087.18.

That was the amount the county told Spohr, 34, he owed for 1973 real estate taxes on his home at 352 Firestone Dr., in the Winston Knolls subdivision. The figure was calculated after a computer added, rather than erased, a $10,500 house assessment which Spohr had successfully appealed and reduced to $7,613.

Spohr, who works for Weber Marketing Systems, Inc. in Arlington Heights, three weeks ago filed the papers required to correct the error, but it wasn't until Wednesday, after newspaper inquiries to the county, that Spohr won a reprieve.

Officials in the county assessor's certificate of error division confirmed the correction to Mrs. Spohr, 29, Wednesday following an inquiry on the matter by the Herald.

"What a run-around," Mrs. Spohr said Wednesday after the matter had apparently been settled. "They said it (the tax bill) has been lowered, that it was completed yesterday and that they were sorry for the inconvenience," she added.

MRS. SPOHR, who is expecting the couple's second child in December, said the family's tax problems began in February when a $10,500 assessment for their home was sent to the county. The assessment was appealed by the family, and in March the county assessment appeal board granted a lowered assessment of $7,613.

The couple in the meantime had paid $408.91 in taxes on their first payment installment, but when the total tax bill arrived last month, it showed a balance of $1,678.27 due.

"The assessment was $18,113," Mrs. Spohr said. "They had added the two assessments and this brought the total tax bill to $2,087.18."

What followed was an ordeal which included being shuffled from one county department to another, several trips by Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township

Assessor in the county's behalf and one wasted trip to the county building by Mrs. Spohr.

"The run around I got was 'gee whiz, lady, we can't help you.' One day I called at about 2:30 p.m. and asked how late their offices would be open. A man there told me 5 p.m."

"I GOT DOWN THERE at 4:15 p.m., but they then told me the vault with all the papers in it is closed at 4 p.m. because everybody goes home at 4:30 p.m."

When I called another time a man said to me 'oh, yes, Mrs. Spohr, we've seen your bill,' but he never even asked for my tax number or anything, and you know how many Spohrs there are in the Chicago area?"

On Aug. 23 the couple filed a certificate of error which would correct the mistake and include notice of a corrected, lower tax amount. That notice will now be issued to the couple, only several days before the Monday deadline for payment of tax bills.

Without it, the couple could have been charged a penalty for every day after Monday in which the $1,678.27 installment was not paid.

According to Kathy Butcher of the certificate of error department, a corrected certificate could have been issued later and the overpaid taxes refunded, but the refund would likely take a year or more to process.

"It appears to be one of those crazy mistakes," said Pedersen.

"IBM ERRORS ARE not frequent but they do happen," Miss Butcher said in commenting on the situation. "People think machines are perfect, but they're not."

Indeed, the Spohr case is one of hundreds which have been submitted for review, Miss Butcher conceded. "There are about 200 that have not yet been looked at. We've already issued I would say 100 or 200 certificates of error."

For those remaining, the chances of beating the Monday tax payment deadline may be slim.

"The big problem now is time," Miss Butcher said. "We can't get these all done. There just are not enough hours in the day, but if we've made an error, we want to correct it. We don't want the taxpayers to pay for our mistakes."

Ex-village president pleads 'not guilty'

Richard H. Baker, former Hanover Park village president, pleaded not guilty Wednesday to a 12-count indictment charging him with extortion and filing false income tax returns.

Baker is accused of accepting $22,500 from developers and liquor license applicants while serving as village president and liquor commissioners from 1969 to 1973.

Baker's not guilty plea was made before U. S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker in the Federal Building, Chicago. He is to appear again Nov. 5, when pretrial motions are to be filed.

Boy hit by auto now 'satisfactory'

Randall Hayden, 8, 1935 Song Sparrow Ct., Schaumburg, is recovering from serious injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by a car. He was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

The boy suffered multiple injuries when his bicycle was struck by a car on Algonquin Road in a construction area.

SIDEWALKS, TOO! Workmen Don Bruce and Dick Fess installed this week on the east side of Jones Road, now for are making swift progress on the walkways being considered one of Schaumburg's best streets.

VFW Post 8080 plans building

A $150,000 building is being planned by VFW Post 8080 on a donated site north of Golf Road near Village-in-the-Park apartment complex, Schaumburg officials learned this week.

Charles J. DePaul, post commander, told trustees Tuesday that the group is planning a brick or precast concrete building on a 1½ acre site recently donated to the group by Jack Rohs, owner of a Schaumburg stone and gravel company.

Construction is expected to begin soon with completion scheduled next spring, DePaul said.

Schaumburg officials gave tentative approval for a liquor license for the post headquarters and told DePaul he will be required to appear before the plan commission for building approval.

Village gets record breaker

A basketball that earned four Schaumburg youths a place in the Guinness Book of World Records will be held at the Civic Center for safekeeping until Schaumburg Historical Society arranges for its permanent preservation.

The basketball, bounced for more than 111 consecutive hours late last month, was presented this week to Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher by the Schaumburg High School students.

Jim and Steve Strohacker, Doug Clavey and Jim Camilliere staged the marathon after watching a television news program that broadcasted youths in DuPage County had broken the former world record by "dribbling" 52 straight hours.

Pledges, — totaling $600, received by the youths from local businesses, neighbors and passersby were turned over to a representative of the American Cancer Society present at this week's village board meeting.

Developers may benefit

Four Schaumburg developers could benefit from a special assessment program being planned to extend sanitary sewer lines from the Civic Center property to Roselle Road.

Ciorba, Spies and Gustafson, Wilmette consulting engineers, were authorized this week to begin preliminary planning and prepare cost estimates for the project.

The program would extend sanitary sewer lines from Schaumburg Road village property west through a 120-acre parcel owned by William Lambert on which a high-rise condominium project is being planned.

The system would also serve Applegate Terrace, a 38-acre Roselle Road rental complex, as well as a 56-acre development planned by R. L. Roth Associates on land east of Roselle Road owned by Paul Rosenwinkel. Officials said the project will relieve sanitary sewers now serving the Timbercrest subdivision.

Owners of the properties involved are in favor of the special assessment project, said Village Engr. Joe Zgonina, even though specific cost ranges are not yet available.

Pumpkin Hill postponed

Annexation and zoning of Pumpkin Hill, a 1,116-unit development proposed at Algonquin and Quentin roads, were deferred this week in order to permit publication of a legal notice by Schaumburg officials.

The zoning board of appeals after studying the petition since April, recommended approval of the 84-acre project. Trustees were prevented from acting on the zoning recommendation this week, however, because notice of an annexation hearing has not yet been published.

The complex, proposed by Algonquin Road Developers, would contain a 300,000 square-foot commercial area including three eight-story buildings.

Developers are asking for business zoning for use as a planned unit development on the property which is now in unincorporated Cook County.

Engineering pacts awarded

Schaumburg engineering contracts, approximately $30,000 below preliminary cost estimates, were awarded this week to two local firms.

A water main at Schaumburg Road and Salem Drive to serve the village's new police facility will be installed for $76,313 by Scully, Hunter and Scully, lowest of 10 bidders on the project.

The firm is one of three companies owned by Neil Hunter, developer of Schaumburg's Lancer Park subdivision.

Original cost estimates prepared by Village Engr. Joe Zgonina pegged the cost of the water main project at $98,500 and the grading work at $77,703.

Mass grading improvements at the Schaumburg Road police facility site will be done by Pote Excavating Inc., Palatine. Cost of the work, to be completed within 30 days, is $34,696.

The zoning board of appeals, after studying the petition notice by Schaumburg village officials.

Residents to tell anti-apartment views at 'coffee'

Schaumburg residents objecting to continued high-rise apartment development have been invited to discuss their views with village officials at Saturday's informal "Coffee With the Council."

The invitation was extended this week by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher and Trustee Raymond Kessel when more than 100 homeowners packed the Civic Center in an attempt to speak against planned unit developments.

The residents say a "cross section" of the community wants the question of curbing apartment growth posed in a referendum to be held in conjunction with the April 15 village election.

DURING THE PAST month more than 2,000 signatures have been obtained from residents of Sheffield Park, Weatherfield, The Woods, Lancer Park and Meadow Knolls homeowners supporting the special election.

Petitions state objections to "uncontrolled growth of multiple development" and demand citizens' rights to preserve "the single-family character" of the village. They also cite opposition of rezoning land adjacent to single-family homes for planned unit developments or commercial use.

Fred Grening, Timbercrest, advised village officials of the number of residents supporting the special election but said petitions will continue to circulate for later presentation to the board.

Mary Bakis, 219 Hickory Ln., commented: "We are not against development of the area but just want to catch our breath and make certain what we do is right for Schaumburg."

Immediately prior to the village board meeting, Mrs. Bakis stood in front of Civic Center recruiting volunteers to help in the effort to slow down the apartment growth rate in Schaumburg.

"WE ARE LOOKING for people willing to help us in any way they can by passing out literature or petitions, making telephone calls, doing research and other errands," she said. She estimated "about 80 per cent of the village" is supporting the cause.

Atcher told the residents Schaumburg is "a planned community. I am sorry that you didn't understand what this village was when you moved here, but we are not going to change things."

Village officials encouraged the residents to meet with them Saturday in an effort to "clear the air" and discuss the merits and disadvantages of multiple development.

The discussion, open to the public, is planned for 9:30 a.m. at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

4,693 voters must sign vote petition

Petition signatures of 4,693 registered voters living in the Village of Schaumburg will be needed to call a referendum on continued apartment development.

The number of registered voters living in the village is approximately 18,772, according to figures obtained Wednesday from the county clerk's office. Most of the village voting districts are in Schaumburg Township, while three precincts are in Palatine Township.

Signatures of at least 25 per cent of the registered voters living in Schaumburg are required to call a special election, said Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

Siegel emphasized, however, that the results of a referendum of this type would be advisory rather than binding on the village board.

Petitions signed by 2,165 residents calling for a referendum to limit apartment development were presented Tuesday night to the village board.

A Hoffman Estates Plan Commission hearing on a development plan for the remaining 100 acres of Hill and Dale Villages was continued Wednesday night until Sept. 25.

Richard Regan, commission chairman, said Python Designer-Builders, Inc., officials needed more time to prepare plans for the site, which is east of Higgins and Barrington roads.

Python, a Rolling Meadows firm, is purchasing the remaining acreage from Multicon, which is being liquidated. It is a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Co.

The Bigelow Co. Inc., also of Rolling Meadows, will purchase a small section of the site from Multicon. Bigelow officials have requested that their plans not be reviewed until Python's plans are examined.

A hearing for the Bigelow plan also is set for Sept. 25.

PLAN COMMISSIONERS approved Wednesday an engineering study for nine zero-lot-line models for the Westbury development planned for a 487-acre tract north of the Northwest Tollway.

In other business, Regan told the commission that letters would be sent to developers along Poplar Creek in the western portion of the village requesting that work such as soil erosion prevention be done. Regan said, "We want to preserve the integrity of the Poplar Creek watershed area."

Regan also reported he is reviewing the proposed new Cook County zoning ordinance. He said he does not like the planned unit development section of the ordinance. He said he will represent the commission at a public hearing on the proposed ordinance Sept. 25 in Chicago.

Village blood drive reaches half-way point

Collection has reached half the total needed in Hoffman Estates' annual blood drive.

Amy Badal, blood drive chairman this week said 131 pints were collected Sunday in the latest drive at the municipal building. The sum brings to 620 the total collected so far this year, she said.

A goal of 1,140 units has been set for the village by the North Suburban Blood Bank, sponsors of the village's blood replacement plan.

The plan provides for unlimited blood replacement for village residents and their immediate families if the goal is reached. The goal is based on an estimated 4 per cent of the village's population, Mrs. Badal said.

The next blood drive will be Sept. 25 at St. John United Church of Christ, 1475 W. Algonquin Rd. in the Winston Knolls subdivision. Persons interested in donating blood must be between 18 and 65 years old and in good health.

The drive will be from 4 to 9 p.m. at the church.

To register, persons should call Mrs. Badal at 883-9208 or the village health department at 882-9100.

Residents hit relocation of 'old' house

by RONALD NORBERG

Residents of Bel Aire Lane, a cul-de-sac south of Golf Road in Mount Prospect, are complaining that a house being moved into the area will bring down their property values.

The home is a 21-year-old brick ranch house, currently at 100 S. Maple St.

The Mount Prospect State Bank, needing the home for bank expansion, sold the building to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lindmark, daughter and son-in-law of village Building Director Buell Dutton.

THE LINDMARKS then bought a vacant lot at the head of the Bel Aire Lane cul-de-sac with the intention of moving the house there.

Neighborhood residents, who say most of their bi and tri-level homes on the block are valued at between $35,000 and $45,000, are complaining about the future addition to their neighborhood.

"The building looks like it is 25 years old and has not been taken care of," said Gloria Van Dyke, 670 Bel Aire. "It needs new gutters, and it looks like it needs a new roof."

"We just don't want that building plucked down here."

Sylvia Geisler, who lives next door to the now vacant lot, said, "I've heard that it is an old building. It's really going to depreciate the neighborhood."

She said, however, she has not seen the Lindmark's house.

EDWIN DEEKE, 680 Bel Aire, said he spoke to Village Mgr. Robert Eppley, protesting the home's relocation.

"He told me it was legal," Deeke said, "and that I could hire a lawyer, but it wouldn't do any good."

"The house looks like it is going to give out any minute," he continued. "Everybody is unhappy about it. We don't want that house in our cul-de-sac."

"I took a look at that house the other day," said Lee Ensenbacher, 695 Bel Aire. "There doesn't seem to be much left to it. I don't think it will look good in the neighborhood."

Dutton acknowledged Tuesday the house could use repair. "I can appreciate the homeowners' feelings," he said. "The house is deceiving from the outside. Ac-

Tunnels, reservoirs would end flooding: official

The Metropolitan Sanitary District's proposed tunnel and reservoir plan would eliminate all overbank flooding resulting from Weller Creek, a U.S. Soil Conservation Service spokesman said Wednesday night.

However, residents of the Willow-Higgins Creek area may need two reservoirs and stream widening to solve their flooding problems, the SCS planning engineer predicted.

SCS engineer Harry Means told 20 Des Plaines and Mount Prospect area residents at a meeting in the Des Plaines City Hall Municipal Building, that a detailed plan for the reservoirs and dredging of Willow-Higgins Creek will be prepared and brought back for local consideration.

MEANS AND TWO MSD representatives at the meeting came under fire from some local residents who said they doubted the combined sewerage tunnels would ever be built.

MSD engineer Roy A. Carlson countered with a charge that the Village of Mount Prospect has held up plans for a temporary storm-water basin at Busse and Central roads for six to nine months.

Des Plaines resident Burton Kosmen said members of the city council were wrong to allow continued building in the Mill and River Street area without requiring flood-retention basins.

He urged the MSD to strengthen its retention requirements to include residential developments on sites smaller than five acres.

Another Ald. Carmen J. Sarlo, 6th, called on other local municipalities to build their own retention basins to keep from flooding their neighbors.

Possible retention reservoir sites to solve the $287,500 annual flood damage in the Willow-Higgins Creek area include 55 acres of the old Ravenswood Airport and a smaller site near the intersection of Higgins Road and Lee Street, Means said.

Both sites are part of O'Hare Airport and are owned by the City of Chicago. The MSD has already purchased 22 acres of privately owned land north of the Ravenswood site for a future retention basin.

Township seeks youth service bureau director

Elk Grove Township is looking for a director for its newly formed Regional Youth Service Bureau.

Paul E. Paprocki, director of youth services, said the township is seeking applicants from the Northwest suburbs since the new bureau is a cooperative venture of Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Paprocki said the director will coordinate regional programs including a hotline referral service, medical counseling and referral for pregnancy and venereal disease, pregnancy testing, family therapy, individual counseling and referral and walk-in emergency assistance.

The director will be assisted by about 11 staff members, Paprocki said.

Paprocki said the township is looking for applicants with a Bachelor's degree minimum although a Master's degree and/or three years of experience in social service are preferred. In addition applicants should have experience working with volunteers and with a hotline and have some administrative experience.

The salary range for the full-time position is $12,000 to $13,000 plus fringe benefits.

Resumes should be sent to Director of Youth Services, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, 60005, to the attention of Paprocki.

Room mothers' tea at Sunset Park

A tea for room mothers at Sunset Park School will be held Friday from 3 to 4 p.m. at the school, 601 W. Lounquist Blvd., Mount Prospect. The room mothers' responsibilities will be discussed and they will be able to meet the school's teachers.

Knievel prompts 'Evel' bike stunts

Evel Knievel's daredevil exploits have apparently made quite an impact on young bicycle riders.

Children, apparently to imitate Knievel, have been constructing ramps, and jumping off them on their bicycles.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney warned these youngsters Wednesday that the practice is "hazardous, both to themselves, and to motorists who happen to be driving by."

Doney said that at least in Mount Prospect, a child who is seen "stunting" will be stopped by a police officer, and escorted home for a conversation with his parents.

He also said future would-be Knievels will be brought before a bicycle safety court, to be organized next spring.

Children in the village are now being warned against stunting on bicycles, as part of the department's "Officer Friendly" program.

Officials hear Prospect Heights residents concerns

STATE SEN. JOHN J. NIMROD, R-4th, foreground, argues for the county forest preserve district to be the Rob Roy Golf Course to retain it as open space. Shown with Nimrod Wednesday night at a meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. are, from left, Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. Three other area legislators also attended the session.

Public purchase only way to save open space

Preservation of the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space was the main concern Wednesday night as six area legislators met with Prospect Heights residents.

State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, and State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, disagreed over whether lowering the tax assessment of the golf course, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township, would keep the course open.

Porter said he believed some kind of tax relief "really is not the answer." Even if there were no tax on the golf course, Porter said, the incentive of increased profits through development would be so great it probably could not be resisted.

PUBLIC PURCHASE of threatened open space, such as Rob Roy, is "the only solution," Porter said.

Juckett said he feels a tax incentive would help and he plans to introduce a bill into the Illinois General Assembly under which golf courses would be assessed at their actual use rather than the highest use of the land. He added he felt there would not be "any trouble" in passing such a bill.

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, said there has been a lack of local action toward purchasing Rob Roy. "Nobody has really done anything in the past year to enable us (the legislators) to help," he said.

Duff suggested that the River Trails and Prospect Heights park districts conduct referenda of about $2 million each, with the funds used to purchase half of the golf course.

KENROY INC., Skokie, has offered to sell the 18-hole course if its petition to rezone the remaining half of the 200-acre site for apartments and condominiums is approved by the Village of Mount Prospect. The village's zoning board of appeals has recommended denial of the request, which is pending before the village board.

Another suggestion, backed by State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, was that the county forest preserve district be urged to purchase the property for the use of all county residents. Forest preserve officials have stated previously that the district would not buy the golf course because it is too small and costly, not adjacent to other forest preserve property and not needed, because the district is building a golf course in Palatine.

Teichert deciding on two cases

Rulings on liquor violations due soon

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said this week he will announce his decision in two separate cases of alleged liquor license violations by the end of the week.

Teichert, who serves as the village's liquor commissioner, will decide whether laws were violated by the Old Orchard Country Club, 700 W. Rand Rd., and the Walgreen Co., in the Mount Prospect Plaza, in unrelated cases of alleged sale of liquor to minors.

At the Old Orchard Country Club, two youths were allegedly sold wine without being asked for identification.

THE OTHER CASE involved two youths being found with beer in the Mount Prospect Plaza. The youths said they purchased the beer at Walgreen's, but were unable to identify the clerk, or produce a sales receipt.

Both cases have been pending since July.

Teichert said he will withhold a decision until he is finished reviewing transcripts of the hearings.

A third case, involving the Pier 100 bar, 100 E. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect, has been continued until Oct. 2.

THE BAR ALLEGEDLY served beer in cups while patrons watched the Fourth of July Parade outside the premises.

The bar's liquor license permits "consumption on the premises only."

As liquor commissioner, Teichert has the authority to levy fines or to suspend or revoke liquor licenses.

Police recover stolen padlocks

Mount Prospect and Wheeling police this week recovered some 100 padlocks reported stolen from Wheeling High School in December.

Police found the locks, initialed "WHS," in the residence of Robert Ferracotta, 612 E. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect. The locks were discovered during a search of Ferracotta's home after he had been charged by Arlington Heights police with the possession of some 100 stolen oil company credit cards.

In addition to the theft charge, Ferracotta and his wife, Susan, were each charged by Arlington Heights police with possession of barbiturates, and are to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Oct. 4.

According to police, the padlocks were found in their original containers and a check of the serial numbers showed they matched the ones reported stolen from the high school.

However, charges have not been filed in the padlock theft case.

Day-care center enrollment growing

The Elk Grove Township Day Care Center has an enrollment of 17 students with more applicants expected by the end of the week.

Dora Fowler, director of the center, told the township board of auditors Tuesday the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services initially licensed the center for 30 students. Capacity for the center at the Elk Grove Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd., is 40. Mrs. Fowler said the center will receive licensing for its capacity in the near future.

Of the 17 students enrolled in the five-day week program, 12 pay the full fee of $30 per week, four pay a partial fee and one student is on a full township subsidy, Mrs. Fowler said.

Mrs. Fowler said children will be accepted on a part-time basis for less than the full five-day week.

Children from Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines comprise the 17-member enrollment.

Sewer cleaning bid OKd

The board accepted a bid from National Power Rodding Corp. of Chicago to clean the sewer in the industrial area along Oakton Street. The bid of $3,278 includes cleaning of 5,000 feet of 8- and 10-inch pipes and cleaning of the Oakton lift station and manholes.

One other bid was received on the project although the township solicited five bidders for the work.

Bike-a-thon to raise funds

The Northwest Opportunities Center and Shelter Inc., a local child welfare agency, will cosponsor a bike-a-thon Oct. 20 at the Arlington Park Race Track parking lot.

Funds raised from the event will be shared by the two agencies.

Riders will begin circling the parking lot at 9 a.m. Each cyclist will have a sponsor who will contribute a certain amount of money for each mile the rider completes.

Persons wishing to participate in the event should call the township office at 437-0300 for more information.

October meeting changed

The board voted to reschedule its October meeting from the 7th to the 1st, which is the first Tuesday of the month.

The board also tentatively scheduled a meeting with the Elk Grove Village Park District for Tuesday, Sept. 17 to discuss the park district's bicycle safety program.

Voter signup continues

Voter registration will continue through Sept. 20 with the township offices open each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon to accommodate registrants. The township will sponsor a special voter registration drive Sept. 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., which will be the last chance for prospective voters to register in the evening.

Parks' golfing event nets $300 for charity

The Mount Prospect Combined Appeal, with the cooperation of the Mount Prospect Park District, netted $300 during the weekend by sponsoring "longest drive" and "closest to the pin" contests at Mount Prospect Country Club.

A spokesman for the Appeal said 100 golfers paid $1 each to participate in the longest drive contest. The golfers were divided into five groups of 20, with the winners in each group splitting a $20 pot with the charity.

Winners over the weekend were: Roger Puls, Richard Fox, Thomas Shoenbeck, Irwin Kokes and an unnamed fifth winner.

Two men also received one dozen golf balls for landing a drive closest to the pin on the course's par-three 12th hole.

James Drain hit a ball 45 inches from the pin on Saturday, and Thomas Ackerman hit a shot 31 inches away on Sunday.

Free driver training offered for seniors

Qualified driving instructors from St. Raymond's Church, 311 S. Joka Ave., Mount Prospect, will offer driver's education classes to all interested senior citizens free of charge.

There will be a total of three classes, each session lasting two hours.

Class times will be announced after registration is completed.

For information, call 394-1480.

1 caught, 1 sought in $550 tool theft

One of two roommates has been arrested and the other is being sought by Mount Prospect police in the theft of $550 worth of tools from a maintenance room at the Timberlake Village Apartments.

Still being sought is Steven J. Campbell, 1404 S. Busse Rd. His roommate, James G. Strew, 20, was arrested Tuesday night. Both men, residents of the Timberlake Apartments, have been charged with two counts of theft.

The tools, which were stolen sometime between Sept. 5 and Saturday, were owned by the apartments' manager, R. M. Stephan, 54, and assistant manager, John C. Ducey, 23. Police said the tools were found in both bedrooms of the suspects' apartment when the apartment management was making a damage report check.

Strew was released on $2,000 bond and will appear Oct. 16 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

THE HOUSE ABOVE, purchased by the son-in-law of Mount Prospect Building Director Buell Dutton, will be relocated on the vacant lot below. The house is being moved to make room for the new Mount Prospect State Bank. Residents of the area are complaining that the house will bring down property values.

tually it is sound and quite sturdy. It needs some painting and exterior improvements, but it is a good house," he said.

He declined to say how much his son-in-law paid for the house. "A person's personal finances are his own business," he said.

HE ALSO SAID pressure from the neighborhood residents may keep the young couple from moving at all.

"They're trying to better themselves, but if everyone is going to hate them before they even move in, it's just not worth it," he said.

Some area residents also complained of a possible conflict of interest, because the house was sold to a family of the village building director.

Dutton said Tuesday his only involvement in the purchase was to advise his son-in-law, and help the couple obtain a mortgage.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert said he was informed of the situation before the purchase was made, and that he advised Dutton that his involvement did not constitute a conflict of interest.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said Wednesday the move was supposed to have taken place today, but relocation plans have been delayed. The landmarks must await clearance from the Chicago and North Western Rwy., because the house must be moved across C&NW tracks.

He said the house may be moved early next week.

Maryville school plans up for review

Architects in charge of the new Maryville school project will meet Sept. 24 with the Illinois Capital Development Board.

Anthony J. Sirois of Fields, Goldman and Magee, Mount Vernon, said Wednesday the ICDB will review drawings for the school and "should at that time establish final plans." The ICDB must approve design plans since it is providing nearly $1 million toward construction of the school.

Last month the ICDB approved roughly 40 per cent of design drawings completed thus far and directed architects to prepare specifications for use by prospective contractors for bidding. Sirois said he still hopes to let bids for construction by October.

Architects are aiming for a September, 1975, opening for the new building. Sirois said if bid letting is delayed, the school may not be ready for occupancy until some months past September.

The new school will be located on the Maryville Academy grounds in Des Plaines on a five-acre parcel of land at the intersection of Gregory Street and River Road. The school will serve students from the academy who now attend River Road School, which must be replaced because it does not meet state life safety codes.

Park board wrapup

Bonds won't be sold by bidding

Prospect Heights Park District officials will enter private negotiations rather than bid publicly for the sale of the $1.1 million in bonds authorized by last spring's referendum.

"We will probably do better through negotiations," Park Pres. Max Lyle said Tuesday. He added that because of the current economic conditions and the 7 per cent legal limit on bond interest, the district might not receive any bids if it went the bid route.

Park district attorney William Moore said he expects to obtain approval for the bond sale from Chapman and Cutler, a law firm specializing in municipal bonds. The law firm has held up its approval, which banks look for before buying bonds, because publication of the referendum lacked the park district secretary's name, Moor said.

Moore said listing the secretary's name was formerly required but has since been stricken by the Illinois Revised Statutes. The attorney said Chapman and Cutler was merely being "cautious" on the point.

$500 OKd for ball fields

Up to $500 for grading and seeding of four ball fields was unanimously approved.

The three baseball diamonds — for seniors, intermediate seniors and tots — and one softball field will be located on property the park district is leasing from High School Dist. 214 at Coudren Drive in Prospect Heights.

'Ethical standards' ordinance

An "ethical standards ordinance" that covers park commissioners, employees and "persons associated with the district in an official capacity" was unanimously adopted by the park board.

The three-part ordinance forbids conflict of interest situations that would result in profit for the offending party, patronage and contracts with relatives.

"Basically, we are in compliance with this ordinance," Lyle said.

Senior citizens meet

The Prospect Heights Senior Citizen Club, sponsored by the park district, met Tuesday for the first time at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St.

Twenty-one senior citizens, including three men, attended the session. The group will meet from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. each Tuesday with Jo-Ellen Clawes acting as co-ordinator.

Fall brochures due soon

Fall recreation program brochures have been delayed and are now expected to be mailed in about two weeks.

Beer drinking a problem

Late-night beer drinking in Kiwanis Park, Elm Street at Palestine Road, has become a serious problem, according to park district officials. The county sheriff's police will be asked to patrol the site.

Used equipment given away

The park board unanimously agreed to give six used toilets and laundry-type sinks from Lions Pool to the Wheeling Park District, which requested the items. The equipment is no longer needed by the Prospect Heights Park District because new facilities will be included in the community center/sports complex. Construction of the complex will begin in about a month.

Police to present program Monday

The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. will present its "We Protect and Serve" program at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwan Ave.

The presentation will be made at the Senior Citizens' Club.

The club is sponsored by the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club. Meetings are held the third Monday of every month.

Low-income units at issue

Viator housing case goes to court Friday

Attorneys for the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. will lock horns, Friday morning in the 2½-year-old Viatorian housing case.

Both sides are scheduled to appear at 10:30 a.m. before the U. S. Appeals Court to present oral arguments in the case surrounding a low-income townhouse development proposed for 15 acres of Viatorian land next to St. Viator High School.

MHDC has charged village officials with racial discrimination because of their 1971 decision not to rezone the site for multi-family housing. The decision violated the 14th Amendment and the Civil Rights Act because it deprived low-income persons of an opportunity to find housing close to a growing job market, MHDC has argued.

The village has maintained, so far successfully, that rezoning the property would violate the integrity of the village's zoning ordinance, and that a townhouse development on the property would be incompatible with neighboring single-family homes.

Hundreds of homeowners, many of whom lived near the proposed site, protested the Viatorian housing proposal during stormy hearings before the village plan commission and village board.

FOLLOWING THE board's turn down of the rezoning petition, MHDC filed suit in U. S. District Court in June, 1972. The case came to trial in January, 1974, and went on for six days before U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen.

On Feb. 22, McMillen handed down his decision sustaining the village's position.

Two sets of written briefs have been filed with the Appeals Court, but Friday will make the first and only time the attorneys have to make oral arguments. A three-judge panel will hear and ultimately decide the case, but their decision is not expected for several weeks.

In its final written brief filed with the court last month, MHDC attorneys said, "Arlington Heights' approach to the issue raised by this appeal is one more bleak and discouraging example of the irresponsible reaction of white suburban officials to the segregated housing crisis in the Chicago metropolitan area."

Consistently stressing that the only issue in the case is a question of zoning, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel has told the court that "The Village of Arlington Heights discriminates against no one."

Village to buy 15 new pieces of equipment

The Arlington Heights Village Board has approved the purchase of 15 new pieces of public works equipment at a total cost of nearly $150,000.

Included on the village shopping list are: a backhoe at $27,500, a three-quarter-ton pickup truck at $3,544, an air compressor at $6,470, a tractor mower at $7,500, an end loader at $35,700, two dump trucks at $20,650, two dump bodies at $5,440, a truck chassis at $6,871, a fire department snorkel truck at $19,483, two salt spreaders at $2,343, two reversible snow plows at $5,210, and two one-way snow plows at $3,210.

In each case the board approved the low bidder for the equipment, except for the air compressor, the two dump bodies, the snorkel and the two one-way snow plows where, in each case, only one bid was received.

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the total equipment cost was only $250 more than the budget estimate.

But Hanson said it was getting more and more difficult to get firm price bids and delivery dates on equipment.

In several cases, the new equipment will replace vintage models, he said. The compressor currently in use is a 1947 model and the snorkel dates from 1946.

LAURIE WIEDL, 8, steps from Arlington Heights Bookmobile with book in hand Wednesday at Evergreen Park. The portable library makes its rounds of village neighborhoods daily.

Library hoping to lease new $55,000 bookmobile

Arlington Heights Memorial Library hopes to have a new $55,000 bookmobile in service soon.

Executive Librarian Frank Dempsey said the success of the library's present bookmobile has prompted the investigation into buying a new and larger model. The present bookmobile was purchased second-hand for $5,000 and used as an experiment to see if a bookmobile would be used by library patrons. After a year of service and a monthly circulation of 3,000 volumes, library board members have pronounced the bookmobile experiment a success, Dempsey said.

A new model that would fit library needs would cost $55,000, according to figures Dempsey obtained from the Gerstenschlager Co. of Wooster, Ohio. Because the library's budget could not handle that amount this year or next year, Dempsey said the board has authorized him to investigate a lease-purchase arrangement for the bookmobile.

The present bookmobile has just begun its fall schedule. On Tuesdays, the van will stop at Greenbrier School from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and at Frontier Park from 4:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m.

On Wednesdays, the van will stop at Northwest Community Hospital from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Other stops will be Dryden Park from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., Evergreen Park from 4:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. and Berbecker Park from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

THURSDAY STOPS will include Poe School from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., Riley School from 4:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m., and Camelot Park from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

On Fridays the bookmobile will begin its afternoon at the Lutheran Home for the Aged, at 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. It will continue on to Greens Park from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and end the day at Hasbrook Park from 4:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m.

Saturday's schedule begins at Plente Park from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. The bookmobile will continue on to the Convenient Mart on Palatine Road at 10:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. From there it will go to Heritage Park from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and on to Dunton School from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. The final Saturday stop is at Pioneer Park from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m.

This fall, Susan Grimley, bookmobile librarian, will be giving macrame lessons at bookmobile stops.

SHACKLE AND CHAIN were allegedly used to secure a 3-year-old Arlington Heights boy to a tree. Police said the lad was manacled to keep him in the yard. His parents were charged with endangering his life.

Boy, 3, found chained to tree, parents arrested

by JOE SWICKARD

An Arlington Heights couple was arrested Wednesday night after police discovered the couple's 3-year-old son shackled and chained to a tree in the backyard of their home.

Arrested were Richard and Erna Gilman, 303 N. Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights. They were charged by Arlington Heights police with endangering the life and health of the boy.

Police said they received a report Wednesday evening from neighbors that a boy was chained to a tree in the Gilman's backyard.

When detectives arrived at the house they found the youth secured to a tree with a 40-foot length of steel chain attached to his ankle by a shackle and padlock. Police said the chain was wrapped around the tree so the boy could not untie it.

"HE WAS JUST lying on the grass by the tree," said Cap. Irwin McDougall.

McDougall said the Gilmans admitted chaining the boy, but claimed it was done "so he wouldn't run away." They

Village, library boards to meet

A joint meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board and the Arlington Heights Memorial Library Board is scheduled for late October to discuss two plans for expanding the library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.

The joint meeting was approved at Tuesday's library board meeting, according to Frank Dempsey, executive librarian.

A feasibility study for library expansion to the west over the library's present parking lot was completed several months ago by Nicol, Nicol, Chaney and Vanek of Chicago, the architectural firm that designed the present structure. Expansion would cost an estimated $1.1 million, Dempsey said.

The library board also is considering expansion to the south. A preliminary report was given Tuesday by the Nicol firm, with final plans and cost estimates to be ready by the October library board meeting, Dempsey said.

THE PRELIMINARY report on southward expansion shows that an additional 20,000 square feet of library space could be provided. A southward expansion would necessitate the closing of Fremont Street between Dunton and Vall Avenue. The block south of the library, now a parking lot, is owned by the village and would have to be either donated, leased or sold to the library if southward expansion is chosen, Dempsey said.

Dempsey said the additional library space is needed "simply for more people and more books." Dempsey said the library adds 14,000 volumes each year. At that rate, he said, the present library will run out of room in two to three years.

When one of the two expansion plans is settled on, Dempsey said, the board will interview several architectural firms for a final plan. A referendum will then be held to authorize the expansion.

To include well, retention basin, park

$5.5 million earmarked for Wilke Road site

by KURT BAER

The Village of Arlington Heights is making some expensive plans for the large tract of vacant land bounded by Wilke, Kirchoff and Central roads.

On the drawing board, and in various stages of official approval, are a deep-water well, pump house and large steel tank reservoir, a 12-acre storm water retention basin for the Pioneer Park neighborhood, and a five-acre park site.

Added together, the projects represent an estimated $5.5 million worth of land acquisition and construction, and are apt to take several years to complete.

THE COST OF THE new well installation will be paid from village utility tax funds paid by each resident while non-referendum general obligation bonds have been recommended to finance the flood control project.

There is no clear source of money to acquire and develop the park site.

A four-acre site, immediately south of the existing Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin, was approved by the village board Monday night for the well, pump house and reservoir tank, which will stand four to five stories tall and store six million gallons of water.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the village board's finance committee, said the Wilke-Kirchoff site was chosen "because it is a relatively remote area, away from any established residential development."

Palmatier said setting the tank in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle will minimize what he euphemistically called "its visual handicap."

ANOTHER TRUSTEE, David Griffin, was more candid when he said the tank

"would be big, four or five stories tall. There's no use deceiving anybody."

The tank will be identical to the six million gallon reservoir that now stands on the village landfill site at Dundee and Nichols roads.

But to bury the tank underground, even halfway, would add at least $400,000 to the cost of the water installation which is already estimated at $1.9 million.

"There's no question that we're going to need this facility to head off water shortages," Palmatier said. "We'll need it whether or not we go to Lake Michigan for water."

When the tank is completed, it will bring Arlington Heights' total water storage capacity to 19 million gallons. On a peak summer day, demand for water tops out at 13 to 14 million gallons daily.

"With Lake Michigan water, they like you to have two full day's storage on hand in case there's any trouble in the lines that they have to shut down to fix," Palmatier said. "With 19 million gallons, we won't quite have that, but we'll be over one day's supply."

PRESENT PLANS call for the reservoir tank to be set back about 100 feet from future New Wilke Road.

Directly east of the 14.5-acre Wilke-Kirchoff basin is the proposed site of an additional 12-acre detention basin that is intended to hold storm water drained from the Pioneer Park neighborhood to the north.

Locating this basin in the Wilke-Kirchoff triangle is an alternative to using a portion of Pioneer Park itself to store the storm water, a proposal which was never accepted by the Arlington Heights Park Board or the majority of Pioneer Park residents.

The cost of the basin project is estimated at $2.85 million. A large and very deep storm sewer would be constructed along Dwyer Avenue to drain the storm water from Pioneer Park to the Wilke-Kirchoff reservoir.

Within the proposed basin lies a five-acre future park site, already officially reserved in an ordinance passed by the village board in May.

"We first proposed that site three or four years ago when as far as I know, there was no intention of building a second basin," says Katherine Muller, Arlington Heights Park District vice president. "We asked for the site in anticipation of residential development in that triangle."

IF THE SECOND BASIN is built as planned, the park site will have to be moved, Mrs. Muller said.

"We will need a neighborhood park site there, one that will remain dry all year-round," she said, adding that retention basins which have been designated park land have not proved very useful. "We're not convinced, for example, that we'll ever be able to do anything with the Wilke-Kirchoff basin."

Mrs. Muller said she does not anticipate a conflict with the village over where the park will be located. "Almost anywhere within that triangle would probably be acceptable to us," she said.

Palmatier has suggested that dirt excavated for the second basin be used as fill to build up a park site in the area, much of which is low-lying property. "We could build up the surrounding land either for a park, or sell it off for development," he said.

Acquisition of the land for the well-reservoir, flood control basin and park site poses its own special problems, and much of the property being mapped out may have to be acquired through condemnation, a court proceeding that could take years. The vacant land in the triangle may cost about $25,000 an acre, according to Palmatier.

"We paid $17,000 an acre for the (existing) Wilke-Kirchoff basin, but that was several years ago. We can expect that prices have gone up some since then."

THE WILKE-KIRCHOFF triangle appears to be convenient for the village's purpose. It is a place where they can "hide" a south side water tank, dump a lot of storm water in a big hole in the ground, and maybe even build a new park. But a four-story water tank and 12-acre retention basin cut in drastically to Village Planner Joe Kesler's visions of a well-planned residential development in the area.

In April, Kesler prepared a "Central-Wilke-Kirchoff Study" in which he proposed four alternative development plans for the whole 119-acre tract.

Each plan contains a mixture of land uses, including offices, commercial space, townhouses and single-family homes, connected by parkways leading to the proposed park.

The report, which has not been formally adopted, states that "enormous development potential exists in the Central-Wilke-Kirchoff area. In order to realize this potential, diligent scrutiny of all proposals for the area is mandatory."

Kesler said Wednesday that he will now have to substantially modify the land planning study to take into account what appear to be the more practical, less artistic pressures of water supply and flood control.

Son chained, parents charged said it was "a method of controlling him."

According to the parents' statements to police the boy had run away several times this summer and would not stay in the yard. The parents did not put up a fence, police said, because they thought the boy "would just climb over it."

Police said the boy was chained outside daily while Mrs. Gilman would do the housework.

The chain, shackle and padlock weighed a total of 11 pounds, police said. The steel chain is the type commonly used to tether pets. Although the chain was about 40 feet long, police said it was knotted in the middle in an apparent attempt "to limit the child's range of mobility."

THE SHACKLE was homemade from two curved pieces of metal joined with a nut and bolt as a pivot and then secured with a large padlock. The curved portions of the shackle were bare metal, unpadded in any manner, police said.

The boy did not appear bruised or mistreated in any other way, police said. The boy's 4-year-old sister was not kept secured, police said.

Both children were removed from the Gilmans' home by police and were placed in an emergency foster home on approval of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services, police said.

A custody hearing will be conducted in Family Court, 1100 S. Hamilton, Chicago. Police said a hearing date has not been set.

The parents were released on $1,000 bond. They are scheduled to appear Oct. 10 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

THE WAITING GAME IS AN EXPENSIVE GAME

Every year you delay purchasing a home, you lose a year of having your assets appreciate . . . and you gain a year of inflation boosting the purchase price. And since building materials and real estate costs are rising much faster than the annual rate of inflation, many people are discovering their incomes will not keep pace with the future cost of housing . . . another reason to buy now.

PRIME NORTHWEST SUBURB . . . EXCEPTIONAL CONVENIENCE.

Certain real estate areas have appreciated faster than others in metropolitan Chicago; the northwest suburbs, with Arlington Heights as a key community, is the outstanding growth area in the entire Midwest! Within this key community, The Courtyards of Arlington Heights, by virtue of its downtown location, can offer you unparalleled convenience to shopping, schools, recreation and transportation. Supermarkets, shops, professional services, the library, tennis courts and the Chicago & Northwestern Commuter Railroad are literally only steps away.

'Public purchase is only way to save land'

Preservation of the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space was the main concern Wednesday night as six area legislators met with Prospect Heights residents.

State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, and State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, disagreed over whether lowering the tax assessment of the golf course, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township, would keep the course open.

Porter said he believed some kind of tax relief "really is not the answer." Even if there were no tax on the golf course, Porter said, the incentive of increased profits through development would be so great it probably could not be resisted.

PUBLIC PURCHASE of threatened open space, such as Rob Roy, is "the only solution," Porter said.

Juckett said he feels a tax incentive would help and he plans to introduce a bill into the Illinois General Assembly under which golf courses would be assessed at their actual use rather than the highest use of the land. He added he felt there would not be "any trouble" in passing such a bill.

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, said there has been a lack of local action toward purchasing Rob Roy. "Nobody has really done anything in the past year to enable us (the legislators) to help," he said.

Duff suggested that the River Trails and Prospect Heights park districts conduct referenda of about $2 million each, with the funds used to purchase half of the golf course.

KENROY INC., Skokie, has offered to sell the 18-hole course if its petition to rezone the remaining half of the 200-acre site for apartments and condominiums is approved by the Village of Mount Prospect. The village's zoning board of appeals has recommended denial of the request, which is pending before the village board.

Another suggestion, backed by State Sen. John J. Nimrod, R-4th, was that the county forest preserve district be urged to purchase the property for the use of all county residents. Forest preserve officials have stated previously that the district would not buy the golf course because it is too small and costly, not adjacent to other forest preserve property and not needed, because the district is building a golf course in Palatine Township.

Francine Stein, a surrogate for absent Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, said the federal government has indicated federal money would be available for a multipurpose recreational land purchase, such as playground equipment, pools and facilities for senior citizens, but not just for a golf course.

A brief moment of political antagonism arose when Juckett threatened to walk out of the meeting if Miss Stein were permitted to represent Jaffe at the speaker's table. Juckett said only legislators themselves should be at the table. The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., which sponsored the meeting, agreed. Miss Stein sat in the audience and Juckett resumed his seat.

Also discussed were the preservation of Palwaukee Airport, giving townships zoning powers, and drainage and flooding problems.

Other legislators attending the meeting at St. Alphonsus School were Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; and Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-1st. Of those invited, Jaffe and Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenview, did not attend.

Parks submit proposal for Nike Base land sharing

The Arlington Heights Park District has submitted a formal counterproposal to the Army for the sharing of the remaining 75 acres of the Arlington Heights Nike Base, Central and Wilke roads.

The proposal, first put forward on a trial basis about three weeks ago, calls for the Army to retain 40 acres of the base for a Reserve training center and the approximately 35-acre balance to go to the parks for inclusion in their holdings of land previously held by the military at the site.

The office of U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., is drafting a letter supporting the park district's proposal. The letter reportedly will be co-signed by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been trying for more than 10 years to get title to as much of the base as possible to increase the park acreage-per-population ratio. The present ratio of the district is less than half that recommended by federal standards.

To date, the park district has been given title to 13 acres of the base. An additional 52 acres, once set aside for military housing, has been declared surplus by the federal government and is expected to be conveyed to the district at a ceremony Sept. 29.

Presidential counselor Dean Burch is tentatively scheduled to make the deed transfer. President Gerald Ford had originally been invited to appear at the ceremony by Crane.

The remaining 75 acres was used by the Chicago-Detroit air defense command until this year when funding for the Nike missile program was cut from the federal budget.

The Army announced plans to create a 1,000-man Reservist training center on the 75 acres after the Nike group withdrew.

THE PARK DISTRICT and residents of the area maintain the Army does not need the full 75 acres for a training site. The local interest claim other area sites, such as Glenview Naval Air Station and Fort Sheridan, can be used more fully than they are at the present time.

The park district position calls for the Army to keep 40 acres around the command structure for its training needs. The park holdings then would surround the Army of three sides, leaving the military frontage onto Central Road.

A $1 million golf course, incorporating village flood control measures, would be built on the site, if the park's efforts are successful. The course would increase acreage ratio and would also generate revenue for the financially troubled district, officials have said. A referendum would be necessary.

Parks finance unit to study solutions to cash problems

The Arlington Heights Park District's Financial Plan Committee will meet today to continue discussion of possible solutions to the district's financial problems.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Olympic Park, Center, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

The committee will consider solutions that were proposed at last week's meeting which include more budget cuts, a referendum to raise taxes, consolidation of the park district and the village for increased taxing power, and a merger with other park districts.

The 12-member committee was established in August to develop an action plan to bail out the district from its financial troubles.

Committee members are hoping to present the major options and solutions to the park board for its consideration as soon as possible.
